DOUGLAS SUCCESSOR COULD TIP SCALE

Three Michigan Women On High Court's 'Maybe' List

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

President Ford's choice of a successor to retired Justice William O. Douglas could tip the ideological balance on the Supreme Court as the death penalty.

Douglas, 77 and partially paralyzed since last Dec. 31 by a stroke, retired Wednesday, telling President Ford what had become increasingly obvious to observers of the nation's highest court.

"I have been unable to shoulder my full share of the burden," he wrote after a decision which court officials said was reached alone in the privacy of his chambers. He said he was retiring effective immediately, bringing an end to history's longest Supreme Court career.

Ford, who as a congressman attempted five years ago to impeach Douglas, saluted him for service "unequaled in all the history of the court."

Douglas had been a Supreme Court justice since April 17, 1898, when he was sworn in following his appointment by President Franklin D. Roosevelt and nearly unanimous confirmation by the Senate.

His court service eclipsed by two years and two weeks the previous record set by Justice Stephen Field, a Californian appointed by President Abraham Lincoln.

His retirement could pave the way for appointment of the first woman justice, and feminist groups, with avowed support of First Lady Betty Ford, are expected to mount a strong drive for such an appointment.

Women who have been mentioned include Shirley M. Huftedler of Los Angeles, a judge of the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals; Carla A. Hills, secretary of housing and urban development; and three women from Ford's home state of Michigan.

The Michigan women who have figured in speculation are former Rep. Martha Griffiths, U.S. District Court Judge Cornelia Kennedy of Detroit and State Supreme Court Justice Mary Coleman.

Despite growing demand for a woman appointee, Atty. Gen. Edward M. Levi is expected to be a strong contender also. Levi would give the court its first Jewish justice since Abe Fortas resigned in 1969. Before that, there had been at least one Jewish member of the court continuously since appointment of Justice Louis D. Brandeis in 1916.

Although he has long been reported to be interested in an appointment to the high court, Levi was discouraging such speculation Wednesday night. Another man who has been mentioned as a possibility is Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., but Senate sources said Griffin has indicated he would recommend naming a woman.

Another Cabinet member, Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman, also has been mentioned as a possible successor. If Coleman were appointed, he would be the second black to serve on the high court.

The constitutionality of the death penalty is the central issue in one of eight cases the court was unable to decide last term, apparently due at least in part to Douglas' illness.

Douglas voted with the 5 to 4 majority in 1972 when the court struck down the then-existing capital punishment laws because they gave too much discretion to judges and juries. The question now is whether the 34 state laws passed since then suffer from the same defect.

Other issues the court faces include so-called "reverse discrimination" against whites in the awarding of seniority to blacks once passed over for hiring, whether private schools may discriminate racially and whether recent campaign reforms passed by Congress are constitutional.

Ford has not publicly expressed his views on what qualifications he would look for in a justice. Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Wednesday he could give no guidance. It generally is expected Ford will favor a conservative, although

State Senate Votes 22-12

Birth Control Bill Killed

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A controversial bill permitting birth control to be taught in sex education classes was defeated Wednesday in the Michigan Senate.

Final vote on the measure was 22-12, seven votes short of the 19 needed for passage. However, the measure came closer to victory than the vote indicated, as the original tally showed only three votes were needed for passage.

(From southwestern Michigan, Sen. Charles O. Zollar was absent, and Sen. Gary Byker voted against.)

When it became apparent the bill had not passed, several senators changed their original vote to coincide with the majority. A similar measure was defeated last summer, 24-13.

The measure failed despite having been amended this week to placate critics who argued it violated parental rights in sex education. The bill required parental permission before a pupil could have received instruction in birth control, venereal disease prevention and sex hygiene.

Originally, the bill would have required a note from the parent to remove the student from such classes. But the bill's sponsor, Sen. Gilbert Bursley, R-Ann Arbor, accepted the more restrictive version in order to get more votes for the bill.

Bursley predicted the parental consent amendment would produce votes needed for passage.

Wednesday's defeat kills the bill, but Bursley, anticipating the vote, some weeks ago introduced a similar measure which now is in committee.

The bill would have permitted for the first time that instruction in contraception be offered in sex education or health classes. The course would have been optional, with pupils needing written consent from parents to take the class.

The measure has been the target of emotional and vehement opposition, mainly from women's groups who contend sex education should be kept in the home. They also claimed teaching birth control would increase promiscuity.

Bursley argued the bill is needed to provide young people with the information necessary to avoid venereal disease and unwanted pregnancies. He claimed these are two results of poor sex education on the part of parents.

Bursley angered some supporters of the original bill by accepting the parental consent amendment. Those backing the original argued requiring parental consent would deny information to those who probably need it the most.

A similar bill, which aroused an earlier storm of controversy, passed the legislature in 1968, only to be vetoed by then-Gov. George Romney.

$150,000 Ransom Wins Safe Return Of GM Exec's Son

BLOOMFIELD HILLS, Mich. (AP) — The 13-year-old son of a top General Motors executive was reunited with his family today some 55 hours after he was abducted from outside his home. Police said the boy's father paid a $150,000 ransom to guarantee the youth's safe return.

Bloomfield Hills Township police said Timothy Stempel, son of Robert C. Stempel, was "fatigued but alert" when he walked into the Wayne County Medical Center shortly after 11 p.m. Wednesday and called his parents.

Young Stempel was abducted from outside his home in this exclusive Detroit suburb at about 5:30 p.m. Monday. His safe return was regarded as a surprise to those who had followed the case, because at no time did the abductor give any indication the youth was alive.

Lt. Don Zimmerman of the Bloomfield Township Police Department said police had not questioned Timothy extensively, adding that would be done later today. He indicated, however, that the investigation would not be hindered by letting Timothy rest.

"The most important thing since this incident began has been the safety of the boy," Zimmerman said. "His parents have gone through a great ordeal."

Zimmerman would not say where investigators were pinpointing their search but said technicians were at work trying to discover clues.

"Right now it's a matter of reuniting the family and possibly giving them a good night's sleep," he said.

The successful dropoff of the ransom, which police said came at 8:24 p.m. Wednesday, followed an abortive attempt earlier in the day.

Stempel, director of engineering at the Chevrolet Motor Division, followed "complicated and critical arrangements" to make the payoff, police said. He went to a designated spot — under tight police surveillance — and waited for three hours after receiving a phone call at 10:53 Wednesday morning, police said. However, he received no further instructions and returned home.

Then, police said, a second telephone call at 7:30 Wednesday night disclosed more details and Stempel dropped off the

Wife Watches Husband Drown

LAWTON — The wife of a Wisconsin man watched helplessly from shore late yesterday afternoon as her husband drowned while attempting to swim ashore from his overturned fishing boat on Gravel Lake south of here.

Van Buren county sheriff's deputies said they used a drag line to recover the body of Gene Kincaide, 47, Starkeville, Wis., about 6:15 p.m.

He was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. David J. Mallard, Paw Paw, a deputy county medical examiner.

Deputies said Kincaide's wife Mary, and sister-in-law Theresa Gerke, with whom the couple had been vacationing, saw Kin-caide clinging to the side of the 12-foot aluminum boat about 4:40 p.m.

The boat had capsized in the channel off Sandy beach, about 50 feet from shore, Mrs. Kincaide told deputies.

Kincaide was urged to stay with the boat, but attempted to swim to shore. He went under after swimming about 30 feet, deputies said they were told.

Kincaide was dressed in thermal underwear, a sweater, levis and a snowmobile suit, deputies said.

His body was recovered from eight to 10 feet of water, they said.

NYC Loaned To U.S.

NEW YORK (AP) — During the War of 1812, a much more fiscally fit New York City loaned $1 million to the United States which hasn't yet been repaid, according to City Council president Paul O'Dwyer.

O'Dwyer, who said he gleaned the historical tidbit from the city's archives, said Wednesday that if the loan were computed at six per cent compound interest, it would leave an unpaid balance of $11.2 billion.

Repayment, he said, isn't expected.

But he did suggest to Treasury Secretary William Simon that discussions now going on in the nation's capital for federal help to the city might be conducted with the same "feeling of comradeship which our New York fathers extended 100 years ago."

Hunters Gather For Opening Gun

DETROIT (AP)—The vanguard of an estimated army of 700,000 hunters was moving into position today for the opening of the Michigan deer season Saturday.

The Automobile Club of Michigan warned that northbound traffic would peak between 5 p.m. and 11 p.m. Friday. It urged that hunters get an early start.

Club officials said the worst traffic conditions were expected on Interstate-75 near Saginaw where two sections of the freeway still have not been expanded to three and at the Zilwaukee bridge area.

Some rain showers were predicted but there was no prediction of a fresh snowfall which would make it easier for hunters to track deer.

Officials of the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) said a record number of hunters was anticipated, topping the mark of 686,000 set last year.

The deer herd was estimated at over a million by DNR officials. DNR officials predicted no more than 10 per cent of the herd would be cropped off by hunters who are limited to one antlered buck or, in some areas of very heavy deer population, one antlerless deer if the hunter has a special permit.

Clean Chimneys, Firemen Urge

St. Joseph firemen today urged homeowners to have fireplace chimneys cleaned before building fires after receiving three alarms in as many days of chimneys spouting sparks.

Firemen checked the chimney at the Floyd Hokeman residence, 2200 Hinkcrest, St. Joseph, at 8 last night when sparks were observed coming out of the chimney. No damage was reported.

Fire Chief William Moore said chimneys built up soot and debris after months of inaction and with the first fire the interior ignites, showering the neighborhood with sparks "like a firecracker."

UN Off Deep End Again; We Should Keep Our Cool

Other than the ceremony officially launching the United Nations 30 years ago as the world's hope for everlasting earthly peace and justice, the organization has been noted for one gaffe after another.

Starting with a power play face off between the Iron Curtain nations on one side and the U.S. and the western countries on the other, its strident debate and half-cocked public utterances have become a sounding board for the third world units created from the dissolution of former colonial empires.

A few months ago its General Assembly dignified a threat by the Palestinian terrorist leader to plow Israel under by the sword as a statement of principle from another emerging nation.

This week by a 72-35 vote, with 32 abstentions, the General Assembly adopted a resolution describing Zionism as a form of racism. It stopped just short of calling for Israel's expulsion from the parent body.

The third world majority which rammed through the resolution all but includes the U.S. and other western powers as participants in global segregation because of their friendly relations with the Jewish state.

The knee jerk reaction in the U.S. is the understandable one of a father whose 17-year-old son declares out of the blue that the old man is part and parcel of an older generation conspiracy to suppress minorities, bleed the poor, contaminate the atmosphere, and cheat on the income tax.

If a plebiscite were held today, we would bet Americans by an overwhelming margin would say Uncle Sam should withdraw from the UN and save the 60 per cent or so of the money he contributes to keep the organization on its feet.

Since this column has come close to urging that very thing over the years, we are somewhat abrupt in applying the knee jerk adjective to the reaction. In taking a second look at the resolution, we recommend the attitude a wise parent should take when berated by the family upstart. The old boy is not perfect and doesn't pretend to be. He is simply trying to do the best he can. The youngster is merely talking to hear himself talk.

It is surprising in one sense that the resolution was so long in coming. For its sponsors to wring the greatest drama from the statement it should have been brought out the moment after the terrorist leader finished his diatribe.

That several months elapsed between the two events indicates the sponsors felt it necessary to do some arm twisting within their ranks.

While it would do no good to argue the illogic in the resolution, its wording displays the ignorance, not to mention the prejudice, of its authors. Zionism from its founding in the 1890s has never been other than a political movement to form up a Jewish home state. Though the movement numbers few non-Jews, one need not be a Jew to be a Zionist. In fact there is a small minority among American Jews which is staunchly anti-Zionist.

Though President Ford and an overwhelming bipartisan majority in Congress strongly condemn the General Assembly's action, they correctly refrain from advocating U.S. leaving the UN.

Seething as it is, the Israeli government takes the same course.

Withdrawal would play into the hands of the irresponsible elements who can outvote the sane membership in the Assembly at any time.

Eric Sevareid, probably the most astute among today's broadcaster analysts, stated the case most aptly two nights ago.

Without bothering to conceal his sense of exasperation with the resolution, he made two points.

One is the perennially sound position that the audience must consider the source from which its lecture comes.

Secondly, while the UN has accomplished little, neither has it manufactured the blunders by which two opposition nations shove themselves into a shooting match.

Better, therefore, for the U.S. and others to stick with a paper organization in the hope that some day it will move off dead center into a positive force for universal improvement.

Sevareid did not advert to our analogy of the family fight, but patiently he likens our country to the sore-pressed parent who clings to the belief that patience will convert impertinence into knowledge.

Congress Drags Feet

Imagine a federally subsidized program which is spending contrary to authorizations, between $500 million and $1 billion a year more than it is supposed to spend, and giving either too much or too little (mostly too much) assistance to 9 million of the 19 million persons now involved. That is the food stamp program.

"Incredible," said Treasury official Hazan Gale of the large number of errors. Even more incredible is the way Congress has been stalling for months any credible move to correct the scandalous administration of the program.

Food stamps have proven to be one of the federal welfare programs which, once undertaken, take on a life of their own and defy anyone to contain them. But when one out of six stamp recipients is found to have an income of $12,000 a year or otherwise is ineligible, the ripoff of the taxpayer becomes unconscionable.

If Congress does not take action to correct food stamp abuses, its members should be called upon to explain their lack of performance in the 1976 elections.

Motor Fuel Taxes Leading The Way

Taxes on motor fuels have been increased more often than any other tax in 1975, reports Commerce Clearing House.

So far, eight states have upped their gasoline tax rates since January. Massachusetts, South Dakota, Oregon and Wyoming raised theirs by one cent a gallon (although in Oregon the increase was suspended by referendum petition and Wyoming's will not take effect until next March 1.) Minnesota and Rhode Island each raised theirs by 2 cents, Montana by 2.5 cents and Hawaii by 3.5 cents.

The increases continue a 10-year trend toward higher and higher tax bites on this essential commodity, says CCH. Only eight states — Alabama, Alaska, Iowa, Nevada, Ohio, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas — have not raised their gasoline taxes between 1965 and 1975.

HURRAY FOR ALL COACHES, PLAYERS

Editor,
Open letter to area coaches and athletes:
Dear Fellas and Gals,

I hope I am speaking for all the parents and fans of all our area teams.

The football season has come to a close now, but periodically through the season various schools have written in criticism of the news coverage of sports events. Unfortunately all the teams can't be on the front page, nor can all the players be mentioned, but we know you're there.

All of you — the superstars, the average player and those of you on the bench. You have made your parents and fans extremely proud. You may not have made headlines, you may not have even gotten a mention — but you are all equally important. It takes all of you to make a team. It takes daily work, sweat, spirit and determination to practice your hearts out and maybe never even see action. We know you're there and we know you're giving to the best of your ability. All we as parents can give you is applause, praise and encouragement, yet you give us the unmatched thrill of a close game, the pride that you are a part of the team. Whatever your sport, keep giving. Your contribution is important and it is appreciated.

To our area coaches, (Terry Rose and Al Nixon specifically, because I'm a Laker)
We know this is your job, but without your love and guidance how could the kids feel they belong. Thank you for your skills, worry and time.

I also have to mention all the Little League and Babe Ruth baseball coaches who aren't professionals yet give so much of themselves, often without reward other than satisfaction that they are doing something for our boys.

If our appreciation could be paid to all of you in money you would be rich men.

WANTS RETURNABLE BOTTLE BILL

Editor,
I've written this letter to you, the constituents of the 43rd district, to contact your House Representative, Harry Gast Jr., and express your desire for his support of HD 4296, the returnable bottle bill. This bill requires deposits on containers and bans pull tabs. It provides that stores selling bottled drinks give refunds on the same.

With cleaner countryside, lower taxes, lower consumer costs, and resource savings as benefits of the bill, it must pass. Action by you now is what is needed. Please show your support, write your representative.

HEW Documents Surrendered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators are combing through subpoenaed documents on hospital accreditation to determine if any action should be taken to change the system under which the institutions qualify for Medicare and Medicaid payments.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary F. David Mathews relinquished the some 150 documents to Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., whose investigations and oversight subcommittee had subpoenaed them.

Is Good Scientist Really Neutral?

WASHINGTON — The high-flying Domestic Council, peopled primarily with cabinet officers and agency heads, and staffed with the cream of the bureaucracy and outside civilians, was set up a few years back to advise the President on those crucial domestic problems which harass us daily.

Now listen to these laments from the inside, aired at a meeting of fellow advisers:

We know that over-regulation by the government probably costs us $130 billion a year. We know there will be a severe domestic capital-formation crisis in the next 10 years. We know there's a taxpayer revolt. There are too many government commissions, committees and offices. We know what this does and will do to the economy and unemployment.

That is, we know what the problems are. We just don't know how to deal with them. We don't know how or where to grab hold. The problem is, we don't even know where to start.

As a solution under the Domestic Council has failed.

Attempts to work "by being an honest broker," taking no stands, presenting all views but sponsoring none. But, says one Domestic Council staffer, it is difficult finding men and women who will be neutral and impartial and who aren't emotionally committed to one side or another.

The problem, of course, is that no man is neutral, least of all a man sufficiently involved to become expert. Even Nobel Prize winning physicists and chemists become so wedded to their theories that I have seen them grow red in the face and wave their arms in uncontrolled anger when discussing their pet technical thoughts with scientists who disagree.

So much for neutrality. What happens then when the Domestic Council, attempts to neutralize its thinking on the major issues?

The result — what funnels up to President Ford — is a hand-mash from which controversy has been milked away. And no solutions you can come to grips with, not even bad ones.

Which, is one reason the economy is drifting. Things are made worse, of course, by a Congress so utterly devoid of leadership that neither the House nor the Senate can hammer out any law without inserting so many exceptions and loopholes the result should be left to die in committee.

The Domestic Council was intended, in addition, to keep government agencies from tripping over each other with competing and overlapping programs, thus preventing some degree of waste.

In this, too, the Council has failed.

These failures give one pause when considering the latest proposal — this time for another White House consulting body — an office of science advisor to the President, complete with scientist and staff.

One such proposal is backed, sort of, by the Domestic Council. The council was able to make this middle-of-the-road decision after insisting that the proposal to set up the science advisor and staff was so phrased, as one member of the staff put it, to offend nobody ... because there would be nothing anyone could take exception to.

The objective here, too, I am told on the best authority, is to find a scientist not committed to any viewpoint. That's not the way advocates phrase it, but that's what their search comes down to. The belief is strong among them that the former White House science advisor post was abolished because the men holding down that office too frequently forgot neutrality when advising the President.

But again, I've never met a scientist worth his salt who was neutral.

That's Really Far, Far Right!

Earlier this term, a Dartmouth student — indeed, a sweet young thing, Dartmouth now being co-ed — offered me some thoughts on her political development to date. She had become skeptical about her inherited liberalism, she said, and she also rejected what she called "the extreme left."

Who was that? I asked.

Well, Mao-Tse-tung, she said, and maybe Herbert Marcuse. But, I think the episode does tell us something about political perceptions on the campus, and indeed beyond the campus.

I will not presume to speak for Buckley, but I consider myself a "hard constitutionalist," meaning the U.S. Constitution.

To be sure, my reading of the Constitution does not prescribe many of the positions that have come to be associated with contemporary "liberalism." To offer particular scandal, I do not believe that the Constitution prescribes a legalized Communist Party. But even on my reading, the Constitution, providing for government by "deliberate consent," is hardly an extreme document. Those who subscribe to the Constitution are almost by definition moderate, whether shaded to left or right. The Constitution forces them to be moderate, whatever "opinions" they hold.

My student's identification of the "extreme left" seemed accurate enough. But what about its opposite, the extreme right?

As it happens, and conveniently enough, I have just received the latest number of a privately circulated newsletter on foreign affairs, and it contains an article on the leadership of the far right in contemporary Spain.

The first specimen is Sr. Miguel Ezquerro. From his point of view, I imagine, I myself would be some sort of poisonous liberal, hardly distinguishable from a Marxist.

Sr. Ezquerro fought for the Nationalists during the Spanish Civil War. Like many Spaniards, he volunteered to fight in the famous Blue Division alongside the Germans on the Russian front. But this evidently was not going far enough. He next signed up with the Waffen-SS and rose to the rank of colonel. He was one of some 200 Spaniards to fight in the last spasm in Berlin, defending Hitler's bunker against the Russians. Hitler was so impressed with Ezquerro that he offered to make him a general, but Ezquerro refused the offer since he would have been required to give up his Spanish citizenship.

After the war, Ezquerro returned to Spain as a leader of the extreme right. He was a general in the Civil Guard. He is said to have organized the "parallel police," a vigilante-type outfit dedicated to violent warfare against all leftists.

Far-right organizations have such names as Cruz Iberica and Defensa Universitaria. People of this sort have always regarded republicanism as English or French, certainly un-Spanish. The atmosphere there might be characterized as Holy Water plus machine pistols.

That, it seems obvious, is the opposite end of the political spectrum from Mao and Marcuse. And it has nothing to do with me, or Bill Buckley, or Ronald Reagan.

UN Off Deep End Again; We Should Keep Our Cool

Other than the ceremony officially launching the United Nations 30 years ago as the world's hope for everlasting earthly peace and justice, the organization has been noted for one gaffe after another.

Starting with a power play face off between the Iron Curtain nations on one side and the U.S. and the western countries on the other, its strident debate and half cocked public utterances have become a sounding board for the third world units created from the dissolution of former colonial empires.

A few months ago its General Assembly dignified a threat by the Palestinian terrorist leader to plow Israel under by the sword as a statement of principle from another emerging nation.

This week by a 72-35 vote, with 32 abstentions, the General Assembly adopted a resolution describing Zionism as a form of racism. It stopped just short of calling for Israel's expulsion from the parent body.

The third world majority which rammed through the resolution all but includes the U.S. and other western powers as participants in global segregation because of their friendly relations with the Jewish state.

The knee jerk reaction in the U.S. is the understandable one of a father whose 17-year-old son declares out of the blue that the old man is part and parcel of an older generation conspiracy to suppress minorities, bleed the poor, contaminate the atmosphere, and cheat on the income tax.

If a plebiscite were held today, we would bet Americans by an overwhelming margin would say Uncle Sam should withdraw from the UN and save the 60 per cent or so of the money he contributes to keep the organization on its feet.

Since this column has come close to urging that very thing over the years, we are somewhat abrupt in applying the knee jerk adjective to the reaction. In taking a second look at the resolution, we recommend the attitude a wise parent should take when berated by the family upstart. The old boy is not perfect and doesn't pretend to be. He is simply trying to do the best he can. The youngster is merely talking to hear himself talk.

Congress Drags Feet

Imagine a federally subsidized program which is spending contrary to authorizations, between $500 million and $1 billion a year more than it is supposed to spend, and giving either too much or too little (mostly too much) assistance to 9 million of the 19 million persons now involved. That is the food stamp program.

"Incredible," said Treasury official Hazan Gale of the large number of errors. Even more incredible is the way Congress has been stalling for

It is surprising in one sense that the resolution was so long in coming.

For its sponsors to wring the greatest drama from the statement it should have been brought out the moment after the terrorist leader finished his diatribe.

That several months elapsed between the two events indicates the sponsors felt it necessary to do some arm twisting within their ranks.

While it would do no good to argue the illogic in the resolution, its wording displays the ignorance, not to mention the prejudice, of its authors. Zionism from its founding in the 1890s has never been other than a political movement to form up a Jewish home state. Though the movement numbers few non-Jews, one need not be a Jew to be a Zionist. In fact there is a small minority among American Jewry which is staunchly anti-Zionist.

Though President Ford and an overwhelming bipartisan majority in Congress strongly condemn the General Assembly's action, they correctly refrain from advocating U.S. leaving the UN.

Seething as it is, the Israeli government takes the same course.

Withdrawal would play into the hands of the irresponsible elements who can outvote the sane membership in the Assembly at any time.

Eric Sevareid, probably the most astute among today's broadcaster analysts, stated the case most aptly two nights ago.

Without bothering to conceal his sense of exasperation with the resolution, he made two points.

One is the perennially sound position that the audience must consider the source from which its lecture comes.

Secondly, while the UN has accomplished little, neither has it manufactured the blunders by which two opposition nations shove themselves into a shooting match.

Better, therefore, for the U.S. and others to stick with a paper organization in the hope that some day it will move off dead center into a positive force for universal improvement.

Sevareid did not advert to our analogy of the family fight, but patently he likens our country to the sore-pressed parent who clings to the belief that patience will convert impertinence into knowledge.

months any credible move to correct the scandalous administration of the program.

Food stamps have proven to be one of the federal welfare programs which, once undertaken, take on a life of their own and defy anyone to contain them. But when one out of six stamp recipients is found to have an income of $12,000 a year or otherwise is ineligible, the ripoff of the taxpayer becomes unconscionable.

If Congress does not take action to correct food stamp abuses, its members should be called upon to explain their lack of performance in the 1976 elections.

Motor Fuel Taxes Leading The Way

Taxes on motor fuels have been increased more often than any other tax in 1975, reports Commerce Clearing House.

So far, eight states have upped their gasoline tax rates since January. Massachusetts, South Dakota, Oregon and Wyoming raised theirs by one cent a gallon (although in Oregon the increase was suspended by referendum petition and Wyoming's will not take effect until next March 1.) Minnesota and Rhode Island each raised theirs by 2 cents, Montana by 2.5 cents and Hawaii by 3.5 cents.

The increases continue a 10-year trend toward higher and higher tax bites on this essential commodity, says CCH. Only eight states — Alabama, Alaska, Iowa, Nevada, Ohio, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas — have not raised their gasoline taxes between 1965 and 1975.

HURRAY FOR ALL COACHES, PLAYERS

Editor,
Open letter to area coaches and athletes:
Dear Fellas and Gals,
I hope I am speaking for all the parents and fans of all our area teams.

The football season has come to a close now, but periodically through the season various schools have written in criticism of the news coverage of sports events. Unfortunately all the teams can't be on the front page, nor can all the players be mentioned, but we know you're there.

All of you — the superstars, the average player and those of you on the bench: You have made your parents and fans extremely proud. You may not have made headlines, you may not have even gotten a mention — but you are all equally important. It takes all of you to make a team. It takes daily work, sweat, spirit and determination to practice your hearts out and maybe never even see action. We know you're there and we know you're giving to the best of your ability. All we as parents can give you is applause, praise and encouragement, yet you give us the unmatched thrill of a close game, the pride that you are a part of the team. Whatever your sport, keep giving. Your contribution is important and it is appreciated.

To our area coaches, (Terry Rose and Al Nixon specifically, because I'm a Laker)

We know this is your job, but without your love and guidance how could the kids feel they belong. Thank you for your skills, worry and time.

I also have to mention all the Little League and Babe Ruth baseball coaches who aren't professionals yet give so much of themselves, often without reward other than satisfaction that they are doing something for our boys.

If our appreciation could be paid to all of you in money you would be rich men.

Coloma — Although fall rainstorms caused delays, Coloma's eighth school building — a $1,128,000 high school — should be completed by February, according to William Barrett, Coloma school superintendent. The new building is located on the south side of St. Joseph street where two of Coloma's early schools were. Coloma has been in the education business since 1837, when the first log school house was built. That was back when Coloma was named Shingle Diggings because of the shingle industry that established the settlement.

CASH IS HARD TO FIND

BH River Marina Plan Stalls

By JIM DeLAND
Assistant City Editor

Plans for a Benton Harbor city marina on the St. Joseph river appear stalled indefinitely because of a lack of funds.

An engineering report on the project was accepted by Michigan's natural resources commission last week, but a Department of Natural Resources (DNR) spokesman has told the city he can not state when funds to build the marina will be available.

In a letter to Benton Harbor City Manager Charles

Morrison, DNR waterways division chief Keith Wilson said that in the absence of federal assistance, cost of the project would have to be shared by the city and DNR and that his department would probably have as much trouble finding the money as Benton Harbor would.

The engineering report by the natural resources commission actually contains two separate plans for the marina, which is proposed for the east bank of the St. Joseph river between the present boat-launching site on the south and Bond street on the north.

The plan favored by the city is estimated to cost $2,931,000 and calls for 236 slips. The facility basically would consist of main piers extending approximately 300 feet into the river with finger piers running parallel to the shoreline.

An alternate plan estimated at $1,839,000 would consist only of finger piers projecting directly from the riverbank about 100 feet with a total of only 97 slips.

Both plans would include shoreline protection and support facilities including a service building, parking area, electric and water hookups, fueling station and a sewage pump-out operation.

Robert J. Olson, project engineer for the waterways division, said the alternate plan would be more expensive on a per-slip basis, but that his department doubted the larger plan would be approved either by the U.S. Corps of Engineers or the DNR hydrological survey division because of the length of the main piers.

"We're practically 100 per cent sure Plan II would be acceptable, but we doubt that Plan I would be," he said.

Olson said a compromise between the two plans was possible, but that efforts to reach such a compromise were unlikely until funds become available to build the marina.

He also noted that the Benton Harbor project would have to compete for funds with numerous proposals from other areas in Michigan that previously were accepted by the natural resources commission.

Berrien Planners Ask Aid Spotting Industrial Sites

A map indicating many of Berrien county's potential industrial sites is now being prepared by the county planning department staff and should be sent to local governmental units in the near future.

But Planning Director Charles Eckenstahler, noted there has been a reluctance on the part of many units to respond to the county's survey, and asked the help of local officials in pinpointing industrial sites.

Assistant Planner Brian Sott noted at yesterday's county planning commission meeting that about 25 of Berrien's 39 municipal units have responded to the survey, conducted during the past five months, and also asked for local help to insure a comprehensive listing of industrial sites.

The inventory is one element of the county's Overall Economic Development plan and is being compiled to enhance more industrial growth in Berrien county by showing industries where they might locate, what types of services are available and other information sought by industries.

Sott noted data provided by local units will be cataloged to provide a central source of information on prime industrial sites. Commission members stressed that the map now being prepared is a preliminary one, and municipalities which would like to have their industrial sites included in the final draft should contact the planning office.

"It's a type of free advertising for each municipality," Eckenstahler noted.

POLICE ROUNDUP

SJ Man Arrested On U.S. Charge

St. Joseph police reported they arrested a 23-year-old man Wednesday on a federal warrant for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Lodged in the county jail on the warrant charge is William L. Blosser, 23. He gave an address of 810 Church street, St. Joseph. Police reported Blosser is to be picked up by FBI agents today.

City police made the arrest after a computer check by Berrien sheriff's deputies revealed the warrant. Blosser was alleged to have fled prosecution for passing bad checks in another state, according to police. The computer check was made while city police were investigating a traffic accident that occurred earlier this year.

Three men were arrested Wednesday after they tried to sell an allegedly stolen citizens' band radio; according to Benton Harbor police.

Arrested on charges of possession of stolen property were Terry O. Kyles, 20, of Napier Manor apartments, 777 Napier avenue, Chester Dossott, 22, of 1232 Highland avenue, both of Benton township, and Larry J. Clabin, 23, of 855 Edgemoor avenue, Benton Harbor.

Det. Sgt. Sam Watson said the arrests were made following investigation after officers received a tip of three men trying to sell a CB radio about 3 p.m.

A theft reported to St. Joseph police was:

A theft reported to Berrien sheriff's deputies was:

BRIDGES AHEAD OF SCHEDULE: Work on new bridges linking Benton Harbor (foreground) and St. Joseph (top) is running ahead of schedule according to spokesman for Walter Toebe Co. of Wixom, Mich., the contractor. All sub-structural work is completed except one pier on west side of main channel and structural steel work will be started in early December if steel shipment arrives on schedule and weather cooperates. Depending on weather, construction work could proceed throughout the winter. The two bridges and their roadways are scheduled for completion in August, 1977, at cost of $9.2 million. ## Bendix Forecasts Record 1st Quarter Sales, Profit

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — Bendix Corp., a key supplier to the auto industry, said it expects record sales and earnings in the first quarter and full fiscal year of 1976 in the wake of a strong 1975 fiscal report released Wednesday.

Bendix said net income for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 was $79.8 million of $4.89 a share on revenues of $2.61 billion. A year ago, the comparable figures were $75.8 million, or $4.65 a share on $2.48 billion.

Board chairman W. Michael Blumenthal said Bendix expects to benefit from the "general improvement in the economy, particularly in the automotive and shelter fields."

Blumenthal said the firm's performance in the auto parts field was "quite good considering the continued softness in the North American new car and trucks market."

Bendix manufactures brakes, filters, spark plugs, power steering units and electrical system components for the auto industry.

Its diversified divisions include aerospace-electronics and industrial-energy lines.

A 28-year-old St. Joseph man has been charged with negligent homicide in connection with a Nov. 3 traffic accident in which a pedestrian was killed, St. Joseph police reported.

Arrested Wednesday on the negligent homicide charge was Frederick L. Gavin, 28, of 3610 Lake Shore drive, St. Joseph. Gavin was arraigned in Berrien Fifth District court and demanded examination on the charge. He was released on $2,000 personal recognizance bond.

He is accused of being the driver of an auto that struck and killed William Hutchinson, 46, of 723 Broad street, St. Joseph. Hutchinson was killed while walking across Main street at the intersection of Broad street.

Ridgeway Resident Lodges Complaint Against Ausco

St. Joseph police reported they were called Wednesday night to investigate another complaint of smoke pollution allegedly coming from Auto Specialties Manufacturing Co.

The complaint was filed about 11 p.m. by Harold Schudler of 429 Ridgeway. According to a police report, soot from the company was blowing towards Schudler's house.

Schudler reportedly told police he had the Michigan Department of Health investigate the situation at an earlier date and they told him to contact police every time the problem arose so a record could be kept as to the number of times it occurred.

Officers reported they contacted employees at Auto Specialties last night and were told they would try to correct the situation immediately.

The problem has been brought before the St. Joseph city commission and City Manager G.W. Hoppler had previously said Auto Specialties officials have assured him they are working to rectify the situation.

On Sept. 17 Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Fredericks of 388 Upton drive also filed a similar complaint with city police against Auto Specialties.

One of the main Auto Specialties plants is located at 643 Graves street and has been singled out by nearby residents as the location of the pollution problem.

CASH IS HARD TO FIND

BH River Marina Plan Stalls

By JIM DeLAND
Assistant City Editor

Plans for a Benton Harbor river marina on the St. Joseph river appear stalled indefinitely because of a lack of funds.

An engineering report on the project was accepted by Michigan's natural resources commission last week, but a Department of Natural Resources (DNR) spokesman has told the city he can not state when funds to build the marina will be available.

In a letter to Benton Harbor City Manager Charles

Morrison, DNR waterways division chief Keith Wilson said that in the absence of federal assistance, cost of the project would have to be shared by the city and DNR and that his department would probably have as much trouble finding the money as Benton Harbor would.

The engineering report by the natural resources commission actually contains two separate plans for the marina, which is proposed for the east bank of the St. Joseph river between the present boat-launching site on the south and Bond street on the north.

The plan favored by the city is estimated to cost $2,931,000 and calls for 286 slips. The facility basically would consist of main piers extending approximately 300 feet into the river with finger piers running parallel to the shoreline.

An alternate plan estimated at $1,639,000 would consist only of finger piers projecting directly from the riverbank about 100 feet with a total of only 97 slips.

Both plans would include shoreline protection and support facilities including a service building, parking area, electric and water hookups, fueling station and a sewage pump-out operation.

Robert J. Olson, project engineer for the waterways division, said the alternate plan would be more expensive on a per-slip basis, but that his department doubted the larger plan would be approved either by the U.S. Corps of Engineers or the DNR hydrological survey division because of the length of the main piers.

"We're practically 100 per cent sure Plan II would be acceptable, but we doubt that Plan I would be," he said.

Olson said a compromise between the two plans was possible, but that efforts to reach such a compromise were unlikely until funds become available to build the marina.

He also noted that the Benton Harbor project would have to compete for funds with numerous proposals from other areas in Michigan that previously were accepted by the natural resources commission.

Berrien Planners Ask Aid Spotting Industrial Sites

A map indicating many of Berrien county's potential industrial sites is now being prepared by the county planning department staff and should be sent to local governmental units in the near future.

But Planning Director Charles Eckenstahler noted there has been a reluctance on the part of many units to respond to the county's survey, and asked the help of local officials in pinpointing industrial sites.

Assistant Planner Brian Sadt noted at yesterday's county planning commission meeting that about 25 of Berrien's 39 municipal units have responded to the survey, conducted during the past five months, and also asked for local help to insure a comprehensive listing of industrial sites.

The inventory is one element of the county's Overall Economic Development plan and is being compiled to enhance more industrial growth in Berrien county by showing industries where they might locate, what types of services are available and other information sought by industries.

Sadt noted data provided by local units will be cataloged to provide a central source of information on prime industrial sites. Commission members stressed that the map now being prepared is a preliminary one, and municipalities which would like to have their industrial sites included in the final draft should contact the planning office.

"It's a type of free advertising for each municipality," Eckenstahler noted.

POLICE ROUNDUP

SJ Man Arrested On U.S. Charge

St. Joseph police reported they arrested a 23-year-old man Wednesday on a federal warrant for unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Lodged in the county jail on the warrant charge is William L. Blosser, 23. He gave an address of 810 Church street, St. Joseph. Police reported Blosser is to be picked up by FBI agents today.

City police made the arrest after a computer check by Berrien sheriff's deputies revealed the warrant. Blosser was alleged to have fled prosecution for passing bad checks in another state, according to police. The computer check was made while city police were investigating a traffic accident that occurred earlier this year.

Three men were arrested Wednesday after they tried to sell an allegedly stolen citizens' band radio, according to Benton Harbor police.

Arrested on charges of possession of stolen property were Terry O. Kyles, 20, of Napier Manor apartments, 777 Napier avenue, Chester Dosssett, 22, of 1232 Highland avenue, both of Benton township, and Larry J. Clabin, 23, of 855 Edgumbe avenue, Benton Harbor.

Det. Sgt. Sam Watson said the arrests were made following investigation after officers received a tip of three men trying to sell a CB radio about 3 p.m.

A theft reported to St. Joseph police was:

A theft reported to Berrien sheriff's deputies was:

A theft reported to Benton Harbor police was:

BRIDGES AHEAD OF SCHEDULE: Work on new bridges linking Benton Harbor (foreground) and St. Joseph (top) is running ahead of schedule according to spokesman for Walter Toebe Co. of Wixom, Mich., the contractor. All sub-structural work is completed except one pier on west side of main channel and structural steel work will be started in early December if steel shipment arrives on schedule and weather cooperates. Depending on weather, construction work could proceed throughout the winter. The two bridges and their roadways are scheduled for completion in August, 1977, at cost of $9.2 million. ## Flattering Fashions

NEW YORK — (NEA) — "Maude" is independent, outspoken and dauntless. If the TV image is accurate, she's also a large size woman and, as such, she represents one-sixth of America's female population.

It's a goodly number of women who, until recently, had little to choose from in clothes. And what there was was functional rather than flattering.

"But no matter what age or income bracket group the large woman falls into, she wants to look pretty, like every other woman," says Marvin Rosen, sales manager of Lady Russ, a New York sportswear house specializing in large sizes.

Now she can, and still cope with her particular figure problems. She's a tall, generally well-proportioned woman. And though she also may be buxom, her "heaviest area is roughly 17 inches down from under the arm," explains Laura Ferraro, eastern regional sales manager of Mr. Alex, a California-based firm. "In other words, her hips are full. To camouflage that, tops are cut long and extend below the hip line. If we put pockets in the hip area of a vest or a jacket, we'll use other detailing closer to the shoulder to catch the eye and de-emphasize them."

"Most of our jackets and shirts, which are worn outside the pant or skirt, are done in a princess line for a slenderizing effect," she says. And many have side slits for added mobility. To satisfy the large woman's desire for a contemporary look, designers adapt "missy" or 8-10 size concepts to her needs. A roll-sleeve jacket in a "big top," say, with raglan sleeves. Or a mock-fly front on a pair of slacks which pull on and are made of knit polyester for give and stretch.

Actually, the pull-on waist on skirts and pants is standard for the big woman. Anything that constricts the waist is avoided, but there's always room for deception.

Blauses are cut full, without back darts, and vests are always long, never the waist that cuts the figure midway.

The woman who wears a size 36-40 inch top likes to wear tank tops or skivvys as well as anyone, and they work well for the layered look under-jackets or vests, as part of blouse and shell sets.

"This customer is wearing a lot of prints now, primarily in tops, because until now she couldn't get them," explains Barry Rothenberg, division manager of Lady Fairfield. "She'd see her size ten friend in lively prints and wonder, why do I always have to wear navy, black or brown?"

Though she still tends to choose solid colors in a skirt or pant, the spectrum is vivid: bright yellow, geranium, raspberry, even white, a longtime bugaboo for the ample figure.

"Rust was our big color this season," Rothenberg says. And Lady Devon, another New York large-size manufacturer, did well with mix and match separates in eggplant and potato combinations.

Don't be afraid of dyeing! This is a relatively simple procedure, and if you follow the dye makers directions carefully you can obtain wonderful results. Many times, we have an old spread or set of slipcovers whose material is still good but a little faded. With your washing machine as your helper, you can change all that. If you like your present color scheme, buy the same color dye and you will spark up your still useful items. When the dyeing process is finished, be sure to clean out the drum of your washing machine with a proper detergent, so that it is as clean as before — if this is properly done, you can't even tell that the machine was used for the dyeing purpose.

Color tastefully done in a home can create an exciting look. You will find an assortment of colorful fabrics, wall coverings and paints at WALTER'S PAINT & WALLPAPER, 313 Main St., St. Joseph. Or a mock-fly front on a pair of slacks which pull on and are made of knit polyester for give and stretch. Actually, the pull-on waist on skirts and pants is standard for the big woman. Anything that constricts the waist is avoided, but there's always room for deception.

Blazers are cut full, without back darts, and vests are always long, never the weskit that cuts the figure midway.

The woman who wears a size 38-46 inch top likes to wear tank tops or skivvys as well as anyone, and they work well for the layered look under jackets or vests, and as part of blouse and shell sets.

"This customer is wearing a lot of prints now, primarily in tops, because until now she couldn't get them," explains Barry Rothenberg, division manager of Lady Fairfield. "She'd see her size ten friend in lively prints and wonder, why do I always have to wear navy, black or brown?"

Though she still tends to choose solid colors in a skirt or pant, the spectrum is vivid: bright yellow, geranium, raspberry, even white, a longtime bugaboo for the ample figure. "Rust was our big color this season," Rothenberg says. And Lady Devon, another New York large-size manufacturer, did well with mix and match separates in eggplant - and - potato combinations.

Don't be afraid of dyeing! This is a relatively simple procedure, and if you follow the dye makers directions carefully you can obtain wonderful results. Many times, we have an old spread or set of slip-covers whose material is still good but a little faded. With your washing machine as your helper, you can change all that. If you like your present color scheme, buy the same color dye and you will spark up your still useful items. When the dyeing process is finished, be sure to clean out the drum of your washing machine with a proper detergent, so that it is as clean as before — if this is properly done, you can't even tell that the machine was used for the dyeing purpose.

RELATIONSHIPS-READING-TRAVEL-MEDICINE

Variety Of Topics For AAUW

By MARYANNE BUTT
Staff Writer

Parent-child relationships, reading, learning patterns, medical problems of women, and traveling by freighter were discussed by four members of the Benton Harbor-St. Joseph Branch of American Association of University Women at the group's meeting Nov. 11.

"Members' Own Night" was held at Fairplain Presbyterian church.

Speakers, and AAUW members, were Ruth Niewyk, Kathryn S. Rothert, Dr. Barbara Green and Alice Butcher Finch.

"Unlike almost all other institutions of civilization, the parent-child relationship seems to have remained unchanged," according to Ruth Niewyk, an authorized instructor in Family Involvement Training (FIT), a program in communication skills for parents.

"Almost universally parents today rely on the same methods of raising children and dealing with problems in their families that were used by their own parents," she said.

FIT is a training program for today's parents, designed to teach them the attitudes and skills necessary in effective parent-child relationships.

"The program is an educational experience for parents that not only presents information and concepts but also provides actual training in basic human relationship skills in the family," Mrs. Niewyk said.

She said through research and clinical experience, the ingredients of a helping relationship have emerged, and perhaps the most essential of these ingredients is the "language of acceptance." Parents who feel accepting toward their children and are able to communicate their acceptance verbally are the parents who have an open positive helping relationship with their children.

"If we examine the way that we respond to our children when they approach us with a problem or feelings we find that most parents respond in a way that communicates non-acceptance," Mrs. Niewyk said. The FIT classes use an exercise to help parents recognize what kind of verbal response they use when their children come to them with feelings or problems.

Ninety per cent of all parents will respond in one of 12 ways, according to Mrs. Niewyk. They are: 1) ordering or commanding;

2) warning, threatening; 3) exhorting, moralizing; 4) advising, giving solutions; 5) lecturing, teaching; 6) judging, blaming; 7) praising, agreeing; 8) name-calling, ridiculing, shaming; 9) analyzing, diagnosing; 10) reassuring, sympathizing; 11) questioning, and 12) distracting, humoring.

These typical 12 responses tend to close the door to communication about problems and feelings, she said.

There are at least four other responses all of which communicate acceptance and understanding of the person with the problem either verbally or non-verbally or both, she pointed out. These four ways are non-intervention — allowing the child to work out his own solutions to a problem without rushing to the rescue or giving a solution; passive listening — silence, empathetic "grunts," eye contact and focusing attention on the child; door openers — invitations to the child to say more; and active listening, in which the parent's response feeds back only what the parent feels the sender's message meant.

Mrs. Niewyk said that when a child's behavior makes a parent annoyed, frustrated or resentful, 99 per cent of parents will confront the child with a message which either sends a solution to the child or is a put down. A parent should simply tell a child how some unacceptable behavior makes the parent feel, she said.

Kathryn S. Rothert, coordinator of reading services for the Benton Harbor Area schools, said "Children will learn to read when it starts to mean something to them, when the reading material becomes productive to the reader."

A good reading design helps to broaden horizons in reading material and helps to alert a child or older student to reading possibilities, she said.

Each child has a combination of learning modalities, according to Mrs. Rothert, regardless of ability, and reading is taught in categories, sight reading, rote reading and the phonetic approach, which also includes linguistics. Each area of learning modalities and instruction is important, she said.

Looking people, children, on books is great, she said, but it's a hard job. The interest in reading needs to be encouraged at home as well as at school.

Reading should be fun, and treasured as a worthwhile leisure activity. Reading is "tasting the world through books," she said.

"Think of the magnificence of the human mind," she said, "to have developed a set of pictures that allow us to read thoughts of another person though he is not present. With reading a person's entire life can be changed, spiritually, emotionally, economically, linguistically, all because of 26 symbols."

Dr. Barbara Green, who practices obstetrics and gynecology in St. Joseph, answered questions at the meeting dealing with women's health concerns.

When asked if discomforts of menopause could be tolerated, would it be more desirable than medication, she said it is entirely up to the individual. Hormones do generally make women more comfortable, but what's severe discomfort to one may not be to another. Many women do not need hormones during menopause, and others do, she said.

She was asked if she considered taking the pill during menopause a good idea. People on pills are watched, she said, and if a side effect such as high blood pressure results, they are advised of the situation and often quit taking the pill. She added that in this day and age, there are many other forms of birth control for women of that age that are more desirable.

She said that tubal ligation shouldn't have any side effects, in response to a question. Nothing is done to the hormonal set up of the woman.

When asked if women should use estrogen after menopause, she said that some women are more comfortable if they are continued on estrogen, but it can be lessened, because the woman won't need as much. She said in her practice she goes by the individual and how she responds.

In response to another question, Dr. Green said that it can take from one month to eight weeks for a woman's cycle to normalize after going off the birth control pill. However, she added, in a few extreme cases, it has been known to take as long as six months.

She said she has seen no connection between breast cancer and the birth control pill in her practice. High blood pressure occasionally occurs when a woman is on the pill, she said, but this could also be hereditary rather than a result of the pill.

Alice Butcher Finch, speaking on "Are You Freight," said, "Yes, indeed, and second class freight at that. The ship makes port when inanimate objects need to be delivered, not at the convenience of the passengers. And yet the passengers are guests, who eat at the captain's table and have the run of the ship. The chances are that a person will have better quarters and better food than on a cruise liner."

Mrs. Finch and her husband have traveled by freighter throughout the world each year for 20 years.

A person planning a cruise will need to obtain a passport and should go to the local health department to find out about inoculations required to enter various countries, she said.

Mrs. Finch said a person contemplating a cruise should determine: 1) Where he wants to go; 2) what kind of people he wants to meet; 3) what the weather will be like; 4) what the ticket includes; 5) what type of entertainment there will be (on a freighter he'll probably have to make his own); 6) what the meal hours are; 7) what the cabins are like and what their layout is, and 8) what shore tours are offered (never set foot in a taxi before you've settled the amount of the fare).

Also, 9) how many passengers there will be; 10) how old the ship is; 11) what the nationality of the captain and the crew is; 12) what types of clothes are needed; how many formal nights are planned; 13) who should be tipped and what the tipping scale is; 14) if credit cards can be used, on ship and shore (many ships prefer personal checks); 15) where he can park a car and at what cost, and 16) what the refund policy is.

Gardening Is The Favorite

What's America's favorite hobby?

If your answer is gardening, you're right. And it's followed by stamp collecting in the runner-up spot, according to "Mechanix Illustrated," which reports on the nation's leading hobbies.

Did you know that bird-watching enthusiasts have grown tenfold in number in the past decade? And there are now about 7,000 fish in home aquariums for every dog in the United States — or a total of about two billion fish.

Retail hobby-craft sales jumped from $652 million in 1965, to $1.3 billion in 1974, according to the magazine and two out of every five Americans now practice a craft.

A major new hobby with sales increasing a whopping 120 per cent annually is acrylic crafting. This is transforming plastic sheets into furniture and decorations. Among other hot hobbies is model railroading;

the largest manufacturer reports 50 per cent sales increases every year since 1970. Kiting is on the rise, too, with more than 4,000 enthusiasts turning up at last year's annual New York Kite Festival. Kite sales have jumped 50 per cent in the past two years.

Photography, coin collecting, jigsaw puzzles, do-it-yourself projects, antiques, magic, historic battle games, model airplanes and model racing cars are some of the more popular pastimes.

WINTER WEATHER: When it's coat weather, this wrap coat reverses from gray wool flannel to jet black cire. For all its drama, the coat is essentially simple and wearable, an all-purpose, rain-or-shine coat with easy raglan sleeves. The soft fur fiber-and-wool blend takes the best from East and West. The funnel collar and four pockets are Oriental; single-breasted closing is Western.

Gardening Is The Favorite

What's America's favorite hobby?

If your answer is gardening, you're right. And it's followed by stamp collecting in the runner-up spot, according to "Mechanix Illustrated," which reports on the nation's leading hobbies.

Did you know that bird-watching enthusiasts have grown tenfold in number in the past decade? And there are now about 7,000 fish in home aquariums for every dog in the United States — or a total of about two billion fish.

Retail hobby-craft sales jumped from $652 million in 1965 to $1.3 billion in 1974, according to the magazine and two out of every five Americans now practice a craft.

A major new hobby with sales increasing a whopping 120 per cent annually is acrylic craft. This is transforming plastic sheets into furniture and decorations. Among other hot hobbies is model railroading;

the largest manufacturer reports 50 per cent sales increases every year since 1970. Kiting is on the rise, too, with more than 4,000 enthusiasts turning up at last year's annual New York Kite Festival. Kite sales have jumped 50 per cent in the past two years.

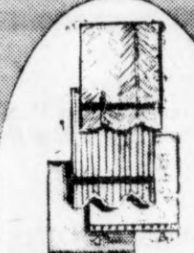

Photography, coin collecting, jigsaw puzzles, do-it-yourself projects, antiques, magic, historic battle games, model airplanes and model racing cars are some of the more popular pastimes.

Animal Shelter Is 'Home'

Dear Ann Landers: Please print this letter and do thousands of dogs and cats a favor.

Dear Ex-Dog-Owner: Today, I found the dog you dumped. She was standing in the middle of a busy intersection, staring at each passerby, hoping her "beloved" master would return for her.

You probably thought someone like me would adopt the poor thing. Well, I did pick her up, but now she is at the animal shelter, because my family already has three dogs.

Why didn't you take her to the shelter in the first place? Don't you know that the majority of dogs dumped never find a home? Instead they face starvation, mistreatment, or death under the wheels of a car or truck.

At the shelter your dog will be fed and cared for and an effort made to find a new, responsible owner. At worst, she will be painlessly put to sleep — instead of suffering a tragic death on her own. — Tired Of Injustice To Animals

Dear Tired: Thank you for saying again what has been said before in this space. Some people need to see something four or five times before it sinks in.

Hate Dimples

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing to find out if there is any way a person can get rid of dimples.

I'm a girl, 14, and sick and tired of people commenting on how "cute" my dimples are. Is it possible that a plastic surgeon might fill in the holes in my cheeks? Would it cost much? How much pain would be involved?

If you say it can be done I'll start to save my money now. — Hate The Holes In My Face

Dear H.: The holes in your face are fine. It's the holes in your head you should be concerned about.

I've had dimples all my life and can tell you they've never caused me any problems. Your real trouble is that you don't know how to accept a compliment. Go to work on THAT hang-up, honey, and leave your face alone.

No Worry

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I had a double-ring ceremony when we were married in the Lutheran Church

16 years ago. I noticed recently that Claude wasn't wearing his wedding ring. I asked why. He told me that last month a man he worked with lost his hand when his ring got caught in the machinery. I asked him why he hadn't told me about the accident when it happened. He said he didn't want to upset me.

A few days ago when I saw Claude's ring in the bureau drawer I felt very sad. That evening I asked him if he'd wear his ring on a chain around his neck to remind him of our wedding day. He said, "That's a crazy idea. Forget it."

Now I'm beginning to wonder if perhaps Claude has met someone at work who doesn't know he has a wife and four children. He's home every night and never goes anywhere without me, yet I'm — A Little Worried

Dear Worried: A father of four children doesn't need to wear his wedding ring around his neck as a reminder that he is married. The grocery bills are reminder enough.

A man who is at home every night and never goes anywhere without his wife is not likely to be fooling around. So get off his back, honey, and don't give him

Alcoholism Is On Rise Among American Women

Alcoholism is a serious health problem — one that doesn't discriminate.

According to one of the nation's largest insurance companies, women increasingly are being numbered among the estimated 100,000 "new" alcoholics each year.

What's worse, about 68 per cent more women are dying from alcoholic-connected disorders than did 15 years ago.

But even these grim figures don't tell the whole story. That's because there's been reluctance to cite alcoholism as a cause of death when it was possible to attribute death to another cause. The result has been considerable under-reporting of deaths due to alcoholism.

The growing incidence of alcoholism among women, some researchers believe, may reflect not only growing numbers, but changing social attitudes as well. In today's social climate, women may feel more confident that their problem will be recognized as an illness, rather than a severe moral lapse — one that for many years was considered more serious for women than for men. As a result, they may seek help more frequently.

Medical science does not yet know exactly why some people become alcoholics while others, who may be heavier drinkers, do not. Research continues, and there is evidence to show that alcoholism may stem from a combination of physical and emotional factors.

Since alcoholism endangers health, job security and, especially, family relationships, the insurance company urges awareness of early danger signs and drinking patterns that temporarily obscure the problem and postpone treatment.

Drinking alone and in secret, drinking in the morning, loss of memory after drinking are some of the serious warning signals that indicate help is needed.

Often, family members are the first to recognize these symptoms. In many cases, the woman who is an alcoholic and does not work outside the home has only her family to contend with. There are no boss and no co-workers to notice absences or inferior work, which often indicate a drinking problem. And because for many hours of the day she may be alone or with small children, she is often able to hide her drinking even from her husband.

When a family becomes aware that one of its members has a drinking problem, it is natural to try to cope with the problem themselves. But alcoholism generally cannot be successfully handled without help from outside. Various kinds of treatment are available.

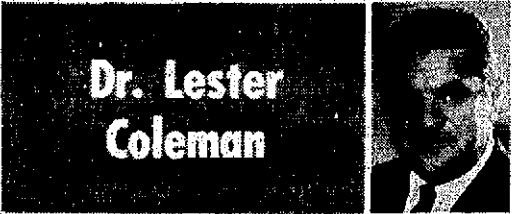

The insurance company recommends first consulting the family doctor. After a thorough evaluation, a physician may prescribe drugs to ease the alcoholic's discomforts and make the person more receptive to further methods of treatment.

Alcoholics Anonymous is one group that has had remarkable success with thousands of alcoholics. The only requirement for joining is a serious desire to stop drinking. AA also has two associated groups — Al-Anon, Family groups and Alateans — that work with family members and teen-age children of alcoholics to help them deal more effectively with the stresses of their family life. Since its formation in 1935, AA claims that about 75 per cent of those who have cooperated with the program have recovered.

In some cases psychotherapy may be recommended. Its purpose is to help the alcoholic recognize problems and deal with them without the use of alcohol.

Alcoholics can recover. But, first, they must recognize that they suffer from the disease, and then they must seek help.

Dr. Lester Coleman

I teach Health Science in high school. There is always great interest in mononucleosis on the part of the students. The question came up as to the relationship between tonsils and this disease. Is there any?

Miss D.W., Mass.

Dear Miss W.: Many cases of infectious mononucleosis begin with a sore throat and tender glands in the neck. Almost always the tonsils, if present, are red and angry. Consequently, it is often difficult to distinguish between an acute attack of tonsillitis and mononucleosis.

Later, other symptoms may point to "mono" and then the diagnosis is substantiated by a study of the blood. A positive "heterophil" test establishes the diagnosis.

Tonsillitis is usually caused by bacteria. Mononucleosis is caused by a virus. It is not usually considered a serious disease, and sometimes its benign character is taken too casually. This should not be done because, in some instances, severe weakness and other complications do occur.

It is certainly a "nuisance disease" because of the length of time it takes to recover one's vitality. Nevertheless, it is a disease that must be respected. It may be of interest to you and your students to know that a group of doctors at Stanford University have come to the conclusion that people with tonsils may be more susceptible to mononucleosis than those who have undergone tonsillectomy.

They studied a rather large number of cases in college students and concluded that "prior tonsillectomy may reduce the possibility of contracting mononucleosis."

Do children always have the same blood type as one of their parents?

Mr. H.H.V., Minn.

Dear Mr. V.: Children almost always inherit the blood type of one of their parents. However, some children can inherit another blood type, one that may have been carried by a parent through the genetic background.

The major blood groups are A, AB, B and O. When both parents are group O, the children are group O and never any of the other groups.

When parents are group O and A, the children are O and A, and never B or AB.

Similar combinations, 10 in all, can produce certain blood groups and eliminate others. There are also sub-groupings of blood, known as M and N. These, too, have interesting hereditary patterns. In fact, the sub-groups are sometimes used to prove or disprove paternity.

For a really different-tasting bread-crumbs coating, sprinkle in a little sage or poultry seasoning.

An Indiana reader wants to know how to play a bridge hand with no king of diamonds.

The answer is that gremlins sometimes get into a newspaper and eat the king of diamonds. In that case it is up to the reader to find that hand that needs that king and see if the article can then make sense. If it doesn't the gremlins have really outsmarted us.

Drinking alone and in secret, drinking in the morning, loss of memory after drinking are some of the serious warning signals that indicate help is needed.

Often, family members are the first to recognize these symptoms. In many cases, the woman who is an alcoholic and does not work outside the home has only her family to contend with. There are no boss and no co-workers to notice absences or inferior work, which often indicate a drinking problem. And because for many hours of the day she may be alone or with small children, she is often able to hide her drinking even from her husband.

When a family becomes aware that one of its members has a drinking problem, it is natural to try to cope with the problem themselves. But alcoholism generally cannot be successfully handled without help from outside. Various kinds of treatment are available.

The insurance company recommends first consulting the family doctor. After a thorough evaluation, a physician may prescribe drugs to ease the alcoholic's discomforts and make the person more receptive to further methods of treatment.

Alcoholics Anonymous is one group that has had remarkable success with thousands of alcoholics. The only requirement for joining is a serious desire to stop drinking. AA also has two associated groups — Al-Anon Family groups and Alateens — that work with family members and teen-age children of alcoholics to help them deal more effectively with the stresses of their family life. Since its formation in 1935, AA claims that about 75 per cent of those who have cooperated with the program have recovered.

In some cases psychotherapy may be recommended. Its purpose is to help the alcoholic recognize problems and deal with them without the use of alcohol.

Alcoholics can recover. But, first, they must recognize that they suffer from the disease, and then they must seek help.

French Designer St. Laurent Late T-Shirt Convert

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The once lowly T-shirt, now the fastest selling fashion item since the dungaree, has finally attracted Paris designer Yves St. Laurent.

T-ING OFF: Barbara Louis, president of Yves St. Laurent Tricots, a New York company with exclusive rights to produce St. Laurent knitwear in this country, models one of the new Laurent T-shirts in her New York office. St. Laurent has become latest couturier to plunge into T-shirt market. (AP Wirephoto)

Hot on the heels of other American and European fashion designers, St. Laurent has become the latest couturier to plunge into the somewhat off-beat market. Pierre Cardin, Givenchy, Ralph Lauren, Calvin Klein and others have been producing T-shirts for about two years. St. Laurent, one of the world's most influential designers, had been resisting. "He just felt that now was the time for T-shirts," said Barbara Louis, president of Yves Saint Laurent Tricots, a New York company with exclusive rights to produce St. Laurent knitwear in this country. "He's thinking of T-shirts as a life-style. He doesn't worry whether he's on the tail end or not, because T-shirts can be so useful."

And they can be. In a variety of fabrics and trims, including fur and sparkling stones, the T-shirt can be worn by a beach-comber or an opera fan. It can be dressed up or down just by the simple addition of jewelry or scarves.

The St. Laurent T-shirt, emblazoned with the designer's name on horizontal lines, is expected to be in American stores beginning in December. St. Laurent is marketing the T-shirts only in America and did not show them at his recent spring line presentation in Paris.

The 100 per cent cotton short-sleeved version with rounded neck will sell for $18. The shirt also appears in long sleeves (for $20), V-neck, scoop neck and with broad stripes.

One of the short-sleeved versions bears the legend, "Yves, I love you," in three shades of pink and surrounded by hearts on a white background.

Other designers also use their names to weave a pattern on the T-shirts. Calvin Klein, for example, has his name stenciled on the sleeve. Givenchy has embroidered "Gs" on his shirts. Ralph Lauren uses his company's polo player logo on his tops.

Klein's short-sleeved shirts start at $11. A striped boat neck version sells for $26, while his new T-shirt dress will sell for $38.

Cardin's cotton T-shirts sell for slightly more — $20 to $26. They have been on the market for about two years and are made in 12 different designs.

Givenchy has had the garment on the market for over two years. The original design was short-sleeved with four "Gs" embroidered in front, selling for about $14. Then Givenchy designed a square neck shirt with his name spelled out once across the top and later vertically across the left side. A floor-length variation with slashes up the sides is being advertised for Christmas.

T-shirts first appeared on the market as men's underwear. But soon the white cotton shirt was dyed and basked into a myriad of colors, women's sizes appeared and catchy sayings, names, motifs and designs began popping out on every street in America. That was about three years ago.

Some of the more commercial shirts advertise everything from the local car wash to a Broadway musical, from Catalina sunsets to marijuana leaves. The Superman logo, posters from old horror movies and the faces of famous, and not so famous people are but a few of the items that can be reprinted on shirts.

"T-shirts are an extension of painting," said Peter Ligeti, an actor and photographer who has designed his own line of T-shirts. Ligeti's body contour shirts of cotton interlock sell for about $13 at boutiques and department stores here.

The designs, he said, are his own. They consist of simple geometric patterns and the reproduction of some of his engravings.

Ligeti thinks T-shirts still have a few more profitable years on the American market. "I think we're in a very confused fashion period," she said. "and during a confused period, a woman goes into a classic thing, whatever it might be. Jeans and T-shirts are a part of it. Practical they are. Fashionable they ain't."

Amtrak Eyes Auto Ferrying On Trains

WASHINGTON (AP) — Train travelers will be able to take their cars along on many of their trips if Amtrak and the Auto-Train Corp. agree to combine some of their operations.

Such service would relieve travelers of long drives and give them the flexibility of having their automobiles handy when they complete their train trips.

Amtrak and Auto-Train said Tuesday they will study such combinations on routes where passenger train-auto ferry service looks practical. Amtrak operates 250 passenger trains to 450 U.S. and Canadian cities every day.

Auto-Train already carries passengers and their cars on trains between Washington and Florida and between Louisville, Ky., and Florida. The study will give special consideration to beginning such service between Chicago and Denver.

Trains providing the service carry passengers in regular railroad passenger cars and their automobiles in special enclosed railroad cars.

Combined operation with Amtrak would give Auto-Train an opportunity to expand its profitable Washington-Florida service to other routes at a low cost.

It would give Amtrak a way to meet congressional pressure to offer auto-ferry service and reduce its operating deficit.

Yearly Budget Juggling Battles Obscured NYC Deficits

By LEE MITGANG
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — An annual feature of New York City's rough-and-tumble politics has been the budget battle between mayors and the city's chief fiscal officers, the independently elected comptrollers.

The political stakes in those battles have always been the mayoralty, and Mayor Abraham D. Beame, when he was comptroller in the 1960s, fought long and loud with former Mayor John V. Lindsay over budgets. But in June 1974, Comptroller Harrison J. Goldin opened a battle with Mayor Beame that became more bitter than any in memory.

Many now say the Goldin-Beame rift and the resulting blow to investor confidence in the city's management and candor, marks the beginning of a year- and a half - old chain of crises that has pushed the city to the edge of financial collapse.

In his opening shot on June 8, 1974, Goldin claimed that the 1975 Beame budget proposal was $87 million in the red, and criticized $700 million in questionable budget balancing facties. "Are you suggesting that $700 million be cut from the budget?" Beame responded angrily. "If so, where do you suggest we cut?"

Four days before Goldin's comment, state Comptroller Arthur Levitt had accused the city of using hundreds of millions of borrowed dollars improperly to fund expense items such as library books, architect fees, and even interest on other bonds. Those statements brought further uneasiness to the bond market.

The next time the city went to the market — which a year later would be completely closed to it — these comments led to an 8.58 per cent interest rate on its note, the highest rate in the city's history to that date.

Beame, meanwhile, more confident after getting state approval of his $11.1-billion budget plus $270-million in new taxing authority to help balance it, hinted there might be a deficit at the end of the year but added he saw no room for budget cuts.

The Goldin-Beame rift reached new heights on Nov. 30, 1974, when Goldin charged the city's budget gap was $950 million, $250 million higher than Beame's estimates.

Three days after Goldin's comments, the city was forced to accept a new record 9.48 per cent interest rate to float a $600 million note.

Beame blamed Goldin for the high rate, saying: "It was poor judgment and unfortunate. Coming as it did before a note sale, undoubtedly it was reflected in the incredibly high interest rate."

Meanwhile Beame, prior to the note sale, ordered $100 million in budget economies including 1,500 layoffs. He rejected as "too harsh" proposals for 20,000 layoffs.

Later in December, Beame in a "Phase II" of budget austerity announced 3,725 city employees would be cut from the payrolls, bringing total job cuts in the 1975 fiscal year to nearly 8,000.

On Jan. 7, 1975, the city received one bid on a $620 million note issue, and Beame and Goldin termed the 9.4 per cent rate "unfair, unwarranted and outrageously high," adding that it "raises serious questions about the city's current treatment by lending institutions."

The city's unions, particularly the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association covering police, grew restive as Beame's austerities gathered steam. The PBA threatened strike action Jan. 15 if uniformed police were laid off.

Beame persuaded city unions to forego certain contract rights and announced no more layoffs were needed to balance his 1975 budget. But he warned on Feb. 15 that the 1976 budget due to be submitted in June would be $1.68 billion out of balance without new taxes and state and federal aid.

Meanwhile the market for city bonds on Wall Street was collapsing. Bond buyers, already jittery about the city's declining credibility, were faced with 51,000 job layoffs and raising fears of service cuts that might be dangerous to civil peace in the city.

On the night of June 10, with the city faced with default on $700 million in debts the next day, Gov. Hugh Carey introduced a new word and approximately $6,000. With many believing the city would default eventually without federal help, President Ford included the city's problems in his speeches in places as far away as Belgrade, Yugoslavia. New Yorkers "don't know how to handle money," he told that nation.

The city was saved from default again Aug. 14 when the city's banks agreed to buy any of the $275 million MAC issue that wasn't sold to private investors.

It fell to the unions to save the city from default several times in September. The unions' pension funds provided $100 million to the city to prevent a default on Sept. 5.

The state also began borrowing heavily on behalf of the city, beginning with $250 million.

The state's deepening involvement became a growing concern on Wall Street, which lowered the state's as well as the city's bond ratings several notches in September and October.

Oct. 17 was the city's narrowest escape from disaster, when hours away from default on $443 million in notes and other obligations, the Teachers Union president, Albert Shanker, agreed to spend $150 million in union retirement funds, triggering a state package that made up the balance.

But Shanker, in return for the

On Feb. 25 with the default by the state Urban Development Corp. of $104 million in notes. It was the first major government agency to fail to pay its debts on time since the Depression.

Three days later, with big city banks demanding hard facts on the city's budget health, Goldin announced cancellation of a $260 million note sale. Goldin declined the banks' request for information, stating that it "could not physically be compiled, checked and certified in the short time available."

On March 8, the city floated a $537 million bond anticipation note at 8.69 per cent. It proved to be the last time the city successfully raised money on the bond market.

On April 2, Standard & Poor's bond rating service suspended its "A" rating on the city's general obligation bonds, because of the city's "rapidly deteriorating ability to raise money in the capital markets," and "the inability or unwillingness of the major underwriting banks to continue to purchase the city's bonds and notes."

Two days later, city officials admitted that only 2,000 layoffs had been carried out under the mayor's austerity program. At the same time, the state took the heat off the city's cash crisis temporarily by advancing $400 million in revenue sharing money. Attention shifted to the 1976 budget.

Up to the last minute in June, Beame practiced the customary brinkmanship in trying to sell the state government on a $12.8 billion budget with a $641.5 million deficit. The earlier $1.68 billion budget gap estimate was lowered by $680 million by a proposed property tax hike.

This year, an unsympathetic state legislature and financial community wouldn't accept that sort of budget. Meanwhile, President Ford rejected a city request for $1 billion in aid, the first rejection of many from Washington.

Beame responded by submitting an alternative "crisis budget" of $11.9 billion involving agency into the crisis — Big MAC, a nickname for the state-authored Municipal Assistance Corp.

The formation of MAC enabled the city and state to piece together enough cash to stave off default last June, through issuance of MAC bonds backed by sales and security taxes.

Weeks later, Beame agreed reluctantly to a $12.087 billion budget for fiscal 1976, which he said would "in one cruel stroke" end the jobs of 30,000 city workers.

MAC quickly ran into trouble on the bond market in July where despite an "A-plus" rating by Standard & Poor's, the agency's first $1 billion bond offering was sold at a high 9 per cent interest.

A five-month ceasefire between Goldin and Beame ended that month, when Goldin in a confidential report said the city's "hidden deficit" — the result of years of budget juggling and questionable accounting — was $1.8 billion. City and state officials later conceded that the true deficit accumulated over the year was $3.3 billion.

Reaction to the city's 1976 austerity budget was swift from the unions. Sanitationmen, faced with 3,000 threatened layoffs, illegally struck the city for three days, and Beame agreed to reinstate them.

He also agreed to hire back 2,000 police and other city workers who had been cut as a result of the budget.

MAC officials and Gov. Carey, meanwhile, worked feverishly to convince banks and the nation's investors that the city would take the steps needed to restore fiscal integrity. Increasingly, that meant MAC and the state took over most of Mayor Beame's power over the budget.

Taxes and fares increased. Subway fares increased from 35 cents to 50 cents on July 31 and the famous nickel-Staten Island ferry ride was raised to 25 cents. Layoffs increased to

PRISON CHIEF: Inmate Workers 'Steal Us Blind'

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — A former inmate clerk in Southern Michigan Prison's resident store might be charged with illegal sales of at least a dozen television sets to inmates.

Because of the incident and past problems, Warden Charles Egler said Wednesday he will submit a plan that would oust inmate workers from the store and alter funding arrangements.

"We've had shortages before," he said. "We tried switching the resident workers every six months, but they still steal us blind."

Action has been taken to "shore up" accounting procedures and eliminate the possibility of more problems, he said.

The clerk, who is serving a 20- to 40-year term, has been segregated since investigators discovered irregularities three weeks ago.

Lt. Floyd Garrison, commanding officer of Post 41, said investigators are interviewing inmates from whom the hot sets were confiscated. They also must check prison records to determine whether other sets were illegally purchased.

Detectives at Spring Lake are checking out a post office box number reportedly used to arrange payments for the store items. According to Lt. Garrison, the sales were made by manipulating purchase order forms. Such forms are sent to the prison's business office to verify the inmate's account contains enough money. A clerk would then add other items to those approved when the form came back.

The purchaser was told to send the payment for an item to the Spring Lake address. When the clerk received notice the money was received, he would hand over the item to the buyer. Garrison said purchasers of the hot items claimed a second clerk was not involved.

The first president to be appointed by President Ford after he took office in August, 1974, was a young, gutsy professional named David Kennerly, who is undoubtedly the most talked-about White House photographer in memory.

Eleven Receive Sentences In Berrien District Court

Three men charged with armed robbery accounted for half the people who demanded preliminary examinations in Berrien Fifth District court Wednesday. Three others were bound over to Circuit court, 11 were sentenced and another was freed when a charge was dismissed.

Demanding examinations were: Dewey W. McClenore, 28, of 303 Union, Lawton, Nathan Jack Little, 18, of 428 Butternut, Watervliet and Charles W. Byars, 17, of Beechwood Trailer park, Hartford, charged with armed robbery Nov. 11 in Bainbridge township. Police allege that $250 was stolen from Lester Jones and Howard Welch by men armed with a knife and baseball bat. McClenore was jailed on $100,000 bond, while Little and Byars were released on personal recognizance bonds.

Guards Say Race Reason For Firing

FORT MADISON, Iowa (AP) — Four black guards who say they were fired at the Iowa State Penitentiary because of their race contend they were fired within four months for the same reason.

"I'll admit I did wrong," Rodney Brooks, one of the fired officers, said. "I'll admit I was late one day and the next day I called and told them I'd be late. But the point is that white guards do the same thing and aren't fired."

Brooks, dismissed a week ago for tardiness and absenteeism, said he was among "a bunch of blacks and Mexicans" hired in June to satisfy state affirmative action guidelines. Then prison officials fired most of them for minor reasons, he said.

"I know it looks bad when four black officers are dismissed in such a short time," Warden Lou Brewer said. "But it was just an exceptional situation."

"They were hired about the same time and were terminated during their probationary period when employees are expected to show ability to perform a demanding job well."

President Seeks New Nominee

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is searching for a new candidate to head the federal Home Loan Bank Board following the Senate Banking Committee's rejection of Ben B. Blackburn, an ex-Georgia congressman accused of racial insensitivity.

White House Press Secretary Ron Nissen said that when Ford nominated Blackburn, the President was unaware the Atlanta Republican had once — perhaps jokingly — recommended "public hangings" as a means of encouraging public housing tenants to pay their rent.

But after the Banking Committee rejected the nomination, panel sources said that weeks before the nomination was submitted, some senators warned presidential counselor Donald Rumsfeld that any Blackburn nomination was controversial and likely would be rejected.

The "hanging" remark, taken with other Blackburn statements and his record of voting against all civil rights bills, became a focus of the hearing on his qualifications to head the board which regulates the savings and loan industry and influences minority-group access to residential mortgages.

Cruelty Count Against Mother Is Dismissed

Child cruelty charges were dismissed against a mother yesterday, but a man allegedly living with the woman in New Buffalo was bound over to Circuit court on the charge.

Evidence presented during preliminary examinations for the pair yesterday in Berrien Fifth District court failed to prove that the woman either participated in the alleged cruelty or condoned it, said

Asst. Prosecutor Patrick Murphy.

Freed was Judy Winter, 20, of 214 East Merchant street, New Buffalo, mother of a four-year-old girl allegedly struck with a strap Oct. 26. Bound over to Circuit court on the child cruelty charge was Gilbert Rivera, 29; same address. Rivera continued free on $2,500 bond.

DURING JULY Family Welfare Rolls Dip Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government announced today that the number of persons on the nation's family welfare rolls dipped slightly in July for the third straight month, although the number of welfare families headed by jobless fathers went up again.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said there were 30,638 fewer persons receiving aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) in July, a decline of three-tenths of 1 per cent from the previous month. The department said that reduced the number of AFDC recipients to 11,269,070.

The number of families on the AFDC rolls declined a more modest one-tenth of 1 per cent, reflecting generally smaller family sizes in the United States today, the government said.

The 25 states that pay AFDC benefits to families headed by unemployed fathers reported a five-tenths of 1 per cent increase to 455,863 recipients in that category in July, up 2,675 from June.

During fiscal year 1975 which ended last June 30, AFDC rolls nudged upward 2.1 per cent but total federal, state and local government welfare spending shot up 20 per cent.

The three-tenths of 1 per cent July decline in the AFDC rolls followed on the heels of four-tenths of 1 per cent drops in both May and June.

"We are pleased with this decline," said John A. Svahn of HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service. "It appears to indicate that the sharp fluctuations of the past may be leveling off."

Total federal-state AFDC spending in July fell 1.7 per cent to almost $1.9 billion. Medicaid consumed more than $1.1 billion of that amount. HEW said 21 states reported higher AFDC rolls in July, led by California with 5,983 more than the previous month, Kentucky with 3,077 and Wisconsin with 2,398.

Five states recorded substantial decreases: Florida with 4,815 fewer than in June, Massachusetts with 3,273, Ohio with 3,583, Pennsylvania with 3,347 and Texas with 6,315.

AFDC payments per recipient were increased in 15 states in July, normally the month for adjustments to meet high living costs. Average payments went up about $5 per recipient in Indiana, Maryland, Michigan and Wyoming, $6 in Kansas, Minnesota and Utah; $7 to $9 in Delaware, Hawaii and Washington; $9 to $11 in California, Nevada and Ohio; $12.73 in Oregon and $13.73 in Idaho.

July payments averaged $216.61 per AFDC family and $86.79 per individual.

Paw Paw Doctor Dispensing Drugs, Warrant Charges

PAW PAW — A Paw Paw physician was to be arraigned today in Van Buren Seventh district court on a warrant charging him with dispensing a controlled substance (drug) without a required license.

Dr. Timothy M. McManus, 41, route 2, Red Arrow highway, Paw Paw, was arrested yesterday on a warrant issued by Judge William C. Buhl. The warrant was issued after a complaint was filed by Ronald E. Owens of the state licensing and regulation department.

The warrant alleges that Dr. McManus wrote prescriptions for two women on Nov. 5, to obtain Dexedrine Spansule, an amphetamine, without having a license to do so.

The drug is used both as a diet pill and as a stimulant to treat forms of depression.

According to Van Buren Prosecutor Frank D. Willis, physicians are required by state law to have a special license to dispense controlled substances (drugs) in addition to having their regular doctor's license.

Dr. McManus was permanently suspended from staff privileges at Lake View Community hospital, Paw Paw, Oct. 27, 1970. At the time, the board alleged that Dr. McManus failed to maintain records, attend patients he had admitted or take emergency calls.

Board Rejects 2 Nominations

SOUTH HAVEN — The South Haven township board last night declined to endorse the nomination of two Van Buren county township supervisors as members - at - large on the Southwestern Michigan Regional Planning commission.

Township board action followed a request from the planning commission that the local body adopt a resolution supporting the membership of Delbert Chase, supervisor of Waverly township, and Erwin Krader, supervisor of Geneva township.

Chase and Krader were nominated by members of the Van Buren County Township association. Individual townships are not eligible to have representation but a group of townships with an aggregate population of 25,000 can.

"Our decision was nothing personal as far as the men (Chase and Krader) are concerned," said clerk Franklin Torp. "We believe that the ultimate importance of some of the regional planning commission's decisions makes it necessary that our township be represented by one of our own people."

In other areas, the township board noted that it has forwarded to the Department of Natural Resources a request by the city of South Haven for a $67,825 grant for its part in a sewer system study being undertaken by the city and township of South Haven and Cason township.

South Haven township has received the priority rating for project funds making it necessary for the city to seek its grant through the township.

The board accepted the resignation of Arthur Johnson from the South Haven Community Hospital authority board and appointed James Mitchell to the position.

The board appointed Mildred Jensen to a vacant seat on the township zoning board.

The board noted it is investigating the feasibility of hiring a commercial collection service to pickup garbage at the homes of township residents.

Most residents presently haul their garbage to the township landfill. Supervisor James Schnake estimated that 300 to 400 homeowners pay private collectors to pickup their garbage.

Schnake said the board is investigating the matter in anticipation of a countywide landfill system that might be too expensive to participate in.

Torp was authorized to seek bids for providing maintenance services at the township landfill.

Schnake reported that the township paving program for the year has been completed and that the county has repaired the drain under 77th street. The road had been closed since last April's storm.

The board discussed the possibility of initiating a volunteer attendant-driver service to support the fulltime employees.

County, Royaltown Pick Park Topic

Members of the Berrien county parks and recreation commission (PRC) will meet tonight with the Royaltown township board to discuss the status of a proposed park on the "oxbow" of the St. Joseph river.

An $80,000 grant for the park in federal revenue sharing funds was approved by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources last year, but Berrien planning director Charles Eckenstahler said the county does not presently have the required matching funds for the project.

The grant is good until the end of 1976, but must be matched by local funds.

The Royaltown township board previously has expressed opposition to the park, proposed for a 214-acre site east of John Beers road off US 31-33.

Scramble Is On For Court Seat

he might not insist as strongly as former President Richard M. Nixon on a "strict constructionist."

Nixon named four of the present members of the court. Most analysts classified the full court this way: four conservatives, two "swing" justices and three liberals, of whom Douglas was the most extreme.

As on all days recently, Douglas spent only a portion of Wednesday on the bench. He wrote the President that "incessant and demanding pain" made it impossible for him to sit through the full sessions.

He left the bench at 11 a.m. after hearing arguments in a tax case. He reached his decision to retire some time after noon, said court spokesman Barrett McGurn. He advised Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and then sent his letter to Ford.

"He made the decision entirely on his own," said McGurn. "None of the other justices suggested it to him."

Douglas left the court building at 5:30 p.m. for his Washington home. It was not known whether he will remain here or move to his other home in Goose Prairie, Wash. He is entitled to chambers at the court and retirement at his full salary of $83,000 a year.

Friends in Seattle, Wash., said the justice hopes to retire to a cabin in the Cascade mountains. An outdoorsman until his crippling stroke, he often retreated from court sessions to the two-story log cabin built on a hillside near the Bumping River near Yakima.

His fourth wife, Cathleen, said she was "saddened that he's retiring in one sense... but on a personal level I'm pleased because this will give him the opportunity to recuperate and enjoy himself more."

Burger said Douglas "courage and willpower have earned him the admiration of his colleagues on the court." Justice Potter Stewart said Douglas "stands uniquely alone in the history of our court and of our country." On the court, Douglas has been an outspoken supporter of freedom of expression, the right to privacy and procedural guarantees for defendants in criminal trials.

Off the court, he has earned a reputation as an aloof, misanthropic individual who said in his 70s, "My faith is that the only soul a man must save is his own."

In a tribute to Douglas in 1964, Fortas said, "To himself, to friend and foe alike, Mr. Justice Douglas is a harsh critic who lies in wait for the slothful, the untidy, the drooling, the soft and sappy."

A native of Minnesota who moved to the state of Washington with his family as a small child, Douglas roamed the world climbing mountains and gathering material for his many books.

He frequently was mentioned in his earlier years as a possible Democratic presidential candidate or Cabinet member, but reportedly wrote President Harry S. Truman in 1946 that he had "decided to make the Supreme Court my career."

Scandal brushed Douglas with revelations in 1970 that he had received a $12,000-a-year expense account from the Parvins Foundation, which received part of its revenues from gambling properties. After Ford launched his impeachment drive, the justice resigned from the foundation. Ford later said he had no quarrel with Douglas' conduct.

Before joining the high court, Douglas was chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and taught law at Columbia and Yale.

Florida Fruitpicker Frees Captive And Surrenders

LAKE WALES, Fla. (AP) — A machete-wielding man, wanted for questioning in the stabbing death of one woman, released another woman and surrendered to police early today after holding her hostage for nearly 15 hours.

The hostage suffered severe bruises, cuts and a possible fractured rib, police said.

Police said Jasper Mines, 32, released Janie Nelson, a secretary, and gave up after being convinced he would not be shot down when he left the real estate office where she had been held captive.

Mines was arrested on an open charge related to the death of the first woman. Charges were being considered in the hostage case and in an attack on two other persons.

Mrs. Nelson, 32, and the mother of three young children, was rushed to Lake Wales General Hospital after her release.

Polk County Sheriff Monroe Brannen had said she appeared to be "in good shape" when she was first released. However, a spokesman for Brannen later reported that Mrs. Nelson was suffering from severe bruises from her shoulder down to her lower back area.

"She was beaten with the flat of the blade of the machete on several occasions during the first couple of hours of the incident," the spokesman said. "She also has slight cuts on both wrists and on her neck and possibly a broken or fractured rib."

He described the cuts as minor scratches and said they were inflicted by the machete being drawn against her arm or neck.

"If he felt like we were moving around too much, he would inflict one of these cuts," he said.

Mines, a fruitpicker from Watasson, Fla., had stormed into the office before noon Wednesday.

Dozens of policemen and others surrounded the office and spent the rest of the day and into the night trying to calm him down and talk him out. But Mines, who Brannen said frequently referred to himself as "the divine terrorist," repeatedly refused to surrender.

Police said that before going to the office, Mines had attacked two passersby when he abandoned his van and stole a car. One of those attacked was reported in critical condition.

An off-duty deputy in Indian River County found the body of Marie L. Harbottle, 20, of Satellite Beach, bound hand and foot in the van left by Mines. Officials said she had been stabbed to death.

Dan Taylor, a spokesman for Brannen, said Mines released Mrs. Nelson and gave up at about 1:30 a.m. only after finally being convinced he would not be immediately killed.

"He had decided to give up about an hour earlier but was still afraid we would shoot him," said Taylor. "We finally convinced him that we wouldn't."

"He just said, 'I'm ready to do it,' and went to the door and removed the desk he had blocking it and came out."

Brannen said Mrs. Nelson did as much as anyone in talking Mines into giving up. "She was a very brave woman," Brannen said. "She talked to him the whole time and kept him calmed down."

Man Flees Buchanan Jail; Caught In Niles

BUCHANAN — Police here said a Buchanan man who walked away from the city jail last night was captured about four hours later in Niles and a Buchanan woman was arrested on a charge of helping him to escape.

Police said Gary Adams, 18, of 427 Fulton street, Buchanan, was taken into custody after a car he was riding in was stopped on US-31 in Niles about 10:45 p.m. by Berrien sheriff's deputies.

A woman in the auto, described by police as Adams' girlfriend, Mary Gierman, 18, of 139 Arctic street, Apt. 3, Buchanan, was lodged in the Niles city jail, police said. The driver of the auto, Howard Linley, 24, Niles, was released, police said.

Police said Adams was originally lodged in the Buchanan jail about 2 p.m. yesterday after he turned himself in to police. He was sought on a bench warrant issued by Fifth District court, Niles, charging him with failure to report while on probation and failure to make court fine payments, police said.

About 6:30 p.m. Adams asked to use a telephone and some 10 minutes later escaped from the jail by walking through the front door, police said.

Paw Paw Doctor Dispensing Drugs, Warrant Charges

PAW PAW — A Paw Paw physician was to be arraigned today in Van Buren Seventh district court on a warrant charging him with dispensing a controlled substance (drug) without a required license.

Dr. Timothy M. McManus, 43, route 2, Red Arrow highway, Paw Paw, was arrested yesterday on a warrant issued by Judge William C. Buhl. The warrant was issued after a complaint was filed by Ronald E. Owens of the state licensing and regulation department.

The warrant alleges that Dr. McManus wrote prescriptions for two women on Nov. 5, to obtain Dexadrene Spansule, an amphetamine, without having a license to do so.

The drug is used both as a diet pill and as a stimulant to treat forms of depression.

According to Van Buren Prosecutor Frank D. Willis, physicians are required by state law to have a special license to dispense controlled substances (drugs) in addition to having their regular doctor's license.

Dr. McManus was permanently suspended from staff privileges at Lake View Community hospital, Paw Paw, Oct. 27, 1970. At the time, the board alleged that Dr. McManus failed to maintain records, attend patients he had admitted or take emergency calls.

It's News TODAY

Patty May Win Delay

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The judge in the Patricia Hearst case has called a special hearing next Monday to decide whether to delay Miss Hearst's bank robbery trial after a related decision in the case of Sara Jane Moore, accused of attempting to kill President Ford. One of Miss Hearst's attorneys, Albert Johnson, said Wednesday night that U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter possibly could delay the Dec. 15 trial date until mid-February.

The Hearst defense team has sought such a delay, claiming that the 21-year-old newspaper heiress was too traumatized by her 19 months as a captive of the Symbionese Liberation Army to stand trial immediately. The chances for delay increased significantly Wednesday when the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, ruling in the case of Miss Moore, held that a judge need not count time used for psychiatric examinations in the 90 days required by the Speedy Trial Act to bring a federal prisoner to trial.

U.S. Proposes Amnesty

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States has challenged all countries to release their political prisoners and apply to themselves the same standards they demand of Chile and South Africa. "Unless we care about political prisoners everywhere, we don't really care about them anywhere," U.S. Ambassador Daniel P. Moynihan said Wednesday, launching a human-rights offensive at the United Nations. Moynihan introduced in the General Assembly's social affairs committee a resolution appealing to all countries to proclaim unconditional amnesty for all political prisoners.

Ban Widens Church Split

NECEDAH, Wis. (AP) — "I stood at the door waiting, but none of them showed up," said the Rev. James Barney, pastor of St. Francis of Assisi Church in this tiny central Wisconsin community. "I wasn't going to let them in if they did."

"They" are the "Van Hoofers" or "shriners" — followers of Mary Ann Van Hoof, a 66-year-old widow who claims to have had visions of the Blessed Virgin since 1949. Father Barney's decision to bar her followers from attending Mass at his church has increased the split between the Roman Catholic Church and Mrs. VanHoof's disciples. It is a split which the priest estimates has cut parish membership of about 750 by more than half; has caused parish income to drop by 44 per cent from the first to the third quarter; and has some "Van Hoofers" talking about building their own church.

Ford Eyes Truck Deregulation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford plans to ask Congress to modify federal regulation of the trucking industry sharply in an attempt to increase competition and lower consumer costs. The proposed legislation being sent to Congress today would remove much of the federal red tape that now keeps trucking firms from raising or lowering their prices quickly to meet changing marketing conditions. It also would limit the authority of rate bureaus, the trucking organizations that set common fares for their members. Portions of the White House plan are expected to draw opposition both from trucking firms and from the Interstate Commerce Commission, which regulates the agency.

Nixon named four of the present members of the court. Most analysts classified the full court this way: four conservatives, two "swing" justices and three liberals, of whom Douglas was the most extreme.

As on all days recently, Douglas spent only a portion of Wednesday on the bench. He wrote the President that "incessant and demanding pain" made it impossible for him to sit through the full sessions.

He left the bench at 11 a.m. after hearing arguments in a tax case. He reached his decision to retire some time after noon, said court spokesman Barrett McGurn. He advised Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and then sent his letter to Ford.

"He made the decision entirely on his own," said McGurn. "None of the other justices suggested it to him."

Douglas left the court building at 5:30 p.m. for his Washington home. It was not known whether he will remain here or move to his other home in Gooseprairie, Wash. He is entitled to chambers at the court and retirement at his full salary of $63,000 a year.

Friends in Seattle, Wash., said the justice hopes to retire to Prairie House, his cabin in the Cascade mountains. An outdoorman until his crippling stroke, he often retreated from court sessions to the two-story log cabin built on a hillside near the Bumping River near Yakima.

His fourth wife, Cathleen, said she was "saddened that he's retiring in one sense ... but on a personal level I'm pleased because this will give him the opportunity to recuperate and enjoy himself more."

Burger said Douglas' "courage and willpower have earned him the admiration of his colleagues on the court." Justice Potter Stewart said Douglas "stands uniquely alone in the history of our court and of our country." On the court, Douglas has been an outspoken supporter of freedom of expression, the right to privacy and procedural guarantees for defendants in criminal trials.

Off the court, he has earned a reputation as an aloof, mercurial individual who said in his 70s, "My faith is that the only soul a man must save is his own."

In a tribute to Douglas in 1964, Fortas said, "To himself, to friend and foe alike, Mr. Justice Douglas is a harsh critic who lies in wait for the slothful, the untidy, the drooling, the soft and sappy."

A native of Minnesota who moved to the state of Washington with his family as a small child, Douglas roamed the world climbing mountains and gathering material for his many books.

He frequently was mentioned in his earlier years as a possible Democratic presidential candidate or Cabinet member, but reportedly wrote President Harry S. Truman in 1946 that he had "decided to make the Supreme Court my career."

Scandal brushed Douglas with revelations in 1970 that he had received a $12,000-a-year expense account from the Parvin Foundation, which received part of its revenues from gambling properties. After Ford launched his impeachment drive, the justice resigned from the foundation. Ford later said he had no quarrel with Douglas' conduct.

Before joining the high court, Douglas was chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission and taught law at Columbia and Yale.

Benton Advisers To Meet

The Benton township community development advisory council will hold its next meeting on Wednesday, Nov. 19, at 7:30 p.m. in the Benton township hall, 1825 Territorial road, chairman Frank Larson has announced.

All township residents are invited to attend the meeting and express their concerns and views.

Son's Freedom Costs $150,000

$150,000, which was picked up at 9:12 p.m., police said.

The first word Timothy had been abducted came three hours after the boy vanished. In the first of a series of telephone calls, a male voice told Stempel he would have to pay the $150,000 in return for his son.

Stempel told the abductor Tuesday he wouldn't be able to get the money because banks had closed for Veterans Day. Police said Stempel asked if his son was all right but was told only:

"You'll have to trust me, man."

Word of the abduction leaked to the media as early as Monday night, but use of the story was withheld to help assure the boy's safety.

Township Police Chief Robert L. Snell said the abductor emphasized Timothy's life would be jeopardized if police were called in. The chief said he was "amazed" and thankful at the cooperation he got from the press.

Stempel, in a brief appearance outside his house, also thanked newsmen for their cooperation in safeguarding the youth's return.

GM money was not involved in the payoff, a source said. It was not known whether Stempel paid the money out of his own funds or if money came from other sources.

Just five weeks ago, the family of the manager for GM's Hydramatic Division was taken and held for ransom.

William Schulenberg of Ann Arbor, his wife and three teenage sons were held captive by three armed men for more than 13 hours Sept. 28-29 while the money was being raised.

The Schulenbergs were released unharmed after $54,000 was paid. Three men were later apprehended and charged in the case. The money was recovered.

Man Flees Buchanan Jail; Caught In Niles

BUCHANAN — Police here said a Buchanan man who walked away from the city jail last night was captured about four hours later in Niles and a Buchanan woman was arrested on a charge of helping him to escape.

Police said Gary Adams, 19, of 427 Fulton street, Buchanan, was taken into custody after a car he was riding in was stopped on US-31 in Niles about 10:45 p.m. by Berrien sheriff's deputies.

A woman in the auto, described by police as Adams' girlfriend, Mary Girtman, 18, of 130 Arctic street, Apt. 3, Buchanan, was lodged in the Niles city jail, police said.

The driver of the auto, Howard Linley, 24, Niles, was released, police said.

Police said Adams was originally lodged in the Buchanan jail about 2 p.m. yesterday after he turned himself in to police. He was sought on a bench warrant issued by Fifth District court, Niles, charging him with failure to report while on probation and failure to make court fine payments, police said.

About 6:50 p.m. Adams asked to use a telephone and some 10 minutes later escaped from the jail by walking through the front door, police said.

Pilot Of Stricken Jetliner Praised For Quick Stop

NEW YORK (AP) — The pilot of the DC10 jumbo jet that exploded into flames after an engine sucked in a flock of seagulls during a Kennedy Airport takeoff says that he was warned of "numerous bird activities" in the area.

Rapid evacuation down the emergency chutes of the Overseas National Airways plane Wednesday prevented any serious injuries to the 129 passengers and 10 crew members. The jet was engulfed in 80-foot high flames only minutes later, and the thick black smoke could be seen in Manhattan, 15 miles away.

"If she had blown before the people were evacuated, I don't think anyone left inside could have survived," said Joseph Stein, a city fire battalion chief. "It was a very hot, acrid fire with a lot of smoke."

Pilot Harold Davis, 55, of Stratford, Conn., said that at the moment the birds were ingested into the engine "we had just reached the decision speed when if anything happens, you stop."

"It seemed like four or five days until we came to a stop, but it was probably only a minute and a half," said Davis, who was "praised" for his rapid braking of the crippled jet about a half-mile south of the International Arrivals Building.

Evacuation was completed five minutes after the trouble began.

All of the passengers were stewardesses, trained for such emergencies. They were bound for Saudi Arabia to help with charter flights for a pilgrimage to Mecca.

In praising Davis, stewardess Linda Patton said, "He brought it to a stop so we could get out and not burn to death. We knew exactly what to do. There was no screaming, no pushing, no panic."

She said Davis entered the smoke-filled cabin after the screeching halt to make certain everyone had a chance to leave safely.

Four of the passengers were reported injured and one was hospitalized for treatment of smoke inhalation. Twelve airport employees who helped fight the fire were also hospitalized for smoke inhalation and minor injuries.

At a news conference, Steadman Hincley, chairman of the board of the charter line, said, "As soon as the birds hit, the engine burst into fire and apparently dropped off the wing. Flames came back over the wing, and the wing was burning before the plane came to rest."

The fire and the explosions left the $24-million jet totally destroyed, a twisted charred mass of metal. An airline spokesman said the craft was fully insured.

The collision with the seagulls occurred despite an elaborate program at Kennedy to keep birds away from airport areas. The measures, including the use of automatic noisemakers, patrols of shotgun-armed employees and recordings of sounds of birds in distress, were stepped up Nov. 1. This is the time of the year that birds migrate south through the New York area.

On Oct. 4, 1960, a plane taking off from Boston's Logan Airport plunged into the bay after it ran through a flock of starlings which cut engine power. Sixty-two of the 72 persons aboard perished.

The last major local crash occurred June 24 when an Eastern Airlines 727 went down at Kennedy while coming in for a landing from New Orleans. The death toll of 114 made it the worst single plane disaster in the history of American civil aviation.

Colby Denies 'Slanting'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Central Intelligence Director William E. Colby says he thinks a House intelligence committee investigation will find "there has been no slanting" of U.S. intelligence to influence U.S. Soviet arms negotiations.

Colby said intelligence agencies differ on interpreting Soviet capability figures but not on the figures themselves, and he in effect denied the agencies deliberately distort figures to influence the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT).

U.S. intelligence estimates of Soviet power were included in one of seven subpoenas issued by the committee last week.

Committee Chairman Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., says the White House and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger have not complied with the SALT intelligence subpoena and two others. He called a committee meeting today on the question.

Fitzgerald In 'Good Repair'

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP) — The freighter Edmund Fitzgerald was in good repair at the time she sank in a violent November storm Monday on Lake Superior, according to sources close to the investigation of the tragedy.

The giant ore-hauler carried all 29 aboard to a watery grave without a trace.

"She was inspected regularly by the Coast Guard and by the American Board of Shipping," said Capt. E. M. Jacobsen, Marine Superintendent for the Columbia Transportation

Division of Oglebay Norton Co. which had chartered the 720-foot vessel since it was launched in 1955.

"She was last inspected about April in Toledo and everything was tip-top," Jacobsen said.

Jacobsen, whose tanned, lined features and graying hair bear witness to a long career on the lakes, said the Fitzgerald apparently snapped in half and went down almost without warning.

"I'm really not in a position to say much at this time," Jacobsen said. "Things will come out in the investigations. But we know from other vessels in the area she was in winds up to 70 miles per hour. I don't see how she could go down any other way."

The theory that the Fitzgerald, loaded with 26,000 tons of taconite pellets, broke in two was supported by other knowledgeable sources.

"We've had reports of two oil slicks," said Cmdr. Dave McCann, second in command of the Sault Coast Guard station. "The slicks were first spotted just far enough apart that one could have come from the front of the vessel and the other from the rear."

Searchers have not been able to confirm, however, "because the slicks have disappeared."

"We're looking for evidence that's going to help them solve the mystery," McCann said.

A board of inquiry will convene in Cleveland on Monday, the Coast Guard. The proceedings will be opened to the public.

Capt. D. C. Mania, the Coast Guard's marine inspection officer from St. Ignace, spent all day Wednesday huddled with Coast Guard officers and with officials of the steam ship company. Mania said he was trying to gather information that would prove helpful to the inquiry.

"It's a matter of getting as many documents as we can and finding out where they are," Mania said. "When was she last dry-docked and where? Were there any witnesses and where are they?"

Mania said. "There isn't any information right now. Nothing but debris."

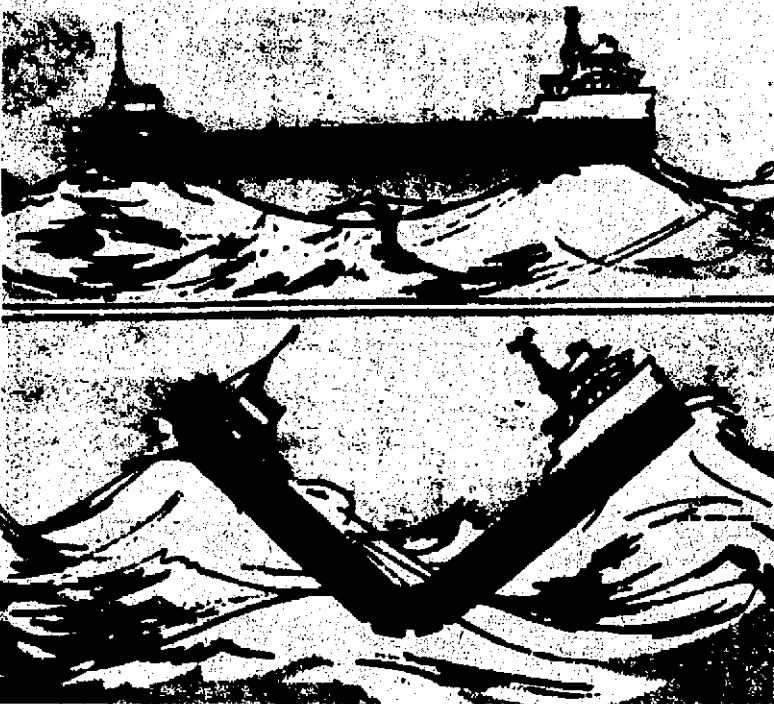

Wednesday's search effort was hampered by weather and finally was called off shortly after 2 p.m. The Coast Guard said the search was to be continued as soon as weather permitted.

"We had 30 to 40 mile per hour winds out there and 8 to 10 foot waves," Lt. William Holt said. "So we had to call the cutter, Woodrush, and the tug Naugatuck back into port."

Holt said the search for survivors or any signs of wreckage would continue until orders came from Cleveland headquarters to discontinue the probe.

"I don't know how long they'll have us keep on looking," Holt said as he bent over his charts in the busy control center. "There probably are no survivors and it's doubtful any bodies are going to surface."

Holt said Lake Superior's 50-degree waters generally kept bodies under water, preventing them from ever being recovered. He said another factor keeping searchers from discovering any bodies was the fact that most, or all the victims were likely trapped inside the ship.

DID FITZGERALD BREAK IN TWO? Some sailors believe the Edmund Fitzgerald may have been caught simultaneously by two giant waves which lifted its bow and stern and caused it to snap in two at the center, as shown in this illustration, exaggerated in some details to show how the tragedy might have occurred in Lake Superior near Sault Ste. Marie Monday night. Drawings by Detroit News artist John B. Walters. (AP Wirephoto)

Educational Games Are Needed

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Educational games can provide the necessary motivation to keep children in school, says a University of Michigan law professor.

Layman E. Allen said Wednesday the use of mathematical games helped reduce absenteeism at a Detroit inner-city junior high school while also increasing students' test scores.

Allen, who has invented several educational games, says using games can provide valuable incentive for teaching child mathematical skills.

"If they seem to like it (math), they'll spend some time at it and then they'll learn," he said.

Demonstrating his game "Equations" for science writer here, Allen said the game was used to generate math problems for students to solve.

"Equations" features 16 symbols — the nine digits, addition, subtraction, multiplication and division signs and symbols for the exponential and root functions — from which three players must create mathematical equations equal to a given answer.

The options are limited, however, as a player may forbid the use of certain symbols or insist that others be included in the equation.

When used in 7th and 8th grade math classes at Pellham Middle School, the game helps motivate students to learn, Allen said. Absenteeism was used to judge a student's enthusiasm for the class.

Allen said the standard rate of absenteeism was 30 per cent, but dropped to 10 per cent in those classes where games were used.

In classes where game used first but not second term, the rate rose above 10 per cent but below 30, Allen said.

Allen said there was also sign improvement in standardized test scores of those in the game classes.

Allen invented his first game "WFF 'N PROOF" — the game of modern logic — more than a decade ago to teach his law students symbolic logic in an attempt to help them understand legal reasoning.

Since then, his games have caught on nationally. "Equation" leagues exist from Detroit to New Orleans, with local tournaments held several times a month.

Capt. D. C. Mania, the Coast Guard's marine inspection officer from St. Ignace, spent all day Wednesday huddled with Coast Guard officers and with officials of the steam ship company. Mania said he was trying to gather information that would prove helpful to the inquiry.

"It's a matter of getting as many documents as we can and finding out where they are," Mania said. "When was she last dry-docked and where? Were there any witnesses and where are they?"

Mania said, "There isn't any information right now. Nothing but debris..."

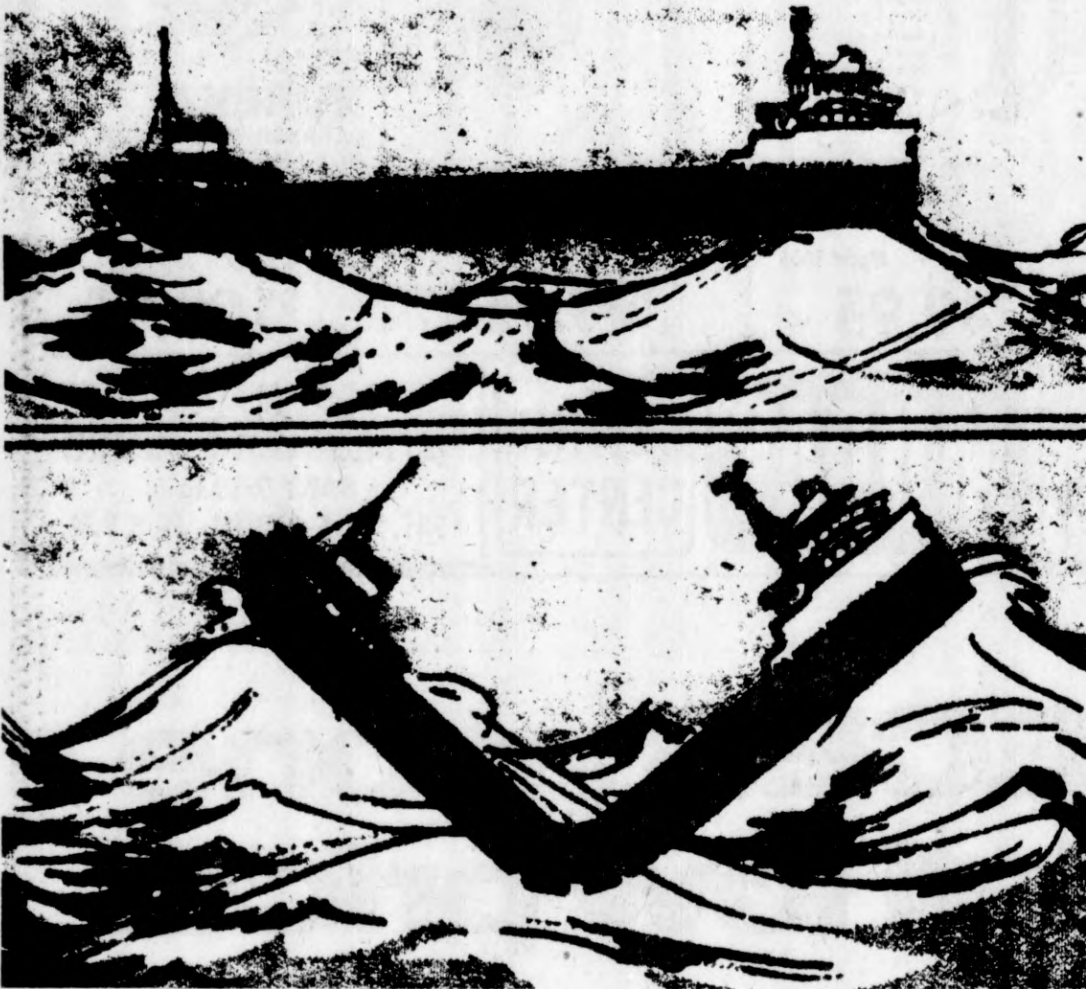

Wednesday's search effort was hampered by weather and finally was called off shortly after 2 p.m. The Coast Guard said the search was to be continued as soon as weather permitted.

"We had 30 to 40 mile per hour winds out there and 8 to 10 foot waves," Lt. William Holt said, "so we had to call the cutter Woodrush and the tug Naugatuck back into port."

Holt said the search for survivors or any signs of wreckage would continue until orders came from Cleveland headquarters to discontinue the probe.

"I don't know how long they'll have us keep on looking," Holt said as he bent over his charts in the busy control center. "There probably are no survivors and it's doubtful any bodies are going to surface."

Holt said Lake Superior's 50-degree waters generally kept bodies under water, preventing them from ever being recovered. He said another factor keeping searchers from discovering any bodies was the fact that most or all the victims were likely trapped inside the ship.

Educational Games Are Needed

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Educational games can provide the necessary motivation to keep children in school, says a University of Michigan law professor.

Layman E. Allen said Wednesday the use of mathematical games helped reduce absenteeism at a Detroit inner-city junior high school while also increasing students' test scores.

Allen, who has invented several educational games, says using games can provide valuable incentive for teaching child mathematical skills.

"It they seem to like it (math), they'll spend more time at it and then they'll learn," he said.

Demonstrating his game "Equations" for science writer here, Allen said the game was used to generate math problems for students to solve.

"Equations" features 16 symbols — the nine digits, addition, subtraction, multiplication and division signs and symbols for the exponential and root functions — from which three players must create mathematical equations equal to a given answer.

The options are limited, however, as a player may forbid the use of certain symbols or insist that others be included in the equation.

When used in 7th and 8th grade math classes at Pelham Middle School, the game helps motivate students to learn, Allen said. Absenteeism was used to judge a student's enthusiasm for the class.

Allen said the standard rate of absenteeism was 30 per cent, but dropped to 10 per cent in those classes where games were used.

In classes where game used first but not second term, the rate rose above 10 per cent but below 30, Allen said.

Allen said there was also sign improvement in standardized test scores of those in the game classes.

Allen invented his first game "WFF 'N PROOF" — the game of modern logic — more than a decade ago to teach his law students symbolic logic in an attempt to help them understand legal reasoning.

Since then, his games have caught on nationally. "Equation" leagues exist from Detroit

Property Control Is Theme

"Land Use Laws are a slick gimmick to steal or control your property. The right to private property is essential to individual liberty," says Los Angeles area radio personality Ron Wright.

"Unless the American people stop the land use planners and environmentalists like Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, from victimizing the property owner, the federal government will take control of the homes of the American people," he claims.

Wright, who is on the national lecture circuit of the American Opinion Speakers bureau, will be speaking in Berrien Springs on Thursday, Nov. 20, at 8 p.m., at the Youth Memorial building, on the subject of "Land Use Laws — The Government Land Steal."

"Land use bills are sprouting like weeds all over America," charges Wright. "They are designed to destroy local government and our right to private property." Wright, who is also a consultant to the Newport Harbor-Costa Mesa Board of Realtors in Southern California, contends, "While national politicians flood the media with rhetoric claiming adherence to the Constitution, they quietly circumvent the Constitution by centralizing more and more power in Washington. Revenue sharing, land use laws, regional government and environmental protection are being used as weapons against private property. All of these programs involve massive outlays of Federal money. Make no mistake about it, he who pays the piper calls the tune. Federal aid is federal control."

"Right now," says Commentator Wright, "federal regional multi-state districts have been established. These federal programs will be administered by appointed regional commissioners despite the wishes of you or your elected state representatives."

"Through this process," says Wright, "your property rights, your right to build, your taxes, your local police, and your God-given rights guaranteed by the United States Constitution are becoming subject to the whims of these appointed regional commissioners who are responsible only to Washington because that's where their paychecks come from. This amounts to taxation without representation."

According to Wright, "The planning for this so-called 'modernization' of government by consolidation, has been financed and promoted for over thirty years by the Ford, Rockefeller and Carnegie foundations."

Ron Wright urges citizens who value their property rights and the concept of local government responsible to the community, to investigate for themselves to what degree their own local governments are being influenced by the regional bureaucracy.

This program is one in a continuing series of informative programs sponsored by the local chapters of The John Birch Society. Tickets for this engagement are $1.50 in advance or $2 at the door the night of the speech. Student tickets are $1.

Gasoline Tank Installation

The storage tank will be at Price's Sunoco station, 889 Pipestone street. The permit was issued to Van Allen Builders, Delton, Mich., and listed the cost at $8,000.

A permit was issued to Rev. Garth Smith for a garage to be built on property owned by Grace United Methodist church, 304 East Empire avenue, for an estimated $1,800.

Other permits were issued to Fullman Construction Co. for repairs to a single-family house owned by James Cadwell at 157

American Federation of Musicians (AFM-CIO) will again pay all telephone charges on state-side calls placed through its facilities by overseas U.S. military personnel from 12:01 a.m. (EST) Dec. 24 to midnight Dec. 26.

Calls must originate from overseas and must be transmitted by the Military Affiliate Radio Service (MARS) to an amateur radio station in Mansfield, Ohio, manned by Robert Altomonte, president of AFM Local 198.

Altomonte then will route the calls to their destination through regular telephone lines with the cost paid by the musicians' union.

Because of heavy radio traffic at Christmas time, military personnel wishing to use the AFM service should make arrangements in advance with the MARS operator on their base and have the operator advise Altomonte of the date and time of the call and the call letters and frequency of the station.

Anyone in the Twin Cities area wishing further information on the service should contact AFM Local 232 in Benton Harbor, 925-9232 or 925-5850.

Since the program was started, more than 8,300 calls have been placed to every state in the nation.

Mine Bill Stalled

WASHINGTON (AP) — A principal sponsor of new laws to control strip mining says he doubts any strip-mining bill will be approved by Congress this year.

Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., said he and other sponsors of strip-mining legislation will try again next year to win congressional approval to regulate strip mining, which accounts for about half of all the coal now being mined in the United States.

ARIZONA: The Image Of The Desert

Her Most Dramatic Feature

By JUNE CALDWELL
MARTIN

TUCSON (NEA) — Not so charismatic as California nor as exotic as New Mexico, Arizona nonetheless gives a virtuoso performance.

It's name is desert — despite its towering, forested mountains and fertile, planted valleys. The image of the desert is dramatic.

Likely, the first European in Arizona (1539) was an intrepid black man named Esteban. He told the Zuni Indians he was invincible and not taking his word, they killed him. He had sent word back to Mexico that this land was rich with gold and silver. He would have been more accurate if he had said copper for today, Arizona is one of the most productive of the world's copper areas.

With a sentimental flair in 1863, Congress gave the Arizona Territory to the Union as a Christmas present. The proclamation papers were dated December 25. So uncharted was the land, the gubernatorial party crept westward for another four days before they felt sure they had found the place.

Today the state's major metropolitan areas, Tucson and Phoenix each with a university, exist in lively competition.

Tucson retains a colonial charm. Spanish place names and remnants of Spanish colonial architecture dot the landscape. Its nearness to the Mexican border brings into its everyday activities a language and a culture once its own.

Phoenix, known as Pumpkintown until 1871, is the capital — big and bustling, full of decision makers and money. Phoenix produced the state's first hometown millionaires — folks who made their money here and stayed to spend it.

And curiously, in this dry, mineral-rich desert state, that money came from irrigated agriculture.

Water is the password on the desert.

Edwin Corie, writing for a series called Rivers of America, said the thing he liked most about Arizona's Gila (hee-la) River was that you could drive a Jeep right down the dry middle of it for half of its 600-mile length. But in 1849 the first white baby thought born in Arizona was born to a Howard family traveling by raft on it. They called him Gila Howard.

Yuma, on the Colorado River, was the center of a thriving riverboat business from 1852-1906. Arizona has more islands 10 acres or larger than the "Island Paradise" of Hawaii.

That great workhorse, the Colorado River, carved out Arizona's Grand Canyon, which naturalist Joseph Wood Krutch described as, "The most revealing single page of earth's history anywhere open on the face of the globe."

U.S. Secretary of War Jefferson Davis in 1856 brought 80 camels to Arizona from Egypt, Tunis and Syria. The camels worked well enough ferrying goods back and forth across the desert country but they regularly stampeded cattle. When Davis left to run the Confederacy, they were disposed of.

In the early days, Arizona's visitors seemed determined to outdo one another in outrage. Typical was one writer's opinion that Arizona "realized to some extent my impressions of ... Sodom and Gomorrah."

Things improved. In 1957, when he was 87, famed archi-

The treatment of Indians within Arizona's borders has rarely been exemplary, but it's improving. Kitt Peak on the Papago Reservation in southern Arizona is one of the world's most sophisticated centers for research in astronomy. In 1958 before a single lens was emplaced, the National Science Foundation asked the Papago Tribal Council to assay any possible objections from ancient resident spirits on the next peak over, called sacred Baboquivari. The Papagos, who called astronomers "long eyes," found none.

"The virgin rays of the morning sun," cried one Arizona Territorial advocate in Congress, "first kiss the brows of its lofty mountains, the parting beams of the setting sun linger fondly around their sublime summits, unwilling to leave to darkness and to night such beauty and such grandeur."

Those incredible photographs in Arizona Highways magazine are true. They always have been.

MARTIN

TUCSON (NEA) — Not so charismatic as California nor as exotic as New Mexico, Arizona nonetheless gives a virtuoso performance.

It's name is desert — despite its towering, forested mountains and fertile, planted valleys. The image of the desert is dramatic.

Likely, the first European in Arizona (1539) was an intrepid black man named Esteban. He told the Zuni Indians he was invincible and not taking his word, they killed him. He had sent word back to Mexico that this land was rich with gold and silver. He would have been more accurate if he had said copper for today, Arizona is one of the most productive of the world's copper areas.

With a sentimental flair in 1863, Congress gave the Arizona Territory to the Union as a Christmas present. The proclamation papers were dated December 25. So uncharted was the land, the gubernatorial party crept westward for another four days before they felt sure they had found the place.

Today the state's major metropolitan areas, Tucson and Phoenix each with a university, exist in lively competition.

Tucson retains a colonial charm. Spanish place names and remnants of Spanish colonial architecture dot the landscape. Its nearness to the Mexican border brings into its everyday activities a language and a culture once its own.

Phoenix, known as Pumpkintown until 1871, is the capital — big and hustling, full of decision makers and money. Phoenix produced the state's first hometown millionaires — folks who made their money here and stayed to spend it.

And curiously, in this dry, mineral-rich desert state, that money came from irrigated agriculture.

Water is the password on the desert.

Edwin Corle, writing for a series called Rivers of America, said the thing he liked most about Arizona's Gila (hee-la) River was that you could drive a Jeep right down the dry middle of it for half of its 600-mile length. # House Approves Measure Defining 'Motor Bikes'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Bicycles equipped with motors capable of speeds up to 25 miles per hour would be legal on Michigan streets and bikeways if legislation passed Wednesday by the state House wins approval in the Senate.

The House voted 97-6 for a bill which would define a "motor assisted bicycle" and require them to be registered with the secretary of state.

Use of bikes with 1 1/2 horsepower or engines with 50 cubic centimeters or less would be limited to people at least 15 years old.

Registration decals and certificates would be good for up to three years and cost $2 a year.

Drivers would not have to take tests or get a license.

Motor-assisted bicycles meeting the bill's description, sold under brandnames such as Sorex or Moped, are not now classified by law and are illegal on the street, said Rep. Thaddeus Stopczynski, sponsor of the measure.

However, people are driving them, said Stopczynski, D-Detroit. The bill should be passed because the bikes encourage energy conservation, using only one gallon of gas in 200 miles, he said.

The special bikes would be banned from sidewalks and local communities could ban them from bikeways, Stopczynski said.

Current law lumps bicycles using helper motors of one horsepower or less together with regular bikes. The combination bikes may now go no faster than 20 miles an hour and use only a friction drive. The bill would permit the 25 m.p.h. speed and chain or gear drives.

A companion bill by Stopczynski, passed 103-0, would excuse owners of motor-assisted bicycles from paying fees in the state Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund if their bikes are not insured.

Also contained in the main measure, though unrelated to bicycles, is a reduction in license registration charges for lightweight, non-commercial pickup trucks.

Placed in the bill by the House Public Safety Committee, the provision would raise the maximum weight for such trucks from 4,500 pounds to 5,000 pounds to allow for the weight of safety and pollution-control equipment added in past years.

Private trucks now weighing under 4,500 pounds are charged the same rate as cars, 50 cents for every 100 pounds. Above the current limit, they are charged $1.25 per 100 pounds.

The Department of State Highways and Transportation opposed the fee cut, saying it would lose about $307,000 a year for the state highway fund.

REJECTS PROPOSAL

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI today rejected proposals that some bishops below the rank of cardinal be allowed to join in the election of the Roman Catholic Church's popes.

Sturgis Teen Dies In Fire

HOWE, Ind. (AP) — A Michigan teenager visiting his uncle was killed in a trailer home fire early today.

State police said James Summey, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Summey of Sturgis, died when fire broke out in a trailer parked on a farm just west of Howe. His uncle, Henry Kassimal, 38, and a cousin, Phillip Hay, 18, also were asleep in the trailer when the fire erupted but escaped uninjured. State police said the pair tried to rescue Summey.

However, people are driving them, said Stopczynski, D-Detroit. The bill should be passed because the bikes encourage energy conservation, using only one gallon of gas in 200 miles, he said.

The special bikes would be banned from sidewalks and local communities could ban them from bikepaths, Stopczynski said.

Current law lumps bicycles using helper motors of one horsepower or less together with regular bikes. The combination bikes may now go no faster than 20 miles an hour and use only a friction drive. The bill would permit the 25 m.p.h. speed and chain or gear drives.

A companion bill by Stopczynski, passed 103-0, would excuse owners of motor-assisted bicycles from paying fees to the state Motor Vehicle Accident Claims Fund if their bikes are not insured.

Also contained in the main measure, though unrelated to bicycles, is a reduction in license registration charges for lightweight, non-commercial pickup trucks.

Placed in the bill by the House Public Safety Committee, the provision would raise the maximum weight for such trucks from 4,500 pounds to 5,000 pounds to allow for the weight of safety and pollution-control equipment added in past years.

Private trucks now weighing under 4,500 pounds are charged the same rate as cars, 55 cents for every 100 pounds. Above the current limit, they are charged $1.25 per 100 pounds.

The Department of State Highways and Transportation opposed the fee cut, saying it would lose about $307,000 a year for the state highway fund.

Sturgis Teen Dies In Fire

HOWE, Ind. (AP) — A Michigan teen-ager visiting his uncle was killed in a trailer home fire early today.

State police said James Summey, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Summey of Sturgis, died when fire broke out in a trailer parked on a farm just west of Howe. His uncle, Henry Kassmal, 38, and a cousin, Phillip Hay, 16, also were asleep in the trailer when the fire erupted but escaped uninjured. State police said the pair tried to rescue Summey.

House Approves Repeal Of Charity Regulation Law

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Legislation repealing a 3½-month-old law requiring charities and professional fundraisers to be licensed was approved by the state House Wednesday at the urging of the original law's sponsor.

On a 95-1 vote, the House sent the Senate a bill that would end registration of things like Girl Scout cookie sales or United Way campaigns — regulated in Michigan since 1971.

The old law was rewritten last July, and now includes licensing and bonding of professional fundraisers to protect misappropriation of funds.

"The legislature has made an error and as soon as it discovers this, I am sure it will correct it," said Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley.

"If the Senate would concur in this action it would be a reversal of years of protective legislation. Michigan would be throwing back to a situation where there would be no protection against fraudulent solicitations," he said.

The repeal came after Rep. James Smith, R-Grand Blanc, offered a substitute bill. Smith sponsored the regulation which became law last July.

The revision was intended to focus on unscrupulous professional solicitors, but ended up making registration harder for honest charities, Smith said. "I couldn't think of a way to amend it. It's simpler to start all over again," he said.

Some kind of law is needed to assure that the $500 million donated yearly in Michigan goes to the people in need, said Ed Bladen, assistant attorney general in charge of consumer protection.

He cited an example of a circus raising some $45,000 for the Grand Haven Firefighters Association but allegedly keeping the money.

Bladen said he couldn't understand why legislators have been getting complaints about the revised law, unless disreputable fundraisers have misled charities and told them the law is more restrictive than it really is.

Smith's substitute bill was for a measure sponsored by Rep. Charles Harrison, D-Pontiac. It would have exempted veterans' organizations from charity regulations and raised the minimum necessary for state control from $3,000 to $8,000.

Illinois Man Wins A Million

BAY CITY, Mich. (AP) — Edward A. Bringleon, 68, of Lansing, Ill., was luckier than the 29 other contestants in Wednesday's 20th Michigan Lottery millionaire drawing, winning the top $1 million prize.

Bringleon is a retired oreboat worker and he and his wife, Ruth, have three grown children. He is the first Illinois resident to win $1 million in the state lottery, although he is not the first out-of-stater to take the top prize.

The money will be paid in 20 yearly installments of $50,000.

The second-place prize of $100,000 went to a 12-member lottery club from Battle Creek, the Social Services Club No. 4. All are employees of the Calhoun County Department of Social Services.

Third prize of $50,000 went to two Southfield residents, David Lewton and Daphne Fenster.

There were four $10,000 prizes, which went to George Baker, 65, of Three Rivers; Leo J. Cap, 47, of Chicago; Charles W. Pletcher, 42, of South Bend, Ind.; and Judith Pranton, 29, of Detroit.

There were 23 winners of $5,000.

PATHETICALLY small was the American regular army throughout the Revolutionary War. Except for one burst of enthusiasm in the spring of 1775, the Revolution was simply not a popular war outside of New England, and even the Yankees faltered badly in the closing years. Without French aid there would have been no victory. There were 28,000 French soldiers and sailors at Yorktown — and 11,000 Americans, only 4,000 of them regulars. The World Almanac notes.

'Instant' Millionaire Draw Date

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The million-dollar drawing for the Michigan State Lottery's instant game will be held Jan. 12.

The drawing will involve an estimated 50 instant game winners who scratched off their instant tickets to find the word Finalist underneath, lottery spokesmen said. Each contestant will win a minimum of $10,000, four will collect $25,000, two will win $50,000 and the luckiest will win a cool million.

The drawing will be held at Cobo Hall, Detroit, in conjunction with the Detroit auto show.

The instant game will end Dec. 23, although many outlets already have sold out of the tickets. Holders of Finalist tickets must present them to a lottery regional office or official claim center before Dec. 30 to qualify for the grand drawing.

Finalist tickets presented after that date will win only $50,000.

Miami's Alcoholic Derelicts May Get Place To Dry Out

MIAMI (AP) — Civic leaders, fretting because thousands of alcoholic derelicts keep steady citizens away from downtown stores and parks, plan to offer some of them a chance to dry out on a converted Navy hospital ship.

They propose to spend $1.5 million to make a floating detoxification and rehabilitation center for many of those who soak up cheap wine along with the Florida sunshine.

"It's not going to be a country club," said insurance man L. Staples Pierce. "It'll be a hospital."

Pierce and other members of the Greater Miami Chamber of Commerce checked on the ship Tranquility, but Navy officials said the ship was sold for scrap to Northern Metals in Philadelphia and that a similar ship, the Sanctuary, is not up for sale. However, Navy officials said there are other hospital ships available.

The ships are being considered because the county's treatment centers aren't large enough to handle the growing number of alcoholic derelicts, said James Quigley, director of Dade County's Comprehensive Alcoholism Program.

"We have talked for years of decriminalizing public intoxication," Quigley said, "but it's never been implemented."

"We have spent millions without making an impact on the downtown alcoholic. We can't, because there's no place to keep them."

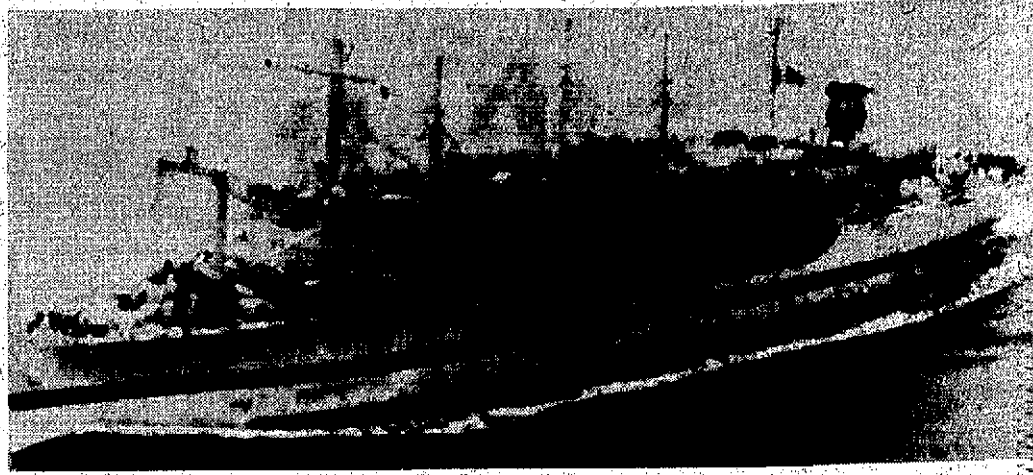

Quigley estimates his staff could treat more than 600 alcoholics on the ship with a budget that now handles only 284. He also said it would cost taxpayers about $30 million to build a facility large enough to handle that many people.

A new state law requires that arrested drunks be taken first to an alcoholism treatment center. But Quigley says the centers are almost always full, with police arresting 30 to 40 persons daily on drunk charges.

"We're all very excited about it," said Lester Freeman, executive vice president of the Miami Chamber.

He said the idea will be discussed again next week by the citizens' committee that recommends spending priorities for federal community development funds. The money would come from some $28 million in such funds available to the city and county.

Foundries Growing In West

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AP) — The U.S. foundry industry is experiencing nearly startling growth in the Western states — Colorado to the West Coast — according to Charles E. Fausel, president of the American Foundrymen's society.

"Within 10 years," Fausel said, "Western foundries may be producing up to 30 per cent of the casting requirements of the U.S. as opposed to only 3.5 per cent as short a time ago as 1968."

"Last year," he went on, "we estimate the West produced about 10 per cent of the nation's castings — approximately 2 million tons out of a 20-million-ton total industry capacity."

Fausel said the healthy foundry situation out West is due largely to western foundries having complied with stiff pollution control legislation early — some of them up to 10 years prior to their eastern counterparts.

Booze Ingredient Label Plan 'Too Confusing' For Drinkers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal requiring ingredient labeling for beer, wine and liquor has been withdrawn by the government on grounds it would be too confusing and expensive for American drinkers.

In dropping the proposal this week, the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms also said ingredient labeling could hinder international trade since no other country has such a requirement.

Distillers and wineries opposed the proposed regulation while brewers and the Food and Drug Administration supported it.

However, the Treasury bureau said it would be unfair to require beer labeling while exempting wine and hard liquor.

The Center for Science in the Public Interest, which petitioned the agency three years ago to require ingredient labeling, responded in statement that the proposal would have cost 3 per cent of a penny per six-pack and would have been no more confusing than labels on other foods.

"Consumers have a right to know what they are eating, especially those who are allergic to or wish to avoid certain ingredients," said center director Michael Jacobsen. "Once again a government regulatory agency is bowing to industry pressures, and consumers are left to fend for themselves," he said.

The Treasury bureau provided no specific cost estimate for ingredient labeling but said it "would be excessive in relation to the benefit received."

The agency said labeling also might be confusing. For example, beer labels would have to list yeast, even though the yeast undergoes a chemical change in the brewing process and is not present in the final product.

Compromise NYC Aid Bill In The Works

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican and Democratic leaders are working on a compromise bill to help New York City out of its financial crisis amid speculation that President Ford is looking for a way to soften his opposition to federal aid for the city.

STIFF UPPER LIP: New York Mayor Abraham Beame displays Optimist Award presented to him by members of the Optimist Club of New York during ceremonies at City Hall Wednesday. Beame was cited for his "fortitude and optimism in meeting the city's problems." (AP Wirephoto)

President Ford is looking for a way to soften his opposition to federal aid for the city. New York Gov. Hugh Carey, indicating he sees signs that the administration may be backing down from its hard-line stand against aiding the city, called the New York legislature into special session today to begin work on a new plan to help avert default, including provisions for new taxes and a debt restructuring.

President Ford himself, in a meeting with magazine publishers Wednesday, acknowledged that New York had taken some encouraging steps toward fiscal soundness. "They've made a lot of progress in the last 10 days," he said.

Ford's recommendations for revision of bankruptcy laws to ease legal proceedings in the event of a New York default were to be discussed today at a hearing by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

In addition to Carey's perception of a softening in administration attitude, both Republicans and Democrats suggested the tide of congressional opinion is turning toward approval of aid for the city.

Some congressional leaders said they definitely see signs that Ford, who said he would veto any measure designed to bail out New York City, is looking for a graceful way of altering his position.

A GOP senator, who did not wish to be named, said, "The President wants to change his mind, but he hasn't found a way to do it." Sen. Joseph Biden, D-De.

said he has a feeling there is a change coming from the White House — "I have no basis for it, but I think the President is looking for some way to get off the dime."

House Banking Committee Chairman Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., and House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes, of Arizona, worked on details of their bipartisan aid bill, and some congressmen saw the joint effort as a strong sign.

"The Rhodes action is a good indication of movement in the White House," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. Proxmire said he doubted Rhodes would work on the proposal without an understanding with Ford.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., said, "I think the odds are better than 50-50 the Senate will take some action, and the President will sign it." And Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said, "I think a bill now would be likely to carry on the floor."

Carey said he talked Wednesday with Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and had found an attitude of "cooperation." He said Simon, who has staunchly opposed aid to New York, seemed to have "heightened his interest" in the city's fiscal crisis.

Carey's plan being presented to the state legislature includes higher state and city taxes and $2.5 billion in federal loan guarantees.

State Dems Hold To Aid Hopes

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Democrats in the state legislature are edging closer to accepting Gov. William Milliken's forecast that the state faces a deficit of nearly $300 million.

But, even after a lengthy meeting with Milliken on Wednesday, they hung on to hopes that federal money and a lower welfare caseload could reduce red ink by $40 million. Last week, Democrats maintained the deficit was some $80 million less than the $298 million forecast by the governor. Milliken's budget experts took care of $48 million the Democrats were banking on, wiping the entire amount off the books because it is unlikely to be received this fiscal year. The head of the Senate Fiscal Agency, who advises Democratic leaders, agreed the money probably wouldn't show up.

Democrats still insist they hope to pick up from $13 million to $15 million from Washington. The rest of the $40 million Democrats seek would come via $27 million in welfare costs. Milliken says the caseload requires an additional $130 million, while Democrats say he's overestimated the rates and the state will need only $103 million extra.

"The most critical problem is to estimate the projected deficit figure," Milliken said after a meeting with lawmakers and budget officials. "We've not reached a fixed and final agreement."

Once the figure is agreed upon, the discussion will turn to how to cut the budget.

Milliken's first order to reduce spending by some $190 million was rejected. When the agreement is hammered out, Milliken will issue a second order to trim spending. He also has proposed to pick up an extra $100 million by altering the fiscal year and taking over two restricted funds.

Compromise NYC Aid Bill In The Works

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican and Democratic leaders are working on a compromise bill to help New York City out of its financial crisis amid speculation that

down from its hard-line stand against aiding the city, called the New York legislature into special session today to begin work on a new plan to help avert default, including provisions for new taxes and a debt restructuring.

President Ford himself, in a meeting with magazine publishers Wednesday, acknowledged that New York had taken some encouraging steps toward fiscal soundness.

"They've made a lot of progress in the last 10 days," he said.

Ford's recommendations for revision of bankruptcy laws to ease legal proceedings in the event of a New York default were to be discussed today at a hearing by the Senate Judiciary Committee. In addition to Carey's perception of a softening in administration attitude, both Republicans and Democrats suggested the tide of congressional opinion is turning toward approval of aid for the city.

Some congressional leaders said they definitely see signs that Ford, who said he would veto any measure designed to bail out New York City, is looking for a graceful way of altering his position.

A GOP senator, who did not wish to be named, said, "The President wants to change his mind, but he hasn't found a way to do it."

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del.,

said he has a feeling there is a change coming from the White House — "I have no basis for it, but I think the President is looking for some way to get off the dime."

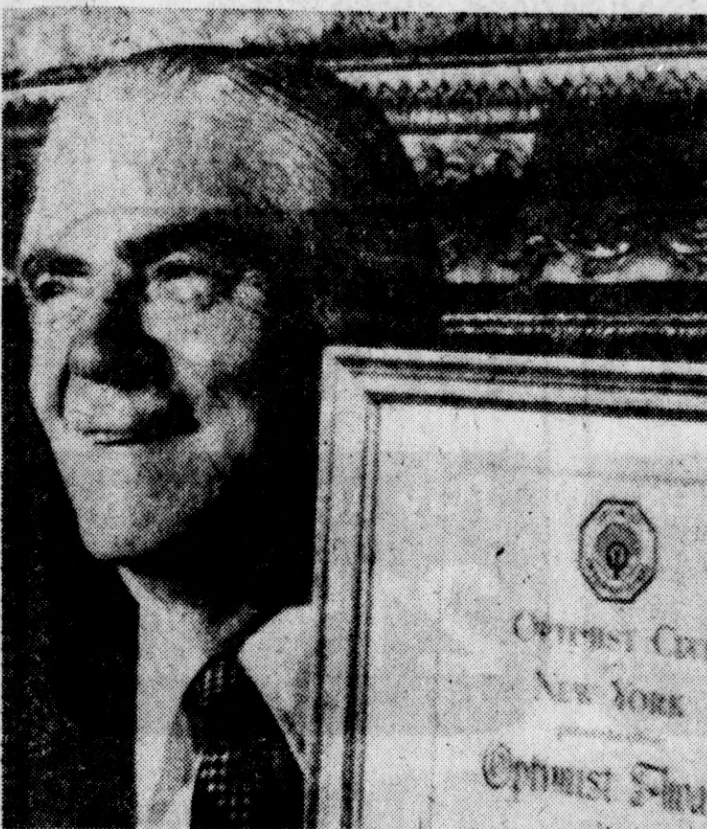

House Banking Committee Chairman Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., and House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona worked on details of their bipartisan aid bill, and some congressmen saw the joint effort as a strong sign.

"The Rhodes action is a good indication of movement in the White House," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. Proxmire said he doubted Rhodes would work on the proposal without an understanding with Ford.

Sen. Lowell Weicker, R-Conn., said, "I think the odds are better than 50-50 the Senate will take some action and the President will sign it." And Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said, "I think a bill now would be likely to carry on the floor."

Carey said he talked Wednesday with Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and had found an attitude of "cooperation." He said Simon, who has staunchly opposed aid to New York, seemed to have "heightened his interest" in the city's fiscal crisis.

Carey's plan being presented to the state legislature includes higher state and city taxes and $2.5 billion in federal loan guarantees.

State Dems Hold To Aid Hopes

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Democrats in the state legislature are edging closer to accepting Gov. William Milliken's forecast that the state faces a deficit of nearly $300 million.

But, even after a lengthy meeting with Milliken on Wednesday, they hung on to hopes that federal money and a lower welfare caseload could reduce red ink by $40 million.

Last week, Democrats maintained the deficit was some $90 million less than the $298 million forecast by the governor.

Milliken's budget experts took care of $48 million the Democrats were banking on, wiping the entire amount off the books because it is unlikely to be received this fiscal year. The head of the Senate Fiscal Agency, who advises Democratic leaders, agreed the money probably wouldn't show up.

Democrats still insist they hope to pick up from $13 million to $15 million from Washington.

The rest of the $40 million Democrats seek would come via $27 million in welfare costs. Milliken says the caseload requires an additional $130 million, while Democrats say he's overestimated the roles and the state will need only $103 million extra.

"The most critical problem is to estimate the projected deficit figure," Milliken said after a meeting with lawmakers and budget officials. "We've not reached a fixed and final agreement."

Once the figure is agreed upon, the discussion will turn to how to cut the budget.

Milliken's first order to reduce spending by some $150 million was rejected. When the agreement is hammered out, Milliken will issue a second order to trim spending. He also has proposed to pick up an extra $160 million by altering the fiscal year and taking over two restricted funds.

Southerners Are Most Satisfied With Their Lives

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer
ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Southerners are more satisfied with their lives in almost every respect than their counterparts in the rest of the country, researchers report.

In what they say is the first scientific study of how Americans evaluate their lives, researchers say 87 per cent of whites in the South said they were very satisfied in general, compared with 57 in the East and West, and 55 in the central states.

Some 57 per cent of Southern blacks said they were very satisfied overall, compared with 43 per cent of blacks in the rest of the nation.

Despite a few complaints, on a national basis 63 per cent of white Americans and 51 per cent of blacks are generally "very satisfied with their life as a whole," according to the study released Tuesday.

"There's a quality of positivity about our general psychology," said Angus Campbell, director of the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research (ISR), which did the study.

"For the most part, people come to feel satisfied about their lives, even if their objective circumstances are terrible," he told a conference of science writers.

While the South ranked best in the ISR study, it was at the bottom in a similar study by the Environmental Protection Agency in 1973.

The EPA study was based on data about socio-economic factors like jobs, education, housing and income. Campbell said the procedure isn't as valid as simply asking people how they feel about their lives.

Some 79 per cent of Southern whites said their family life was very satisfying, compared with 66 per cent in the West, 71 per cent in the East and 74 per cent in the central states.

Southerners also felt their friendships were better. About 72 per cent of whites and 64 per cent of blacks called their relationships very satisfying, compared with 64 per cent of Western whites and 53 per cent of non-Southern blacks.

Based on survey data compiled in 1971, the study involved some 40 questions asked of 1,001 whites and 223 blacks scientifically selected to represent characteristics of the American populace.

About 87 per cent of white rural Americans say they are very satisfied with life, compared with 48 per cent of white Americans living in central cities.

While the study showed sharp differences in the satisfaction of blacks and whites, the gap decreased when people of similar education, income and occupation were compared, Campbell said.

76ers Bid For Jones

Three Players Chosen In ABA Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Basketball Association is holding a private auction today and the Philadelphia 76ers are the special guests.

The Sixers, of the National Basketball Association, have been invited to bring suitcases of money and make a bid for Caldwell Jones, a 6-foot-11 center from the defunct San Diego Sails. Jones has signed a future contract with Philadelphia already, but he can't join the Sixers until the 1977-78 season because he still owes the ABA two years.

Philadelphia, which could certainly use the talented Jones, can get him immediately if the price is right. And the ABA, which has been less than successful at the box office, can certainly use the money.

The Sixers say they don't much care for the meat-market approach to purchasing players but they'll show up anyway.

"We're going to New York. Since we want to avoid any litigation, we're not looking for any legal hassles," said Philadelphia General Manager Pat Williams. "We have signed him to play for us 1½ years from now. We're in no rush."

"We can wait that long but if we can get him now we'd like to get him now. But we're not going to engage in any auction bidding for him."

Jones was held out of Wednesday's dispersal draft of the Sails, which folded up Tuesday. The remaining San Diego players were put up for auction within the ABA with the league putting a price on their heads and clubs bidding.

Only three players were chosen — forward Mark Olberding by San Antonio and both forward Dave Robisch and guard Dwight Lamar by Indiana. Everyone else was bypassed and will be placed on waivers.

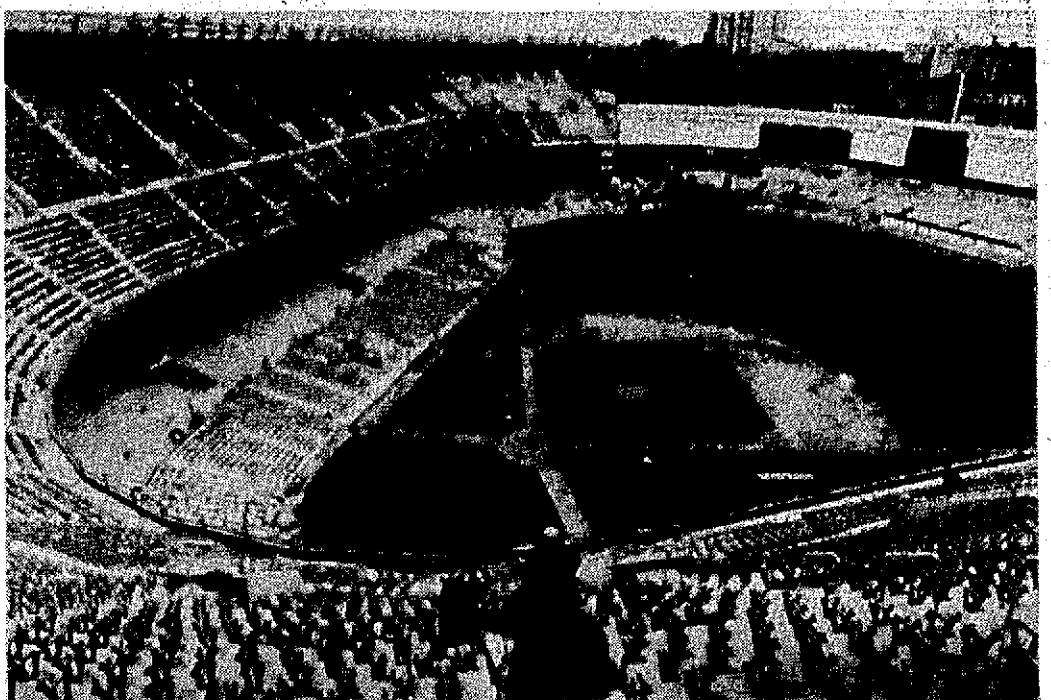

San Diego was the second ABA franchise to strike its colors this year, the Baltimore Claws having folded up four days before the season began. Three others — St. Louis, Virginia and Utah — are rumored in trouble.

All of which, according to Williams, puts Philadelphia in a strong bargaining position.

"It looks like the ABA is going under," said Williams. "They've already lost two teams. There's more pressure on the ABA than on us. The ABA wouldn't get anything for Jones a year from now."

"Maybe Caldwell Jones will go to a judge and say he doesn't like being treated like a piece of meat," he added.

Jones, who joined San Diego in 1973 from Albany State, Ga., averaged 20 points and 14 rebounds a game last season.

Powers Record Not Enough

GRAND RAPIDS — Jim Powers has made his presence felt after just one game in a Southwestern Michigan College uniform.

The transfer sophomore from Furman, poured in a school-record 43 points but the Roadrunners lost their opening basketball of the year to Davenport College here Wednesday night 115-108 in overtime on the winner's court.

Powers' total breaks the old record of 39 points set in 1971 by Cleo Kilgore.

SMC had to play catch up ball most of the night. "We went to a triple-stack offense in the second half that freed Powers," said Roadrunners' coach Jim Tansey.

Powers notched 22 of his lofty total in the last half to bring SMC back from a 56-48 halftime deficit to tie Davenport at 103 with five seconds left. Tansey then called time out to set up a play with Powers taking the shot. The plan worked, but Powers missed the bucket and Robin Plugshaupt's tip-in attempt also fell off the rim and the contest went into the extra period.

But Davenport's balanced scoring attack, led by Jay Mulder's 29 points, pulled it through in the overtime. Besides Powers' 43 points, SMC had Bill Benko and Wayne Battiest with 12 points and Bill Carson and Plugshaupt with 11. For Davenport, Doug Twalties had 28 points, Bruce Knudson netted 24 and Bill Wagner had 10.

The Roadrunners' next game is Tues. Nov. 18, against St. Francis at home.

Black Hawks Extend Unbeaten String To 7 Flyers Continue Buffalo Jinx

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
"Do we have a jinx over Buffalo?" pondered Philadelphia Coach Fred Shero. "I don't know but I hope so."
"I don't believe in jinxes but there must be something..." Shero's Flyers met the Sabres Wednesday night for the first time since the two battled it out in the finals of the National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs last season. Philadelphia won that time and they won this time too, posting a 3-1 victory. Buffalo has lost eight times and tied once in its last nine regular-season meetings with the Flyers.

"I know we can't always play as well as we did tonight," said Shero, "but we keep beating them."
Elsewhere in the NHL, California whipped the New York Islanders 5-1, Atlanta edged Kansas City 2-1, Chicago tied the New York Rangers 4-4 and Pittsburgh and Washington skated to a 6-6 standoff.

There was just one game played in the World Hockey Association and New England won it 4-1 over Houston.
Philadelphia broke on top against the Sabres on Reggie Leach's goal just 45 seconds into the second period. Fred Stanfield tied it for Buffalo late in period but Orest Kindrachuk put the Flyers back on top two minutes later. Don Saleski added an insurance goal for the winners in the final period.

It was Buffalo's first loss at home this season after nine victories and a tie.
"We couldn't get anything going," admitted Buffalo Coach Floyd Smith. "Everything we did was wrong. You play games like that. Unfortunately we had to play one against Philadelphia."

California rookie Dennis Maruk scored his third short-handed goal of the season — most ever by a rookie — and teammate Gary Sabourin added his seventh goal in the last five games. The Islanders lost for only the third time in 15 games this season.
Rey Comeau and Curt Bennett got the Atlanta goals and Guy Charron scored for Kansas City. The Flames outshot the Scouts 40-29.

Bird Averitt Flying High Nets 31 Points In Kentucky Victory

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
It's a bird, it's a plane... well, actually it is a bird. Bird Averitt.

Kentucky's great shooter was flying high Wednesday night, scoring 31 points as the Colonels walloped the Spirits of St. Louis 98-81 in the American Basketball Association.
"I had a good night," Averitt said, "but I'm more glad we won the game — we have so much to prove, we're the defending champs."
Not only did Averitt contribute a season-high point total to the Colonels' victory, but Kentucky's Birdman, also collected eight assists and held Spirits guard Freddie Lewis to just eight points — 11 below his average.
"I thought he did a tremendous job of applying pressure to Lewis," said Kentucky Coach Hubie Brown. "Freddie had an off-night, but I think that Bird had something to do with it."

In the other ABA games, the Utah Stars humbled the New York Nets 134-114 and the San Antonio Spurs drubbed the Virginia Squires 144-112.
Averitt and Louie Dampier sparked a Kentucky surge early in the second half, leading the Colonels to their easy victory. While the Spirits missed their first 17 shots of the second half, the two Kentucky guards picked apart the St. Louis defense as the Colonels won for the seventh time in eight games.
Dampier pumped in four long jump shots and Averitt hit three layups before the Spirits scored their first field goal 4½ minutes into the quarter.

Center Maurice Lucas scored 27 points to top St. Louis, which held slim leads in the first half before Kentucky pulled ahead for a 43-41 lead at intermission. Kentucky center Artis Gilmore contributed 14 points and a game-high 19 rebounds.
Last-place Utah snapped out of a five-game losing streak as Ron Boone scored 35 points to lead the Stars over New York. The Utah starting lineup played most of the way and all five starters ended up in double figures. After Boone, it was John Roche with 28, Steve Green with 21, Jim Eakins 19 and Randy Denton 18.
Julius Erving wound up with 30 points for the Nets and Rich Jones chipped in 24.
George Gervin pumped in 26 points and seven other Spurs scored in double figures as San Antonio rolled past Virginia. James Silas scored 22 points for the Spurs, who held a 71-66 lead at halftime and then coasted to victory in the last two periods.

Schau, Sawyer Only Two-way All-League

Lake Michigan Catholic, which tied with Watervliet for the Red Arrow title at 6-1, placed six men on the all-league team announced today.

Eau Claire put four men in the elite group of offensive and defensive players. The Panthers and Berrien Springs had three gridders on the squad while Bridgman placed two and Galien and Hartford had one each. New Buffalo failed to land a man on the first team.

The only two-way players to make it were seniors Rick Sawyer from Watervliet and Craig Schau of Galien.

Sawyer on offense blocked for an 80 per cent efficiency and on defense averaged 12 solo tackles per game.

Schau rushed for 812 yards and a 4.5 average on offense. As a linebacker, he was in on 111 tackles, including 86 unassisted stops.

There were five men who repeated from last season's team — Sawyer, Schau, plus Tom Flood and George Welch from Lake Michigan Catholic and Larry Bartels of Eau Claire.

The other Lakers voted to the team were senior linemen Chris and John Kasmer and junior defensive lineman John Reinhardt. The Beavers had Don McAfee, the league's leading rusher, senior guard Larry Westerhoven, senior center Bartels and senior defensive lineman Al Flowers.

Watervliet had Sawyer, senior defensive lineman George Keller and defensive safety Rick Sabadin on the team.

Shamrocks achieving all-league status included senior defensive lineman Mike Simko, senior linebacker Rick Sanders

Second team offensive personnel were Ted Archer, Jay Carter and Bob White of Berrien Springs; Schaller of Bridgman; Flowers of Eau Claire; Mike Kuntz and Dale Luther from Galien; Toney from Hartford; Kyle Covert of New Buffalo and Brian Piggott and Tom Hutchinson of Watervliet.

The defensive second team is comprised of Terry Martin of Watervliet; Bill Marx of New Buffalo; Jerry Epperson of Lake Michigan Catholic; Bruce Flowers and Ken Lowe of Hartford; Mike and Matt Kuntz and Randy Chase of Galien; Mike Bailey and Nate Lanier of Eau Claire and Mitch Sluder of Berrien Springs.

Players receiving honorable mention status were Bridgman's Dave Zilke, Sieg Wolf, Al Barker and Tom Meredith; Galien's Randy Hein; Berrien Springs' Roger Johnson and Barry Adams; New Buffalo's Phil Kaza, Tim Wilens, Brian Pahl, Carl Underwood, Andy Brandon and Roger Lijewski.

Eau Claire had Joe Simaz; Hartford had Phil Mireles and Dennis Huffman; Watervliet put Frank Gargano and Ken Marzka on it while the Lakers had Tom Driscoll, Jean Parker, Kurt Weichand, Bill Prantz, Don LePar, Pat Clark, Joe Foster, Tim Burgerott, Mark Frazee and Gary Bartalone make the list.

Wills To Tutor Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Manager Dave Bristol says the National League club has hired former base-stealing king Maury Wills to help tutor the Braves in that art next spring.

"I talked to Maury at the World Series," said Bristol Wednesday, "and he said he'd be happy to help. He gave me the dates he would be available and his phone number."

Wills held the all-time base stealing record of 104 in one season until Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals snapped it with 118 in 1973, 11 years after Wills' mark.

Ohio State Sellouts Way Of Life

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — One of the phenomena of college football, 43 straight sellouts in Ohio Stadium, will be prolonged another game Saturday when top-ranked Ohio State faces Minnesota.

"It's the social thing to do in Columbus on a Saturday afternoon. It means prestige to have Ohio State football tickets," said Bob Ries, the Big Ten school's harried ticket director.

More than 87,000 will file into the mammoth horseshoe, criticized for being too large when it was built 53 years ago. Prior to the stadium, the Buckeyes played at Ohio Field, which accommodated 10,000 fans. The stadium's original capacity was 75,000.

"When they talked about 75,000, people thought they were crazy. In fact, I can remember it used to be if Ohio State beat Oberlin they were lucky," said 80-year-old Clarence Trapp, the general contractor for the stadium building project.

Considering the string of sellouts, Trapp said, enclosing the open end with 20,000 new seats would not be difficult.

Ries said the last time his office failed to sell all of its tickets was the Oregon game in 1968. The game drew 70,191.

"Technically," he said, "every game has been a sellout since although there were only 75,596 for the Iowa opener in 1971 and 77,008 for Iowa in 1972."

The ticket director, however, emphasized all tickets for those games had been sold. Many of the no-shows were students, who were not on campus. The Iowa games were played before the fall quarter had opened.

Full houses have been in attendance for 22 stadium games in a row.

Despite such success, Ohio State will not lead the nation's colleges in attendance this fall. That honor will go to Michigan, which plays in a 100,000-plus stadium.

Still, the Buckeyes have paced the nation in home crowds for 21 of the last 24 years.

Despite some very competitive advertising, neither Ford's Pinto Pony MPG, nor Chevrolet's Chevette Scooter have chosen to compare themselves with us.

There's a reason. We ask you to consider the list on the left, and the box above. You'll notice that, in addition to being America's lowest priced car, our Gremlin goes farther on a tank of gas than anybody's car.

Yet, Gremlin is the only car in its class that offers the performance and durability of a standard six-cylinder engine. And, unlike Chevrolet Scooter or Pinto Pony MPG, only Gremlin offers the optional convenience of both automatic transmission and factory air-conditioning.

We built our Gremlin to be an economy car. But we also built it to deliver the kind of performance and driveability we think you have a right to expect of any car.

That's why, although Gremlin delivers better than 30 mpg highway and 20 mpg city (EPA Estimated), it offers more horsepower, more road-hugging weight, and a wider track than any car in its class.

And maybe that's why Ford and Chevy conveniently choose to ignore us. But, then again, we think there's a much more important reason.

Compare Coverage: AMC BUYER PROTECTION PLAN vs. Competition

To us at American Motors, and to our dealers, the exclusive AMC BUYER PROTECTION PLAN means a commitment to our customers.

The BUYER PROTECTION PLAN means that, unlike Ford and Chevy, only AMC will fix or replace free any part — except tires — for 12 months or 12,000 miles whether the part is defective, or just plain wears out under normal use and service.

Drew Sparks Atlanta Over Pistons

Milwaukee Humiliates 76ers Again

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The National Basketball Association season is young and it's still too early to tell how the Milwaukee Bucks will do without Kareem Abdul-Jabbar.

But if it's anything like the past two nights, look out!

The Bucks, who traded away Jabbar during the off-season in a blockbuster deal with the Los Angeles Lakers, looked like they didn't miss the NBA superstar while humiliating the Philadelphia 76ers for the second night in a row Wednesday, 107-84. The bad beating came on top of a 108-81 thrashing the night before.

"Some teams are more difficult to play than others," pointed out Milwaukee Coach Larry Costello. "The 76ers play with a certain pattern, they do have a certain number of plays."

"Defense was the key tonight," Costello noted. "We're trying to develop a fast-break attack so that Elmore Smith can dominate defensively as well as Jabbar."

The second straight runaway Milwaukee victory left Philadelphia's Doug Collins slightly dazed.

"We don't seem to bounce back like we should," said

Collins, the 76ers' high scorer with 24 points. "We didn't seem to have fire in our eyes tonight. I was disappointed and frustrated."

In the other NBA games, the Atlanta Hawks whipped the Detroit Pistons 109-106; the Buffalo Braves downed the Houston Rockets 93-80; the Los Angeles Lakers walloped the New Orleans Jazz 116-100 and the Kansas City Kings turned back the Seattle SuperSonics 107-92.

Bobby Dandridge scored 29 points as Milwaukee humbled Philadelphia. The lead changed hands six times in the first half, but the Bucks never trailed after two Brian Winters free throws gave them a 38-37 advantage with 3:57 left in the second period.

Forward John Drew drilled in 27 points, 18 in the third period, as Atlanta fought off Detroit. Drew's scoring heroics enabled the Hawks to overcome a five-point deficit early in the third period and shoot them into a lead they never relinquished.

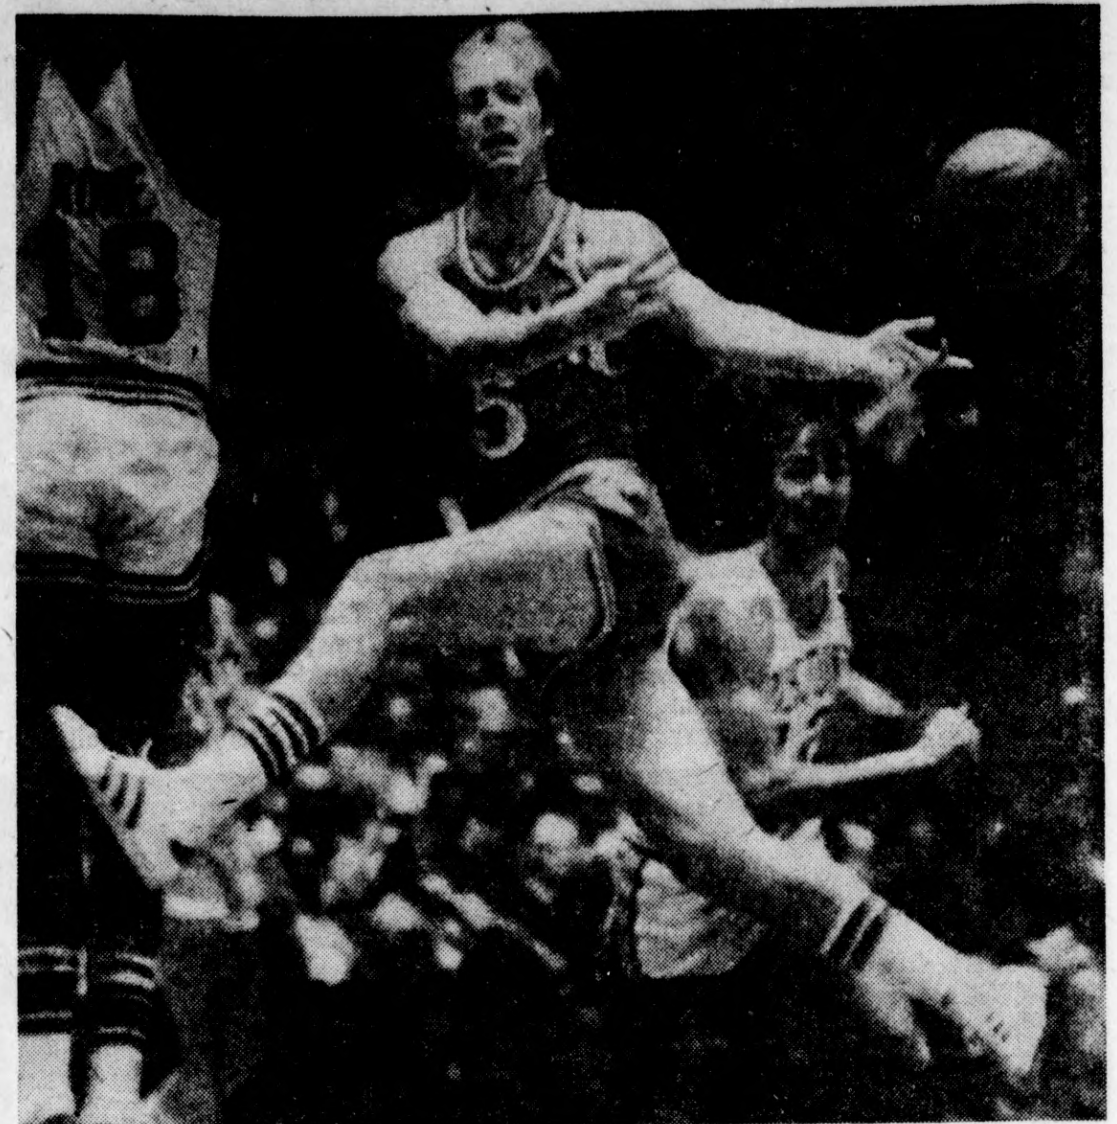

Bob McAdoo scored 33 points and picked up 21 rebounds and Randy Smith pumped in 26 additional points as Buffalo beat Houston. McAdoo, who missed Tuesday night's game against Washington with a strained tendon, scored 17 points in the third quarter to increase a one-point halftime lead to seven, 67-60, going into the fourth quarter and the Rockets never caught up.

Los Angeles, behind a 33-point performance by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, handed New Orleans its fourth straight loss. Taking an early lead and building on it until the middle of the fourth quarter, Los Angeles never looked back as the roadweary Jazz could do nothing to stop the Lakers' fast break.

Scott Wedman poured in 28 points and Jimmy Walker added 22 as Kansas City defeated Seattle. The victory was Kansas City's first of the season on the road after four losses. For the slumping Sonics, the defeat was Seattle's fifth in its past six games.

MIAMI'S QB
MAC'S Best

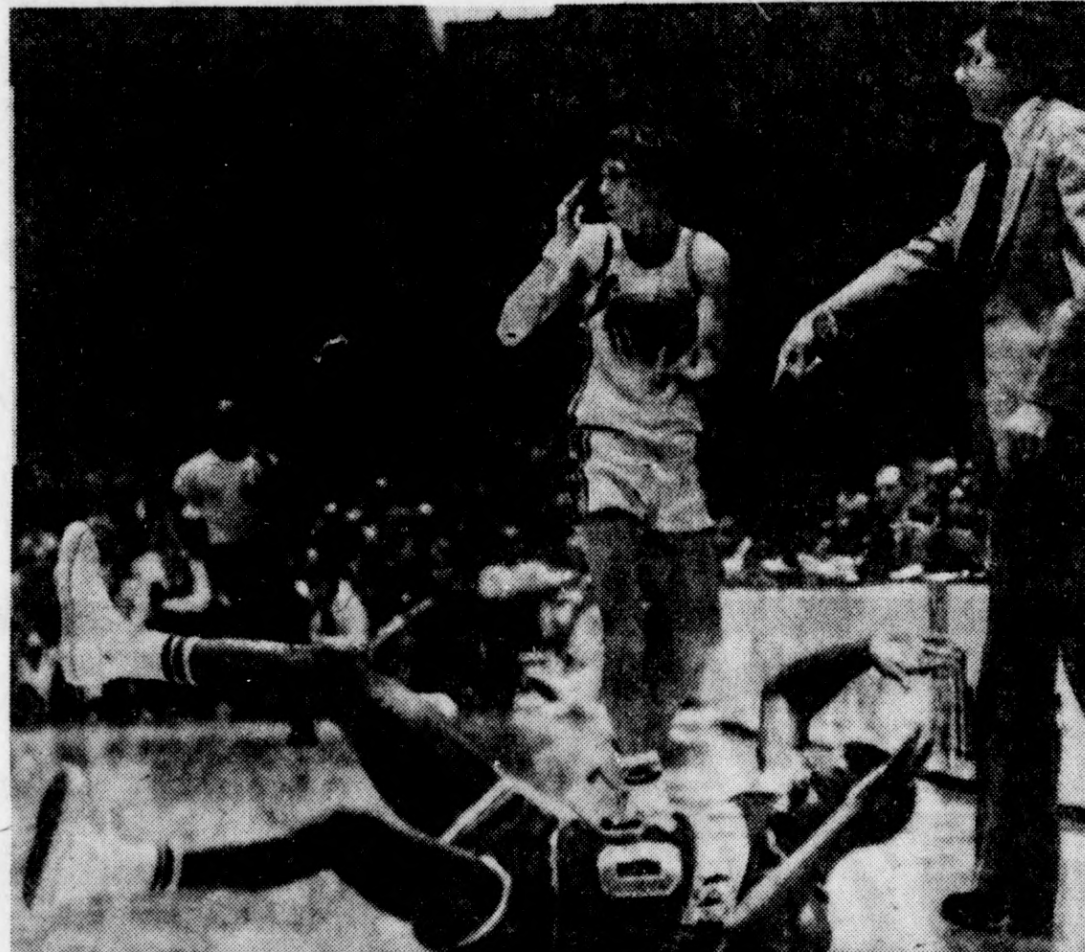

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Quarterback Sherman Smith, a Mid-American Conference Football Player of the Week, can explain Miami's league success. It's tradition and reputation.

"Nobody here wants to be on the Miami team that doesn't win," said the 6-foot-4, 217-pound senior from Youngstown, Ohio, who rushed for four touchdowns and 175 yards in the Redskins' title-clinching triumph at Western Michigan.

"The great tradition and reputation here are as much as anything responsible for us getting through this period of injuries successfully," said Smith, who has quarterbacked Miami to a third straight Tangerine Bowl spot.

Considered a prospect by the pros, Smith knows he's not being considered as a quarterback.

"Scouts talk in terms of wide receiver or running back. One of them even talked about the possibility of tight end. I don't care. I just want a chance to play," said Smith.

Deer Checking Stations In Area

There will be five special Department of Natural Resources deer checking stations in the area during the upcoming Nov. 15-30 firearm season.

Hunters bringing their deer to stations at the DNR headquarters in Plainwell, the Allegan State Game Area headquarters, the Barry State Game Area headquarters, the Cassopolis DNR Field Office or the St. Joseph County ASCS Office will receive the "1975 Successful Michigan Deer Hunter" shoulder patch.

Biologists will examine deer and use accumulated information for the future management of the whitetail herd. Successful hunters are urged to bring in the head (antlers included, if a buck) or the entire animal.

The following is a list of the checking stations and their time schedules:

Plainwell — Weekdays

(including Thanksgiving morning) and opening weekend (Nov. 15 and 16).

Allegan State Game Area — Same as Plainwell, except closed Thanksgiving.

Cassopolis — One day only (Nov. 22 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.).

St. Joseph ASCS — One day only (Nov. 22 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.).

Barry State Game Area — Weekdays, except closed Thanksgiving.

Buchanan Football Coach Resigns

BUCHANAN — Dave Shoemaker has announced his resignation as football coach at Buchanan high school, athletic director Ray Berry announced Wednesday.

In three years under Shoemaker, the Bucks posted just a 7-20 record. Buchanan finished 1-8 this past season, believed to be the worst season in school history. It was a season in which Buchanan had as many problems off the field as they did on.

Principal Walt Vanderbush said that Buchanan "wants to get the best man available" and indicated that the new coach will come from outside the present system.

"We need someone unaffected by the things of the past," Vanderbush said. "We need someone who can give us a fresh start."

Shoemaker gave three major reasons for his resignation and indicated the decision was his and his alone.

"The fact that we have no feeder system was one of the reasons," he said. "And it doesn't look like we will have one in the near future."

Buchanan needs to begin the football program and develop talent at earlier levels. We are losing personnel because of that. "The first year I was here, I put in a requisition to have a junior high program. I never had any response to it. Right now if you look at the Buchanan system, football is the only sport that doesn't have a feeder system."

Shoemaker took part of the blame for his second reason, saying, "I've not gotten from these kids what I want attitude wise. I can't put my finger on why. There were some situations that happened during this past season that indicated a lack of responsibility."

He added "I'm taking the brunt of the blame."

His final reason was one which other coaches have also indicated upon leaving Buchanan.

"I just wasn't getting 100 percent support from the administration," he said. "I want to emphasize the word administration. I'm not pointing a finger at one individual."

"In order to work, for someone, you have to know he wants you to work for him. There was a lot of questioning of my techniques, fundamentals and other indirect coaching aspects."

Shoemaker also resigned his post as freshmen basketball coach. He plans to continue as a teacher at Buchanan for the remainder of the present school year, while completing his Masters degree work at Western Michigan University. Though he says he is not bitter, Shoemaker adds that he doesn't want to return to Buchanan next year.

"I'm going to try as hard as I can to get out of the system," Shoemaker said. "But I won't leave my job unless I have another on the line. I will only take the Buchanan job if I can find nothing else."

"I don't want to point fingers because I still have sentiments for Buchanan. I want to see them do well but at this time I don't think that I'm the right man for the program."

"While I've been here we've had many individuals with less than enviable attitudes. The team my second year should have been 7-2 instead of 4-5 but we were not a good football team. We had too many individuals who were after their own accomplishments and not those of the team."

Shoemaker would eventually like to get back into coaching. "My record is not going to command a head coaching job," he said. "I want to coach, though. I'm not down on myself. I made the decision because of the situation involved. I would like to get into a situation where I'm an assistant coach in a successful program for five or six years and then try all over again as a head coach."

Despite some very competitive advertising, neither Ford's Pinto Pony MPG, nor Chevrolet's Chevette Scooter have chosen to compare themselves with us.

There's a reason. We ask you to consider the list on the left, and the box above. You'll notice that, in addition to being America's lowest priced car, our Gremlin goes farther on a tank of gas than anybody's car.

Yet, Gremlin is the only car in its class that offers the performance and durability of a standard six-cylinder engine. And, unlike Chevette Scooter or Pinto Pony MPG, only Gremlin offers the optional convenience of both automatic transmission and factory air-conditioning.

We built our Gremlin to be an economy car. But we also built it to deliver the kind of performance and driveability we think you have a right to expect of any car.

That's why, although Gremlin delivers better than 30 mpg highway and 20 mpg city (EPA Estimated), it offers more horsepower, more road-hugging weight, and a wider track than any car in its class.

And maybe that's why Ford and Chevy conveniently chose to ignore us. But, then again, we think there's a much more important reason.

It's the AMC BUYER PROTECTION PLAN.

Tigers To Play Brewers In Home Opener For 1976

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers will open their 1976 home season against the Milwaukee Brewers on April 13, the team announced Wednesday. It will be one of 81 home games on 76 dates in the season.

which winds up Sept. 26 against New York. One road series will precede the Tiger Stadium opening and a weeklong road series will follow the home closer.

The club, apparently looking at wintry weather which has cut crowds and even delayed some games in the past two years, said the April 13 opener is the latest since 1971.

Ticket prices will remain unchanged, the club said.

The Tigers will play 49 night games, including two two-night doubleheaders and two Saturday night contests. The only Sunday doubleheader on the schedule will be Aug. 9 against Cleveland.

The first night game of the season will be May 4 against Minnesota.

The Tigers also said shortstop Tom Veryzer was selected by players, coaches and managers to the Major League Rookie All-Star team.

Also taking honors was Fred Hatfield, manager of Detroit's Evansville farm club. Hatfield was named American Association manager of the year, the Tigers said.

Evansville won the league championship and the Junior World Series.

Clubs Picked For Playoffs

to participate in the 1975 Division III Football Championship and host first-round competition on their campuses Nov. 22.

Wittenberg was the national champion in 1973 and Ithaca was runner-up to Central College of Pella, Iowa, in the 1974 Championship.

The semifinals, also on campus, will be staged November 29, with the championship game on December 6 in Phenix City, Alabama. The five remaining schools to participate in the eight-team playoff system will be announced no later than Monday, November 17.

Texas A&M Fans Wary Of Texas

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — The elevator operator in the Kyle Stadium press box pushed the descent button and eyed his passengers.

"Pretty impressive out there today weren't they?" he said to no one in particular. Someone answered that, indeed, the unbeaten Aggies looked good in a 38-3 drubbing of Southern Methodist.

"Yeah, but it doesn't mean a thing unless they beat Texas ... that's when I'll believe they're for real," he said.

Aggie fans know that dark cloud from Austin is coming. And it tempers the enthusiasm of being ranked No. 3 in the country — the highest since 1957 when Bear Bryant "heard Mama call" and went back to Alabama.

A&M was No. 1 in 1957. Bryant made his announcement that he was going to 'Bama and the Aggies lost to Rice, Texas and then to Tennessee in the Gator Bowl. Some Aggies never forgave Bryant for that because they felt he sold out a potential national champion.

The only time the Aggies have won the national championship was in 1959. The last time A&M was in the Cotton Bowl was in 1968 when the Aggies stunned Alabama 20-16. However, the Aggie team that year only had an overall record of 7-4. They did beat the aforementioned "dark cloud" — the University of Texas — 10-7 in Kyle Field.

And eight years later, the Aggies are still trying to do it again. Texas has dominated the bitter series with a 58-18-5 record. Should the Aggies defeat Rice Saturday, the hated Longhorns again stand in the path of a possible championship season on Nov. 28 in a nationally televised game in Kyle Field.

If the Aggies defeat Rice and Texas, then there's still a Dec. 6 date with Arkansas in Little Rock, also on national TV.

To rebuild, the Aggies went to the University of Texas to snatch one of Darrell Royal's top assistants, Emory Bellard. Bellard had been the catalyst behind the Longhorns' wish-bone-T offense which propelled Texas to two national titles.

However, he was no overnight success. He had to recruit his players. "You've got to get your own players to establish a successful program and it's nice to see people recognizing our program as a successful one," said Bellard, who has made several canny moves.

In one, he hired defensive coordinator Melvin Robertson away from Houston. The Aggies were second in the nation in defense last year and own the country's top defense this season. Staffs from Notre Dame, Northwestern, Iowa, and Tennessee came calling in the off-season to view the Aggie 4-3 alignment.

If anything, the Aggies have had problems establishing a consistent offense. So Bellard brought in Tom Wilson from Texas Tech to call plays, install the I-formation and work with the quarterbacks.

The Aggies abound in talent and most of the squad has played together three or four years.

'Cardiac Cards' Exciting St. Louis Winning Thanks To Late Heroics

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "In order to win, we've got to have a fantastic effort by everybody in every game."

Coach Don Coryell believes his words and so, apparently, do his St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League.

Coryell's "Cardiac Cards," in keeping with a tradition they established in 1974, have waited until the final minute — and beyond — to decide five of their eight NFL games.

And, possibly through more than coincidence, in four of the five on which the outcome hinged on late heroics they have recorded victories in their 6-2 campaign.

"I don't know how you're ever going to be able to tell just what's going to happen," says Coryell, whose team last Sunday beat the Philadelphia Eagles 24-23 in the last second to retain a share of the lead in the National Conference East with the Washington Redskins.

"It's a two-way street," Coryell said. "You have to remember the Dallas game (37-31). They had the poise. They won in overtime."

"In the Washington game we played before, you have to give them the credit," said Coryell, referring to a 27-17 loss dealt the Cards in one of the few games decided prior to the closing seconds.

Whether breaks, desire or talent plays the biggest role in continuing St. Louis victories is a question Coryell has not yet been able to answer.

"I wouldn't say it's more than talent," he said, but added: "I wouldn't belittle the talent of any of our folks."

"It's just that in this league everybody has good talent," pointed out the coach of a team which last year rose from obscurity to a 10-4 record and the NFC East title.

Beginning with Jim Bakken's late field goal in a 23-20 victory over Atlanta, a succession of nerve-fraying St. Louis finishes followed with the Dallas game, a defeat.

The New York Giants and Eagles were dispensed with in more conventional style, then Norm Thompson's pass interception in the fleeting seconds protected a 20-13 margin over the Giants in a return game.

Bakken's field goal and two Terry McCalif touchdowns rallied the Cards from a 17-7 deficit to a 24-17 triumph two weeks ago over the New England Patriots.

And finally last week, in perhaps a finish to top all finishes, Bakken calmly booted a 30-yard field goal at the final gun to snare victory from defeat over Philadelphia.

"I think we're a better football team," said Coryell, who cited his team's ability to "make the most of our opportunities" and sustained hunger for success.

Iowa Oaks Sign With White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox have signed a working agreement to contract the Iowa Oaks in Des Moines as a farm club, officials announced Wednesday.

The White Sox had operated with the Oaks, a member of the American Association in 1973 and 1974, but Chicago contracted with the Denver Bears of the same league in 1975. The Houston Astros had used Iowa as their farm club in 1975.

Loren Babe, the 1975 coach at Denver, will manage the club in Des Moines. Houston has moved its farm operations to Memphis and Montreal has contracted with Denver for next year.

Bangor's Heistands Grab Racing Titles

BANGOR — Bangor's speedy grandparents, Dick and Alma Heistand, have wrapped up summer snowmobile racing championships.

Dick took season titles in the 300 and 340 stock classes in a series of races sponsored by the Michigan International Snowmobile Association while Alma claimed the 340 super stock crown in the powderpuff division.

Dick rode a GP 282 Yamaha to his championships (he also placed third on the machine in the 440 stock class). Alma drove a GPX 338 Yamaha.

It was Dick's third straight championship in MISA competition. He won the association's 300 stock titles in the summer of 1974 and again last winter.

In this summer's eight-race season which ended in October (the snowmobiles race on grass), Dick finished with 2,725 season points in the 300 class, compared to the second place finishers 2,005. In the 340 division, he had 1,955 and the second placer just 420. Alma won her crown with 1,445 points, compared to 830 for second.

'Cardiac Cards' Exciting St. Louis Winning Thanks To Late Heroics

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "In order to win, we've got to have a fantastic effort by everybody in every game."

Coach Don Coryell believes his words and so, apparently, do his St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League.

Coryell's "Cardiac Cards," in keeping with a tradition they established in 1974, have waited until the final minute — and beyond — to decide five of their eight NFL games.

And, possibly through more than coincidence, in four of the five on which the outcome hinged on late heroics they have recorded victories in their 6-2 campaign.

"I don't know how you're ever going to be able to tell just what's going to happen," says Coryell, whose team last Sunday beat the Philadelphia Eagles 24-23 in the last second to retain a share of the lead in the National Conference East with the Washington Redskins.

"It's a two-way street," Coryell said. "You have to remember the Dallas game (37-31). They had the poise. They won in overtime."

"In the Washington game we played before, you have to give them the credit," said Coryell, referring to a 27-17 loss dealt the Cards in one of the few games decided prior to the closing seconds.

Whether breaks, desire or talent plays the biggest role in continuing St. Louis victories is a question Coryell has not yet been able to answer.

"I wouldn't say it's more than talent," he said, but added: "I wouldn't belittle the talent of any of our folks."

"It's just that in this league everybody has good talent," pointed out the coach of a team which last year rose from obscurity to a 10-4 record and the NFC East title.

Beginning with Jim Bakken's late field goal in a 23-20 victory over Atlanta, a succession of nerve-fraying St. Louis finishes followed with the Dallas game, a defeat.

The New York Giants and Eagles were dispensed with in more conventional style, then Norm Thompson's pass interception in the fleeting seconds protected a 20-13 margin over the Giants in a return game.

Bakken's field goal and two Terry Metcalf touchdowns rallied the Cards from a 17-7 deficit to a 24-17 triumph two weeks ago over the New England Patriots.

And finally last week, in perhaps a finish to top all finishes, Bakken calmly booted a 30-yard field goal at the final gun to snare victory from defeat over Philadelphia.

"I think we're a better football team," said Coryell, who cited his team's ability to "make the most of our opportunities" and "sustained hunger for success."

It was Dick's third straight championship in MISA competition. He won the association's 300 stock titles in the summer of 1974 and again last winter.

In this summer's eight-race season which ended in October (the snowmobiles race on grass), Dick finished with 2,725 season points in the 300 class, compared to the second place finishers 2,005. In the 340 division, he had 1,955 and the second placer just 420. Alma won her crown with 1,445 points, compared to 830 for second.

Compromise Energy Bill Awaits Final Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — Energy legislation that would reduce fuel prices temporarily is awaiting final action in the Senate and House after winning approval of congressional conferees and apparently of the Ford administration.

The bill, if signed by President Ford, would establish a national energy policy and resolve a 10-month-old impasse between the Democratic Congress and the Republican White House.

Congressional economists estimated the legislation would result in an immediate 3.5-cent reduction in the price of a gallon of gasoline or heating oil. Prices would begin rising above today's level in mid-1977, going from the present 60-cent per gallon average for gasoline to about 63.5 cents if other factors remain constant.

Democrats on the Senate-House conference committee that wrote the final bill said they have assurances from Ford administration officials that the compromise is acceptable. But none of the 11 Republican conferees signed the measure. The bill, cleared by the conference committee Wednesday night after 15 days of debate, is likely to gain final congressional approval by the end of the month.

But since current controls on oil prices are due to expire Saturday, Congress probably will rush to the White House a stop-gap measure to prevent controls from lapsing until the long-range bill is approved. Or the long-range plan could be made retroactive to Saturday.

In addition to extending oil-price controls through March 15, 1978, the bill includes a variety of energy-conservation plans and creates standby presidential authority for gasoline rationing.

The most controversial conservation sections would require the auto industry to manufacture cars that use less gasoline and direct the states to enforce measures aimed at cutting energy consumption by 5 percent by 1980.

But most of the squabbling between Congress and the White House over energy policy centered on the price of oil.

The conferees' bill represents a softening of positions on both sides. Ford has insisted that all price controls be ended immediately. Key Democrats, who had argued for virtually permanent controls, agreed to let them expire within 40 months.

The conference that wrote the final terms of the bill labored for 15 days. But the final item of dispute was not worked out until late Wednesday when the committee agreed to a provision that could lead to greater price incentives for the expensive production of the oil in Alaska.

However, the agreement does not assure special treatment for Alaska. The bill authorizes the president — but only if Congress approves — to allow higher prices for Alaskan oil in 1977, a few months before production there is due to start.

Even so, Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., said officials of the Federal Energy Administration had assured him that approval of the Alaska incentive would

TV Tells Story Of Ambushed Officers

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS is airing tonight "Foster and Laurie," a somewhat glib, yet well-acted dramatization of the lives of two young rookie cops who were ambushed and killed here in January 1972.

The officers, Gregory Foster and Rocco Laurie, were shot from behind by several men while on foot patrol in the Lower East Side. A day later, letters signed "Black Liberation Army" claimed that BLA members did the shooting.

Foster was black, Laurie white. Tonight's movie shows that each initially distrusted the other, Laurie because he was uneasy working with a black, Foster because he suspected his fellow cop of bigotry.

In one scene, Foster says that to get closer to the people, cops have got to patrol on foot, not in a police car. Says Laurie, "That's a good way to get a brick dropped on your head — ghetto airmail."

How they become close friends, an effective team on their racially-diverse beat, and subsequently marked for death by a small band of black extremists is amply shown in tonight's two-hour film.

Dorian Harewood is superb as Foster and Perry King turns in a well-shaded performance as his white partner.

Alas, Albert Ruben's script doesn't equal their performances. While it points out that the two cops and their families never socialized with each other, despite the officers' closeness, it makes the Foster-Laurie relationship too simplistic, too pat.

It depicts the two cops as becoming tight, as the saying goes, only after each learns the other was a Marine and that they served at about the same time in the Vietnam war, albeit in different units.

Their common experience in the Corps and combat is portrayed as the magic bond that brings the two together, but it obviously was a lot more than that and this isn't brought out in the movie.

The telling of their stories as cops, on and off the job, comes in a series of scenes that shift from their family lives, their work and the feverish attempts to keep them alive after they're shot.

Amid this are sporadic scenes of the black extremists, one of whom is uncertain about the need to kill "a brother," planning to kill the cops as a revolutionary statement of "self-defense."

The movie starts with a reenactment of the shooting in which Foster was killed outright and Laurie fatally wounded.

In the film, however, this is changed. Foster is depicted as also wounded, and he and Laurie are rushed by fellow officers in a hospital for emergency surgery.

It is there, at the end of the show, that they die on operating tables a few feet apart. And then Foster's widow consoles the widow of Laurie.

It's a dramatically tidy ending and that's what wrong with this movie. Save for a few effective scenes, it seems more an exercise in tight script construction than a real effort to recreate a real story about two cops whose killers still haven't been caught.

THROUGH the Americans had long sought a means of reducing British influence in West Florida and indeed had made a feeble attempt in 1778 to do so, it was left to the Spanish to threaten the center of British power at Fort George at Pensacola. Spain had allied herself with France and in June 1779, declared war against Great Britain. In August of that year, under the leadership of Bernardo de Galvez, governor of Louisiana, Spanish forces captured the British outpost on the lower Mississippi River. The World Almanac notes.

CONNERY: Just a few as Bond.

LYNN & HUSBAND: No politics for her.

BOBBY DOING DOCUMENTARY Kennedy Name Still Magic

Q: How does some kid like Bobby Kennedy Jr. get to go to Africa and do a TV documentary? How did that come about? — G.E., Orono, Me.

A: The networks know a Kennedy name is a sure boost for the ratings and they also knew Bobby Jr. to be an avid naturalist. Photographer and animal expert Peter Beard, who has a new African book out titled "Longing for Darkness," helped arrange and plan Bobby's trip.

Q: Were most of the films made by Sean Connery those in the James Bond series? — G.L., Scottsdale, Ariz.

A: No. Ray Stark's "Robin and Marian," which Sean is currently doing in Spain with Audrey Hepburn, is the Scotsman's 31st picture. Deducing the 10 he made before he hit real stardom leaves 21 in which he has been the leading man. Only six of these were the Bond epics.

Q: We all know about Vanessa Redgrave's politics but how about her sister, Lynn? — F.L., Sandusky, Ohio

vor and much prefers to concern herself with her family (husband, actor John Clark, and their two children). According to the younger Ms. Redgrave, "I just don't feel strongly enough to carry a banner, but think actors are human beings and have a right to their own opinions."

PEOPLE

By Robin Adams Sloan

Meanwhile, Vanessa hasn't ordered herself to fellow British actors by proposing a "success tax" to be paid by top stars to British Equity.

Q: I have read Truman Capote's excerpt from his new book "Answered Prayers" in the current Esquire. How can he possibly use these people's real names and not be sued for libel when he repeats all this society gossip? — H.R., N.Y., N.Y.

A: Truman has cleverly not said anything libelous about the famous people he names, such as pals of his like Gloria Vanderbilt, Cooper, Carol Grace Matthau, Jackie Onassis and Lee Radziwill. If you'll note, when the tale being told gets into scandal, the person is either dead (like Cole Porter) or else the name is fictitious. Truman has also changed facts just enough to avoid exact identification of the latter.

Q: Is Tennessee Williams definitely a homosexual? Has he ever said so or not? — D.E., Orange, N.J.

A: In his new book for Doubleday titled "Memoirs," America's leading playwright makes a clean breast of his homosexuality. In fact, he tells all — over and over again. The book's homophile incidents are sometimes quite funny and even the most bizarre of them are redeemed by Williams' eloquent and sensitive good humor and rueful self-examination.

Q: With all this controversy about the President's son Jack smoking marijuana, what about the other Ford boy? Has he, too, taken up the weed? — V.T., Silver City, Nev.

A: Steve Ford, 19, says he hasn't tried marijuana. A freshman majoring in animal science at Utah State, Steve wants to be a rancher and dislikes the Eastern high life. He says, "There's no way I'm going to stay in Washington and BOBBY: A ratings booster.

THE LONGEST WORD in Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary is "pneumonoultramicroscopicsilicovolcanoconiosis." It means a lung disease caused by the inhalation of very fine silicate or quartz dust. . . Those Laws: In Colorado it's illegal for guests at weddings to throw shoes. . . Our Confusing Language: pays, gaze, raise, loas.

BEAUTY HINT from Polly Bergen: Too much makeup under the eyes can emphasize even the smallest lines, as the makeup can settle in them. . . # One-Way Bottle Bill May Die In Committee

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A bill to ban no-deposit cans and bottles for soft drinks and beer has suffered what supporters see as a fatal setback in a state House committee.

On a 7-4 vote, the bill was sent from the House Consumers Committee to the House Appropriations Committee, which is considered hostile to the measure.

"This will have the effect of guaranteeing the bill will not see the light of day again," said Rep. Lynn Jondahl, consumers committee chairman and sponsor of the measure.

However, "It will have its day in court," promised appropriations chairman Dominic Jacobetti, D-Negaunee.

I am against the bill myself. There is enough unemployment in the state now," said Jacobetti.

Repeating claims that banning nonreturnables would cut jobs by reducing the number of bottles in demand.

The bill would impose deposits of five or 10 cents for beverage containers. The deposit is returned when empties are brought back.

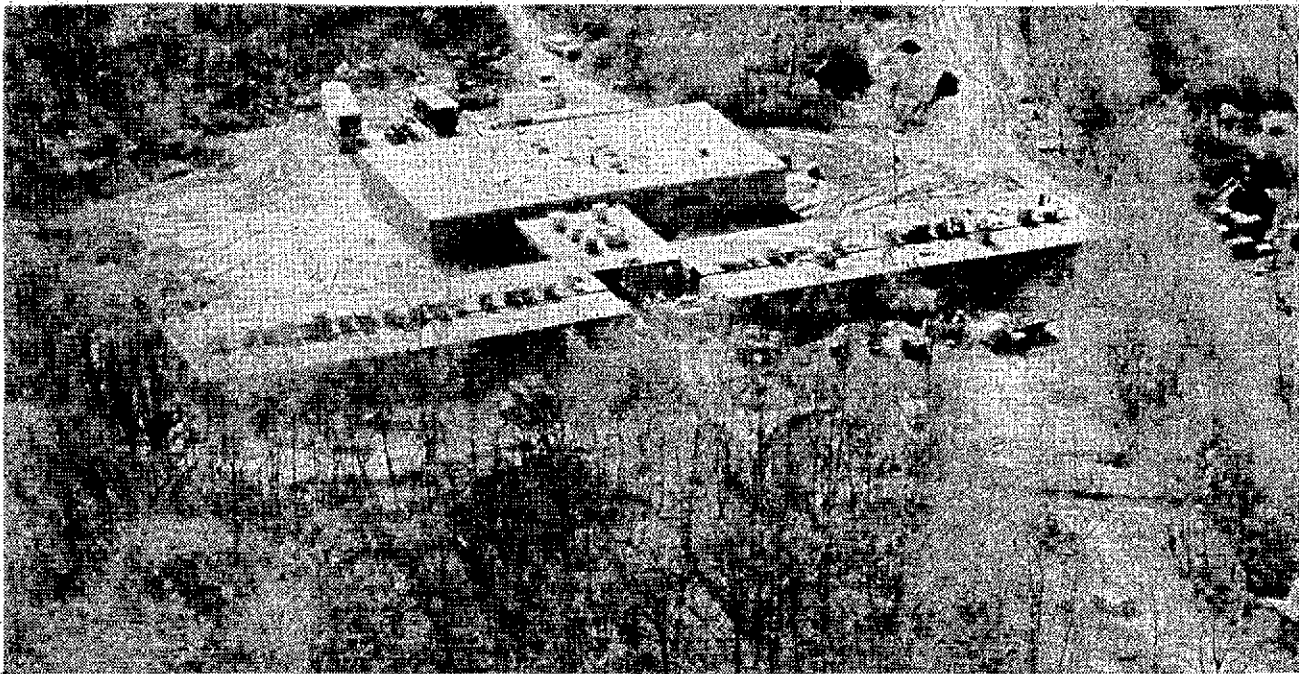

Environmentalists hoped the bill would encourage manufacturers to make reusable bottles and recyclable cans. The measure also would ban detachable "pop-tops" from cans. Instead, push-in circles, which remain on the can, would be required.

Environmentalists argued that a ban on non-returnables would reduce litter along roadsides and in streams, woods and campsites. Cleanup costs to taxpayers would, thereby be lowered, they claimed.

A state Public Service Commission staff report predicted over 4,100 new jobs could be created if the bill was adopted, mainly because of increased bottle-handling. The report also said energy savings from the ban could equal half of what is now used to make one-way bottles and cans.

Industry spokesmen counter those claims, saying the ban would force bottling companies out of business or at least out of Michigan because of a decreased need for bottles. Rep. Joseph Forbes, D-Oak Park, who opposed the bill, argued it would cost the state at least $1 million to enforce the ban.

Jondahl noted a similar bill in the Senate Agriculture and Consumers Affairs Committee may see action. Also, the ban might be placed on the 1976

Van Buren Okays Budget; Up 8 Per Cent

By DENNIS COGSWELL

commissioners yesterday unanimously approved a 1976 budget of $2,774,278, about an eight per cent increase over last year's expenditures.

Total revenues and expenditures remained unchanged from preliminary budget figures announced last month, but commissioners did raise appropriations to three departments, deducting the increases from funds budgeted for contin-

The changes included an increase of $12,000 to the health department, an additional $4,000 to the county library, and an extra $1,500 for the sheriff's department.

The health department increase was granted, according to finance chairman Gerald Rendel, in order to give department employees pay increases equivalent to the average 4.2 per cent raises granted courthouse workers earlier. The additional $12,000 brought the health department's appropriation to $262,775, a $17,000 increase over last year's figure of $245,775.

In the preliminary budget, the county library appropriation had been slashed from $46,946 to $36,000 in anticipation of a $21,000 increase in library fines, Rendel said. However, the library's state aid has been cut by $7,000, so commissioners decided to add an extra $4,000, bringing the total 1976 allocation to $40,000, Rendel said.

The $1,500 extra approved for the sheriff's department brought its total to $238,065, the largest single item in the budget. It represents an increase of about $23,000 over the 1974 appropriation.

The $1,500 will be used to pay Sheriff Richard Stump's wife, Mary, for bookkeeping and auditing at the jail. It had been a part of last year's budget, Rendel said, but was cut in anticipation that three new matrons to be hired next year could do the bookkeeping.

Commissioners agreed to put the $1,500 back in the budget after Stump said he felt its elimination was "not justified."

The three changes decreased the amount available in the contingency fund to $44,753. Rendel warned that part of that will have to be used when the county arrives at a final contract with the union representing sheriff's deputies, which is now under negotiation.

Among the other major items in the budget are: circuit court, $82,438; district court, $223,166; probate court, $71,220; prosecuting attorney, $82,606; courthouse and grounds, $82,992; state institutions, $90,310; and social services, $110,000.

The new budget is based on anticipated revenues of $1,508,285 from general property taxes; $114,993 from a four-tenths mill property tax levy for ambulance services; estimated return from state income tax of $330,000; fees and other revenues of $570,000; and a surplus of $260,000.

In other areas, commissioners approved the creation of a county construction board of appeals and appointed Commissioner Boyd Estes, Joseph Miller of Deatur township, and George Westcott of Pine Grove township to serve two-year terms on it.

Commissioner Donald Hanson said the appeal board will function only in cases where there is no local appeal board, and also does not have the authority to rule on decisions by state building inspectors. Persons appealing will have to pay a fee of $10 per diem for each of the three board members, plus their mileage at 12 cents per mile.

Sheryl Duines, director of the Van Buren Juvenile Court Friends program, which uses adult volunteers to counsel juveniles in trouble with the law, said commissioners will soon have to decide if they want to pick up a greater share of the program's funding.

Presently, the program is funded on a matching basis, 50 per cent of which is federal; five per cent state, and five per cent local. Under the terms of the contract, in order to continue the program the county would have to fund 50 per cent next year, and 100 per cent the following year. Next year's budget has been set at $56,647, Miss Duines said.

Les Brown, county planning commission chairman, reported that he has heard of no opposition so far to implementing a program of assigning number addresses to all county houses. Most rural homes now have only box, route, or street addresses.

Commissioners voted to set dog licenses at $5, with a $10 fee for delinquent licenses. The fees had been $4 and $8. Rendel said the additional revenue would be applied toward an animal shelter should commissioners decide to build one at some future date.

Commissioners reappointed Brown, Jacob Baas, and Dan Anderson to the county planning commission, and named Norman Orr of Mattawan to fill out the unexpired term of William Mumford, who has resigned.

Robert Morris of Hartford was also appointed to a term on the county health board.

Van Buren Board Names Its First Woman Member

PAW PAW — Mrs. Shirley Jackson of Paw Paw yesterday became the first woman ever to serve on Van Buren county's governing body, breaking a 138-year-old tradition of men only.

Mrs. Jackson, 44, was appointed by the county board of commissioners to fill the unexpired term of Commissioner Lloyd Martin, of Lawton, who died Oct. 11. His district included Lawton, part of Paw Paw village and parts of Antwerp, Decatur and Paw Paw townships.

According to Harry Bush, Paw Paw superintendent of public works and local historian, Mrs. Jackson is the first woman ever to serve on the county board of commissioners, or its predecessor, the board of supervisors, since the county was formed in 1837.

Mrs. Jackson, who had the endorsement of the Van Buren Republican party, has served on the Paw Paw housing commission and Bicentennial committee and county jury board. She and her husband, Paw Paw township Clerk Robert Jackson, have two children and reside at 121 Lakeview Terrace, Paw Paw.

AT COLOMA

Watervliet Bank Can Open Branch

A U.S. District court judge in Grand Rapids has ruled that the First National Bank of Watervliet can open a branch in Coloma township.

Judge Wendell Miles entered an opinion and order Tuesday dismissing a request by the Coloma State Bank for a permanent injunction that would prevent the Watervliet bank from opening the branch office.

The motion to dismiss the request was made by the Watervliet bank and federal comptroller of currency James Smith, who originally approved the bank's application to open a Coloma township branch.

In dismissing the request for an injunction, Judge Miles delayed the effect of his order for 15 days to give the Coloma

State bank the opportunity to seek a restraining order from the Circuit Court of Appeals preventing opening of the branch if it intends to appeal the decision.

Approval of the branch bank was originally given in late June, but opening has been blocked by a temporary restraining order issued by Judge Miles on July 24.

The branch bank site is near the intersection of Red Arrow highway and Center street, just outside the Coloma city limits and near the site of a proposed $4 million shopping center.

Watervliet bank officials have indicated that they will erect a temporary mobile banking unit on the site until permanent facilities are constructed.

of that long-term feedstock supply," Hedges said, defending the decision. "In the long run, they'll benefit."

Don Bateman, chief of the state Public Service Commission's gas division, told a special House committee in Lansing Wednesday that Consumers' action was "not in the best interest of Consumers' customers or the state."

He said it was "highly unusual" for Consumers' to turn down the offer of cheaper supplies.

A utility spokesman said the utility has purchased same gas from Michigan Consolidated within the last two months. He said the utility's storage areas have emptied as energy use increases.

In 1972 Consumers began a 15-year contract with a

Canadian supplier of feedstock, a propane mixture used in the production of synthetic natural gas, Hedges said, with the condition that the utility pay for the feedstock every year, whether or not the plant is operating.

If it had purchased the Michigan Consolidated gas, production at Marysville could have been curtailed, saving ratepayers money but costing the company, sources said.

Erosion Control Device Does Job At Michiana

MICHIANA — An experimental erosion control device designed to protect Michiana's beach was wrecked by Monday's gale-force storm, but did protect the beach, according to Forest McCance, village superintendent.

McCance said yesterday that the first-of-its-kind device, an intricate pattern of tires linked by steel chain, was able to weather the high winds and waves of the storm which blew across the lake late Sunday and early Monday.

He said, after surveying the beach yesterday no signs of further erosion could be detected because of the device's protection.

Erosion along the 200-foot stretch has previously jeopardized buried electrical and gas lines, according to village officials.

McCance said the linked tires were moved by the storm several feet toward the shore from their original positions. He said about 25 per cent of the tires, located at yet-to-be-completed south end of the device were forced to the edge of the water line, but still were providing protection for the beach.

The device was installed, anchored, some three weeks ago. A storm soon followed, however, and the entire device was washed ashore.

McCance said.

The village is hopeful that the device will prove successful because of its low cost, according to Robert Dixon, village councilman. Dixon said the tire revetment will cost about $7,500, while more traditional devices could run as high as $26,000 to $52,000.

McCance said yesterday that repair work on the device depends on weather conditions. He said that waves of three to four feet were crashing into the device yesterday and that a calm lake is required for the repair work.

The motion to dismiss the request was made by the Watervliet bank and federal controller of currency James Smith, who originally approved the bank's application to open a Coloma township branch.

In dismissing the request for an injunction, Judge Miles delayed the effect of his order for 15 days to give the Coloma

State bank the opportunity to seek a restraining order from the Circuit Court of Appeals preventing opening of the branch if it intends to appeal the decision.

Approval of the branch bank was originally given in late June, but opening has been blocked by a temporary restraining order issued by Judge Miles on July 24.

The branch bank site is near the intersection of Red Arrow highway and Center street, just outside the Coloma city limits and near the site of a proposed $4 million shopping center.

Watervliet bank officials have indicated that they will erect a temporary mobile banking unit on the site until permanent facilities are constructed.

Don Bateman, chief of the state Public Service Commission's gas division, told a special House committee in Lansing Wednesday that Consumers' action was "not in the best interest of Consumers' customers or the state."

He said it was "highly unusual" for Consumers' to turn down the offer of cheaper supplies.

A utility spokesman said the utility has purchased some gas from Michigan Consolidated within the last two months. He said the utility's storage areas have emptied as energy use increases.

In 1972 Consumers began a 15-year contract with a

Canadian supplier of feedstock, a propane mixture used in the production of synthetic natural gas, Hedges said, with the condition that the utility pay for the feedstock every year, whether or not the plant is operating.

If it had purchased the Michigan Consolidated gas, production at Marysville could have been curtailed, saving ratepayers money but costing the company, sources said.

Erosion Control Device Does Job At Michiana

MICHIANA — An experimental erosion control device designed to protect Michiana's beach was rocked by Monday's gale-force storm, but did protect the beach, according to Forest McCance, village superintendent.

McCance said yesterday that the first-of-its-kind device, an intricate pattern of tires linked by steel chain, was able to weather the high winds and waves of the storm which blew across the lake late Sunday and early Monday.

He said, after surveying the beach yesterday no signs of further erosion could be detected because of the device's protection.

Erosion along the 260-foot stretch has previously jeopardized buried electrical and gas lines, according village officials.

McCance said the linked tires were moved by the storm several feet toward the shore from their original positions. He said about 25 per cent of the tires, located at yet-to-be-completed south end of the device were forced to the edge of the water line, but still were providing protection for the beach.

The device was installed, unanchored, some three weeks ago. A storm soon followed, however, and the entire device was washed ashore.

Last Wednesday, an Air Force National Guard helicopter was used to install the anchors (weighted 55-gallon drums) and two days later a crane was used to replant the device in the lake, McCance said. The village is hopeful that the device will prove successful because of its low cost, according to Robert Dixon, village councilman. Dixon said the tire revetment will cost about $7,500, while more traditional devices could run as high as $26,000 to $52,000.

McCance said yesterday that repair work on the device depends on weather conditions. He said that waves of three to four feet were crashing into the device yesterday and that a calm lake is required for the repair work.

London Bomb Kills One

LONDON (AP) — The fifth bomb explosion in London's fashionable West End in three weeks killed one person and injured 15 others, including an American couple, Scotland Yard announced. The Irish Republican Army was blamed. The bomb was hurled through a window of Scott's, an expensive seafood restaurant on Mount Street, at 8:30 p.m. when about 70 customers were dining. It blew up the oyster and lobster bar and started a fire. Three men, one with red hair, were seen running from the restaurant toward Hyde Park after the blast.

Tax Vote Set For Hartford Township Hall

HARTFORD — A property tax proposal to finance land acquisition and construction of a town hall will be put on the August, 1976, primary election ballot. Hartford township officials said last night.

Township officials said the amount of the proposed millage levy will not be determined until after an architect's building plans are adopted.

Besides anticipated building costs, the township in June borrowed $20,000 for the purchase of 13.69 acres along CR-687, south of the city, as the future township hall site. The land cost $23,944.

Its former township hall, which it shared with the city and the fire department, burned to the ground in 1972. The township now meets in Hartford city hall.

In other areas, Paul Kaiser, engineer-manager of the Van Buren county road commission, said a cable television firm has been warned to stop burying cable lines within county rights-of-way along county roads.

Kaiser said the warning in the form of a letter was sent to James Bradley, a representative of American Consolidated Properties of Kalamazoo.

Kaiser said the firm has failed to get county permission to bury the cable television lines along county roads.

The firm has approval to bury

New York Stocks

As quoted by
WM. C. RONEY & CO., 865 W. MAIN, B.H.

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes for agreement on a plan to avert a financial collapse by New York City carried stocks strongly higher again today.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up about a point, and gainers outpaced losers by about a 3-1 margin in the early going on the New York Stock Exchange.

A special session of the New York State Legislature was set to reconvene this morning to consider tax and debt-restructuring measures as part of a plan being put together with the aim of preventing a default by New York City.

President Ford indicated late Wednesday he was still opposed to the idea of federal help for the city.

But in what many took to be a softening of his position, the President said he was encouraged by what he called the fiscal "progress" being made in the state and city toward development of a better fiscal picture.

Today's early prices included Citicorp, up 3/4 at 30 3/8; White Motor, unchanged at 5 3/8; American Airlines, ahead 1/8 at 8; and Kennecott Copper, up 1/4 at 28 1/2.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 13.70 to 892.25, its sharpest rise in nearly a month.

Big Board volume surged to 23.96 million shares, the heaviest total since mid-July.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index climbed 1.13 to 85.28.

Watervliet Fire Board Will Meet

WATERVLIET — The Watervliet fire board meeting, originally slated for last night, has been rescheduled for tonight to consider bids for a new fire truck.

Robert Flaherty, fire board secretary-treasurer, said the meeting was postponed to allow all board members to attend the meeting, slated for 7:30 p.m. at the fire station.

The board will consider four bids on a new truck, ranging from $40,000 to $63,585.

Awarding a contract for the truck hinges on whether a federal grant is available to help pay for it.

Two AMC Executives Promoted

DETROIT (AP) — Two top American Motors Corp. executives were promoted Wednesday to newly created posts which make them heirs-apparent to positions of chairman of the board and president.

Settlement On Way At Hospital

CHICAGO (AP) — A tentative contract agreement was reached today in the 18-day strike by interns and doctors at Cook County Hospital, one of the nation's largest hospitals.

A statement by a hospital spokesman said the striking House Staff Association was to submit the tentative settlement to its representative council later today for possible approval.

Terms of the agreement were not disclosed. Both sides had met through most of Wednesday night with federal mediator Leo Bakula.

About 450 interns and doctors struck the hospital Oct. 27 over wages, fringe benefits, union security and patient care. About 170 senior physicians took over their duties, but services at the hospital were drastically curtailed.

South Berrien Ambulance Service Accord Reached

NILES — A tentative agreement giving six townships and cities in southern Berrien and Cass counties emergency ambulance service after Nov. 17 was approved by the Southwest Michigan Community Ambulance service board last night.

STAT ambulance service, with business offices in St. Joseph, will take over emergency ambulance service in the area on Nov. 17, according to Joseph Garbert Jr., chairman of the board. The St. Joseph firm will replace the Gold Crown ambulance service, Niles.

STAT, to be based in Pawtucket hospital in Niles, will provide emergency ambulance service to the cities of Buchanan and Niles, and the townships of Buchanan, Bertrand, Niles and Howard. All are located in Berrien county, with the exception of Howard township, which is located in Cass county.

The ambulance board was formed after the six townships and cities agreed to form the ambulance agency in meetings held the last two weeks.

The board was formed after Robert Wilson, owner of Gold Crown had previously announced he would discontinue emergency service only on Nov. 17 because of $40,000 in uncollected bills.

STAT was one of five ambulance services from Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, Niles and South Bend to make proposals before the board in meetings held on Monday.

Garbert, the city of Buchanan representative on the board, said the agreement with STAT is tentative until a contract is finalized.

The agreement with STAT will only be temporary, according to Garbert. He said the board is seeking to establish a permanent emergency service within the next 90 days.

Garbert also announced two public hearings will be held to determine what kind of permanent ambulance service the six areas want. He said 7:30 p.m. hearings are tentatively scheduled for Dec. 3, at the Niles library, and Dec. 10, at Buchanan high school.

Garbert said the board will consist of six voting members representing the six governments and two ex officio members from Pawtucket and Unity hospitals. Unity hospital is located in Buchanan.

Governmental units from the six areas have agreed to give the ambulance board the power to contract for an emergency service.

Lenders See Red Over 'Greenlining'

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — When you speak of redlining, a consumer activist probably thinks of greenlining and a home mortgage lender sees — well, he sees red.

Redlining, as you probably have heard, occurs when a lender marks off a certain geographical territory, most likely in the blight area, and declines to lend any money there.

This often provokes the greenlining reaction, in which depositors remove their savings, their greenbacks, from the offending institution and place them with one they conclude is more cooperative.

A contradiction? Not quite.

In a narrow business sense, lenders say, investments in certain areas cannot be justified. "We say we have to protect the funds of our savers," said Robert Hazen, of Portland, Ore., who assumed the league presidency at the convention. "We just cannot take the risk," he said.

Few people here deny that they avoid doing business in the inner city. They argue that they aren't the only ones, either, that a variety of business and even governmental enterprises do the same thing.

The "redlining" term irritates them. The practice, it describes, they repeat, is merely the exercise of sound business decisions. Chartered as business institutions, they say they cannot be asked to solve sociological problems.

Congress seems not willing to agree. A bill calling for disclosure of big city areas in which loans are offered or denied is likely to pass both houses. It could be an irritant, but more likely, say lenders here, it won't prove a thing.

"Those figures will be expensive to come up with," said Barry Tate, director of urban affairs for the league, "and the interpretation of what the numbers mean will be difficult to determine."

Some lenders already proclaim that they aren't the only reason so little financial business is conducted in the blighted, inner city area. They insist the record will show loans weren't made there because nobody asked for them.

While they don't try to conceal their belief that the very innermost residential areas are beyond their ability to save, the lenders now have a program they feel could save what they call the "middle ring."

This is an area of "mature communities" lying between the innermost circle and a ring of stable neighborhoods. It is an area in transition. It can go either way, but lenders say that at least they will have a chance

Tax Vote Set For Hartford Township Hall

HARTFORD — A property tax proposal to finance land acquisition and construction of a town hall will be put on the August, 1976, primary election ballot, Hartford township officials said last night.

Township officials said the amount of the proposed millage levy will not be determined until after an architect's building plans are adopted.

Besides anticipated building costs, the township in June borrowed $20,000 for the purchase of 13.89 acres along CR-687, south of the city, as the future township hall site. The land cost $23,944.

Its former township hall, which it shared with the city and the fire department, burned to the ground in 1972. The township now meets in Hartford city hall.

In other areas, Paul Kaiser, engineer-manager of the Van Buren county road commission, said a cable television firm has been warned to stop burying cable lines within county rights-of-way along county roads.

Kaiser said the warning in the form of a letter was sent to James Bradley, a representative of American Consolidated Properties of Kalamazoo.

Kaiser said the firm has failed to get county permission to bury the cable television lines along county roads.

The firm has approval to bury the lines within the city for customers within city limits.

Kaiser also said that construction on County Line bridge, damaged in the early morning hours of Nov. 1, will not begin until the coming spring.

The board also gave approval to the fire board's tentative budget which provides for 50 cents per hour increases for volunteers and for radio monitors in the homes of firemen.

The township board did, however, object to proposed carpeting for the fire hall.

The tentative budget now goes to the Hartford city council for consideration. The fire department serves the city and the township.

Supervisor Donald Drake said Hartford township will be the host for the Jan. 15 meeting of the Van Buren county chapter of the Michigan Townships' association.

NYC Hope Boosts Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes for agreement on a plan to avert a financial collapse by New York City carried stocks strongly higher again today.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up about a point, and gainers outpaced losers by about a 3-1 margin in the early going on the New York Stock Exchange.

A special session of the New York State Legislature was set to reconvene this morning to consider tax and debt-restructuring measures as part of a plan being put together with the aim of preventing a default by New York City.

President Ford indicated late Wednesday he was still opposed to the idea of federal help for the city.

But in what many took to be a softening of his position, the President said he was encouraged by what he called the fiscal "progress" being made in the state and city toward development of a better fiscal picture.

Today's early prices included Citicorp, up 3/4 at 30 3/4; White Motor, unchanged at 5 3/4; American Airlines, ahead 1/4 at 8; and Kennecott Copper, up 1/4 at 29 1/2.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average jumped 13.70 to 852.25, its sharpest rise in nearly a month.

Big Board volume surged to 23.96 million shares, the heaviest held since mid-July.

Advances held a 3-1 edge on declines at the NYSE, and the exchange's composite index rose .70 to 48.22.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index climbed 1.13 to 85.28.

Watervliet Fire Board Will Meet

WATERVLIET — The Watervliet fire board meeting, originally slated for last night, has been rescheduled for tonight to consider bids for a new fire truck.

Robert Flaherty, fire board secretary-treasurer, said the meeting was postponed to allow all board members to attend the meeting, slated for 7:30 p.m. at the fire station.

The board will consider four bids on a new truck, ranging from $49,902 to $53,585.

Settlement On Way At Hospital

CHICAGO (AP) — A tentative contract agreement was reached today in the 18-day strike by interns and doctors at Cook County Hospital, one of the nation's largest hospitals.

A statement by a hospital spokesman said the striking House Staff Association was to submit the tentative settlement to its representative council later today for possible approval.

Terms of the agreement were not disclosed. Both sides had met through most of Wednesday night with federal mediator Leo Bakula.

About 450 interns and doctors struck the hospital Oct. 27 over wages, fringe benefits, union security and patient care. About 170 senior physicians took over their duties, but services at the hospital were drastically curtailed.

South Berrien Ambulance Service Accord Reached

NILES — A tentative agreement giving six townships and cities in southern Berrien and Cass counties emergency ambulance service after Nov. 17 was approved by the Southwest Michigan Community Ambulance service board last night.

STAT ambulance service, with business offices in St. Joseph, will take over emergency ambulance service in the area on Nov. 17, according to Joseph Garbert Jr., chairman of the board. The St. Joseph firm will replace the Gold Crown ambulance service, Niles.

STAT, to be based in Pawating hospital in Niles, will provide emergency ambulance service to the cities of Buchanan and Niles, and the townships of Buchanan, Bertrand, Niles and Howard. All are located in Berrien county, with the exception of Howard township, which is located in Cass county.

The ambulance board was formed after the six townships and cities agreed to form the ambulance agency in meetings held the last two weeks.

The board was formed after Robert Wilson, owner of Gold Crown had previously announced he would discontinue emergency service only on Nov. 17 because of $40,000 in uncollected bills.

STAT was one of five ambulance services from Benton Harbor, St. Joseph, Niles and South Bend to make proposals before the board in meetings held on Monday.

Garbert, the city of Buchanan representative on the board, said the agreement with STAT is tentative until a contract is finalized.

The agreement with STAT will only be temporary, according to Garbert. He said the board is seeking to establish a permanent emergency service within the next 90 days.

Garbert also announced two public hearings will be held to determine what kind of permanent ambulance service the six areas want. He said 7:30 p.m. hearings are tentatively scheduled for Dec. 3, at the Niles library, and Dec. 10, at Buchanan high school.

Garbert said the board will consist of six voting members representing the six governments and two ex officio members from Pawating and Unity hospitals. Unity hospital is located in Buchanan.

Governmental units from the six areas have agreed to give the ambulance board the power to contract for an emergency service.

Lenders See Red Over 'Greenlining'

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — When you speak of redlining, a consumer activist probably thinks of greenlining and a home mortgage lender sees — well, he sees red.

Redlining, as you probably have heard, occurs when a lender marks off a certain geographical territory, most likely in the blight area, and declines to lend any money there.

This often provokes the greenlining reaction, in which depositors remove their savings, their greenbacks, from the offending institution and place them with one they conclude is more cooperative.

To those attending the annual meeting of the U.S. League of Savings Associations, whose membership includes institutions that make the majority of home loans, the issue is simple but complex.

A contradiction? Not quite. In a narrow business sense, lenders say, investments in certain areas cannot be justified. "We say we have to protect the funds of our savers," said Robert Hazen, of Portland, Ore., who assumed the league presidency at the convention. "We just cannot take the risk," he said.

Few people here deny that they avoid doing business in the inner city. They argue that they aren't the only ones. Either, that a variety of business and even governmental enterprises do the same thing.

The "redlining" term irritates them. The practice it describes, they repeat, is merely the exercise of sound business decisions. Chartered as business institutions, they say they cannot be asked to solve sociological problems.

Congress seems not willing to agree. A bill calling for disclosure of big city areas in which loans are offered or denied is likely to pass both houses. It could be an irritant, but more likely, say lenders here, it won't prove a thing.

"Those figures will be expensive to come up with," said Barry Tate, director of urban affairs for the league, "and the interpretation of what the numbers mean will be difficult to determine."

Some lenders already proclaim that they aren't the only reason so little financial business is conducted in the blighted, inner city core. They insist the record will show loans weren't made there because nobody asked for them.

This is an area of "mature communities" lying between the innermost circle and a ring of stable neighborhoods. It is an area in transition. It can go either way, but lenders say that at least they will have a chance

Under a proposal already introduced by Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., some of these middle rings would be designated Community Reinvestment Areas, in which private lenders and the federal government would share the risk.

A Community Reinvestment Fund would be created under the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to insure 80 per cent of any loss on certain home mortgage or home improvement loans made in these areas, with the other 20 per cent absorbed by the lender.

Efforts also would be required by members of the community and city officials to help restore vitality. Housekeeping facilities, such as water systems and sewers, would be brought up to par. Schools would be maintained.

The proposal has met with criticism. Objectors term it a smokescreen or political ploy aimed at offsetting the bad image created for lenders by some aspects of the disclosure legislation.

Carla Hills, secretary of Housing and Urban Development, was quoted earlier as having said she endorsed the insurance program. Now she maintains that she does not. Government officials even refer to "reverse redlining."

Other critics note that insurance already exists in the form of Federal Housing Administration programs, and they discount complaints by the lenders that the FHA program involves too much red tape to be effective.

Whatever is the final outcome of this maneuvering between consumer activists and government officials and lenders over the inner city problem, it has become clear here that nobody has the answers, and they freely say so.

You may say quite accurately that none of the so-called experts see a silver lining to the cloud hanging over the inner city.

Allegan Buys Police Equipment

Purchases May Save $80,000

ALLEGAN — The Allegan county board of commissioners yesterday approved the purchase of four police cars and $2,185 worth of police surveillance equipment in an effort to avoid losing about $80,000 in federal crime prevention funds.

The commissioners approved the purchases with the hope that the Region 8 Criminal Justice Planning Council in Grand Rapids would withdraw its decision to cut funding for the county's five-man metropolitan detective unit.

The unit was formed July 1 after the county received an allocation of $121,000 from the criminal justice planning council to fund the unit for one year.

However, Sheriff Robert Whitcomb said he learned last week that the council had decided to withhold the unpaid balance of the grant — about $80,000 — because the detective unit did not have cars and equipment.

The board approved purchase of the four cars from the Reynolds and Hays Chevrolet and Oldsmobile dealership, Allegan, at a cost of $17,178. That price included a payment of $200 in interest because the cars had been ordered last June by Whitcomb but had been sitting on the dealer's lot since July awaiting board approval of the purchase.

The surveillance equipment, also ordered in June by Whitcomb, was purchased from the Bell and Howell company for $2,185.

Although the equipment had been ordered in June, the board never approved purchase because board members said the sheriff had not followed the usual procedure of letting the board seek bids.

Whitcomb said he asked for bids on the cars and surveillance equipment, but only received one bid for each.

Jerry Lohman, Hamilton, county board chairman, said that even though purchase of the equipment was approved, there still was only a fifty-fifty chance the council would restore funding.

The council meets on Thursday, Nov. 20, and may reconsider Allegan county's request for funding.

The county may also apply to the council until Jan. 1 for funding to operate the detective unit for a second year.

Under the anti-crime program, the council can approve almost full federal funding for the detective unit for the first two years. For the next three years, federal funding would be approved in a decreasing amount. After that, the county would assume the full financial burden of operating the unit.

Commissioner Vernon Sill, Ganges township, questioned the value of the program and suggested that the county may not even want to apply for second year funds.

In other business, Lohman told the board there was still no progress in the six months of contract negotiations with county health department nurses.

He said he and the board's labor attorney, Michael Ward, Kalamazoo, would meet with a state mediator and nurses' representatives today in an effort to resolve the dispute.

The six public health nurses organized as a collective bargaining unit last April, and since then negotiations have been unable to produce an agreement on wages and job descriptions.

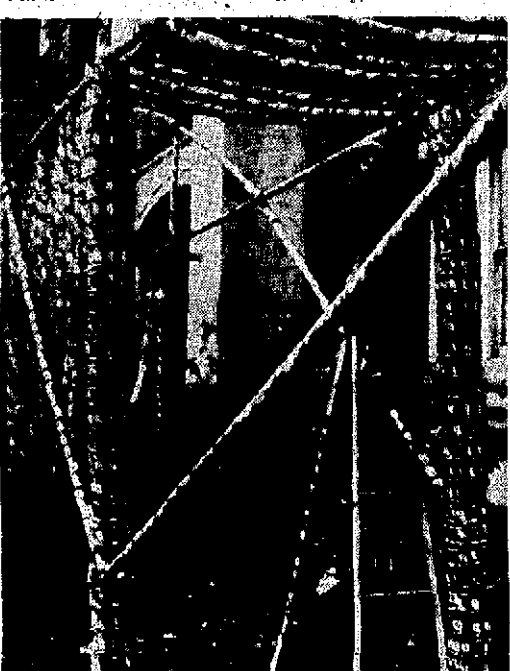

The board also agreed to give the department of social services $10,000 for the balance of the year to be used for direct relief. Last month, the board approved $5,000 for the financially troubled department which has requested a total of $40,000 in additional county funds.

Cass Courthouse Employees Get Two Year, 5.4% Raise

CASSOPOLIS — The Cass county board of commissioners yesterday ratified a labor contract with 21 courthouse employees calling for a 5.4 per cent pay hike to be paid in three increases over a two-year period.

The contract expires on Aug. 31, 1977 and calls for employee salaries to be paid on an hourly basis.

The employees, including clerks, receptionists and other clerical staff office workers, now receive between $6,000 and $7,200 yearly.

Condemnation Settlement Has $20,000 Price Tag

An out-of-court settlement was signed yesterday by a Berrien Circuit court judge which awards $20,000 to the former owners of a 25-acre parcel in New Buffalo township for the site of a sewage treatment plant.

The stipulation to which attorneys representing Calvin and Dortha Warner, of Chicago, former owners of the parcel, and the Berrien board of public works (BPW), agreed was signed by Judge Julian E. Hughes.

The land, which borders the Galien river, was previously condemned by a board of condemnation commissioners who ruled the BPW needed the land for construction of a sewage treatment plant for the proposed Galien River Sanitary District, a sewerage system to serve New Buffalo and Chikaming townships and the City of New Buffalo.

The BPW had offered the Warners $14,000 for the land, and the case was set for trial yesterday to determine just compensation when the agreement was reached.

BPW Director Robert Barnes said the cost of the land will be borne by the three units, with an $11-million federal grant and $700,000 state grant helping to pay for the plant and system. Barnes said construction on the system should begin in early spring, with completion expected in about 2 1/2 years.

He also noted the three governmental units are now reviewing a new contract in which the BPW will be responsible for financing, sale of bonds, construction, and related matters.

The old contract, adopted in January, 1973, predicted a cost of $2.4 million for the total project. That figure has now jumped to about $20 million, Barnes said.

He noted the scope of the project has changed because a larger area will be served and the treatment plant will be more sophisticated than originally planned but those items don't account for the huge increase.

"I think inflation is the big factor," Barnes explained.

Barnes added the project appears to be on schedule, and formal approval of the contracts by the BPW is contingent upon approval from each of the three local units. He also said the BPW hopes to sell the three bond issues, which will raise some $5 million for construction, at one time rather than three separate times.

Sunshine Bill Rejection Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two agencies that oversee the nation's financial establishment are trying to convince the House to reject Senate-passed legislation requiring open meetings of many federal boards and commissions.

Both Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and Roderick M. Hills, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, told a House subcommittee Wednesday the bill would have a devastating effect on their agencies.

Better Phone Service For Santa Claus

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is lending $1 million so that Santa Claus can have better telephone service.

More precisely, the Agriculture Department is lending the money to improve the telephone system in Santa Claus, Ind., and neighboring Christmas Lake Village.

Officials said Wednesday that the loan is being made by the Rural Telephone Bank, which supplements funds handed by the department's Rural Electrification Administration.

The loan went to the Perry-Spencer Rural Telephone Cooperative, Tell City, Ind., to help "replace an older, multi-party system" now in use and to serve additional customers in the Santa Claus area.

An REA spokesman was asked if the festive loan spirit also is being extended to Christmas, Fla., and Christmas Cove, Maine. He said the agency has no prospective borrowers in those communities.

Two Runs By Benton Firemen

Benton township firemen reported they extinguished a small fire in a trash container behind Burd schoni and removed smoke from an apartment in two separate runs Wednesday.

The fire behind the school, 1212 East Main street, was at about 6 p.m. Damage was minor and confined to the container. The cause was not known.

Smoke was cleared from an apartment at 1850 Highland avenue about 3:30 p.m. Smoke accumulated after a pan of food was left on a heated stove. No one was home at the time and the occupant was not known, according to firefighters.

Purchases May Save $80,000

ALLEGAN — The Allegan county board of commissioners yesterday approved the purchase of four police cars and $2,185 worth of police surveillance equipment in an effort to avoid losing about $80,000 in federal crime prevention funds.

The commissioners approved the purchases with the hope that the Region 8 Criminal Justice Planning Council in Grand Rapids would withdraw its decision to cut funding for the county's five-man metropolitan detective unit.

The unit was formed July 1 after the county received an allocation of $121,000 from the criminal justice planning council to fund the unit for one year.

However, Sheriff Robert Whitcomb said he learned last week that the council had decided to withhold the unpaid balance of the grant — about $80,000 — because the detective unit did not have cars and equipment.

The board approved purchase of the four cars from the Reynolds and Hays Chevrolet and Oldsmobile dealership, Allegan, at a cost of $17,178. That price included a payment of $200 in interest because the cars had been ordered last June by Whitcomb but had been sitting on the dealer's lot since July awaiting board approval of the purchase.

The surveillance equipment, also ordered in June by Whitcomb, was purchased from the Bell and Howell company for $2,185.

Although the equipment had been ordered in June, the board never approved purchase because board members said the sheriff had not followed the usual procedure of letting the board seek bids.

Whitcomb said he asked for bids on the cars and surveillance equipment, but only received one bid for each.

Jerry Lohman, Hamilton, county board chairman, said that even though purchase of the equipment was approved, there still was only a fifty-fifty chance the council would restore funding.

The council meets on Thursday, Nov. 20, and may reconsider Allegan county's request for funding.

The county may also apply to the council until Jan. 1 for funding to operate the detective unit for a second year.

Under the anti-crime program, the council can approve almost full federal funding for the detective unit for the first two years. For the next three years, federal funding would be approved in a decreasing amount. After that, the county would assume the full financial burden of operating the unit.

Commissioner Vernon Sill, Ganges township, questioned the value of the program and suggested that the county may not even want to apply for second year funds.

In other business, Lohman told the board there was still no progress in the six months of contract negotiations with county health department nurses.

He said he and the board's labor attorney, Michael Ward, Kalamazoo, would meet with a state mediator and nurses' representatives today in an effort to resolve the dispute.

The six public health nurses organized as a collective bargaining unit last April, and since then negotiations have been unable to produce an agreement on wages and job descriptions.

The board also agreed to give the department of social services $10,000 for the balance of the year to be used for direct relief. Last month, the board approved $5,000 for the financially troubled department which has requested a total of $40,000 in additional county funds.

Cass Courthouse Employees Get Two Year, 5.4% Raise

CASSOPOLIS — The Cass county board of commissioners yesterday ratified a labor contract with 21 courthouse employees calling for a 5.4 percent pay hike to be paid in three increases over a two-year period.

The contract expires on Aug. 31, 1977 and calls for employee salaries to be paid on an hourly basis.

The employees, including clerks, receptionists and other clerical staff office workers, now receive between $6,000 and $7,200 yearly.

Under the contract, employees will receive a 10 cent per hour increase on Jan. 1, a 15 cent per hour increase on July 1, and another 10 cent per hour increase on Jan. 1, 1977.

The courthouse employees were represented in contract negotiations by local 214 of the Teamsters' state, county and municipal employees union.

A grandfather clause in the agreement stipulates that any present courthouse employee can choose not to join the union, but that all future employees will be required to join the union and have dues and fees deducted from their paychecks.

The agreement calls for employees to receive a half-day off the day before Christmas, 1975, and a half-day off the day before New Year's, 1977.

Commissioner Donald Marlin, rural Niles, suggested that the employees also be given the entire day off after Thanksgiving and Christmas. This suggestion met unanimous defeat as other commissioners objected on the grounds that the proposal could cost as much as $10,000 in payroll expenses.

A similar motion by Commissioner Robert Powers, Marcellus, was tabled. Powers suggested that the board allow department heads to give half their employees the day off after Thanksgiving and the other half the day off after Christmas thus keeping county offices open.

In other business, the board announced the hiring of Robert Steele, 33, Edwardsburg, as county animal welfare officer at an annual salary of $8,000.

Steele operates a CB radio shop in Edwardsburg and is an Ontwa township reserve police officer. He replaces the recently deceased Chester Kulesia.

The board approved the additional expense of $406 for lowering a steel beam in the first floor ceiling of the old courthouse which is undergoing a $1,266,273 remodeling project.

The only dissenting vote came from Kenneth Fox, Cassopolis, who said the extra cost should be borne by the architect and contractor.

Last month, the board agreed to spend an additional $49,000 to replace deteriorating plaster on the walls of the 80-year-old building. Fox objected to that expense as well on the grounds that the architect should have included it in the original cost estimate.

The board adopted a resolution to be sent to Gov. William Milliken and the state police director asking that a state police post be established in Cass county.

Condemnation Settlement Has $20,000 Price Tag

An out-of-court settlement was signed yesterday by a Berrien Circuit court judge which awards $20,000 to the former owners of a 25-acre parcel in New Buffalo township for the site of a sewage treatment plant.

The stipulation to which attorneys representing Calvin and Doretha Warner, of Chicago, former owners of the parcel, and the Berrien board of public works (BPW), agreed was signed by Judge Julian E. Hughes.

The land, which borders the Gallen river, was previously condemned by a board of condemnation commissioners who ruled the BPW needed the land for construction of a sewage treatment plant for the proposed Gallen River Sanitary district, a sewerage system to serve New Buffalo and Chikaming townships and the City of New Buffalo.

The BPW had offered the Warners $14,000 for the land, and the case was set for trial yesterday to determine just compensation when the agreement was reached.

BPW Director Robert Barnes said the cost of the land will be borne by the three units, with an $11 million federal grant and $700,000 state grant helping to pay for the plant and system. Barnes said construction on the system should begin in early spring, with completion expected in about 2½ years.

He also noted the three governmental units are now reviewing a new contract in which the BPW will be responsible for financing, sale of bonds, construction, and related matters.

The old contract, adopted in January, 1973, predicted a cost of $2.4 million for the total project. That figure has now jumped to about $20 million, Barnes said.

He noted the scope of the project has changed because a larger area will be served and the treatment plant will be more sophisticated than originally planned but those items don't account for the huge increase. "I think inflation is the big factor," Barnes explained.

Barnes added the project appears to be on schedule, and formal approval of the contracts by the BPW is contingent upon approval from each of the three local units. He also said the BPW hopes to sell the three bond issues, which will raise some $8 million for construction, at one time rather than three separate times.

One Meeting For Sodus

Better Phone Service For Santa Claus

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is lending $1 million so that Santa Claus can have better telephone service.

More precisely, the Agriculture Department is lending the money to improve the telephone system in Santa Claus, Ind., and neighboring Christmas Lake Village.

Officials said Wednesday that the loan is being made by the Rural Telephone Bank, which supplements funds handled by the department's Rural Electrification Administration.

The loan went to the Perry-Spencer Rural Telephone Cooperative, Tell City, Ind., to help "replace an older, multi-party system" now in use and to serve additional customers in the Santa Claus area.

An REA spokesman was asked if the festive loan spirit also is being extended to Christmas, Fla., and Christmas Cove, Maine. He said the agency has no prospective borrowers in those communities.

Two Runs By Benton Firemen

Benton township firemen reported they extinguished a small fire in a trash container behind Bard school and removed smoke from an apartment in two separate runs Wednesday.

The fire behind the school, 1212 East Main street, was at about 6 p.m. Damage was minor and confined to the container. The cause was not known.

Coloma Pair Will Attend Seminar

COLOMA — Two Coloma high school seniors, Beverly Arent and Gregory Eastman, have been selected as representative of the school to attend a Presidential Classroom week-long seminar in Washington, D.C. early next year.

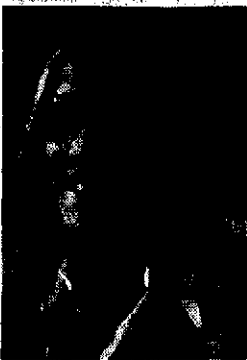

Announcement of their selection by the faculty and the senior class was made by William Smith, assistant high school principal. Miss Arent is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Arent, 8650 Hill road, Coloma. Eastman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Eastman, 8556 Paw Paw avenue, Coloma. Eastman's father is a member of the Coloma school board.

The two representatives were chosen on the basis of their academic achievement, attitude, and ability to relate their experiences to others upon returning from the nation's capital.

A date for the two to attend has not yet been selected. The seminars for various groups of students from throughout the nation are held in January and February, however.

Miss Arent's activities at the Coloma high school include pom-pom girls, paramedics and she is a member of the National Honor society.

Eastman's activities are basketball, letterman's club track and football. He is also a member of the National Honor society. The Presidential Classroom provides students with the opportunity to explore the varied facets of American government. Students will be given tours and meet with governmental leaders. The Presidential Classroom is a private, non-profit organization, according to Smith.

'Killer' Bees Coming! But Not Until 1990

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Swarms of "killer" bees headed toward the United States from South America will pose little threat to human health but could cripple production of bees and some agricultural products in the nation's southern states.

That is the conclusion of the man heading the U.S. Agriculture Department's four-year, $165,000 study of the bees, which are not expected to reach the states until 1990 or later.

Orley R. Taylor, an entomology professor at the University of Kansas, told science writers this week at a four-day conference that although the African bees have stung and killed about 150 to 300 people in South America, American beekeeping technology is "fairly sophisticated." He said that technology could weed out the aggressive bees before they could harm the public.

"It's not likely they'll gather and establish any kind of beachhead anywhere in the new world," he said.

The prolific and aggressive bee strain was imported to Brazilian apiaries (bee houses) in 1956 but many escaped the following year due to a beekeeper's negligence, Orley said. Since then, the bees have traveled at what Orley called "a remarkable rate" of 200 to 300 miles per year north through South America.

They have left behind them sensational newspaper headlines and some irresponsible predictions of their effect, Orley said.

He said beekeepers in the southern third of the U.S. are mainly afraid had publically about the so-called killers will force restrictive legislation on the multimillion dollar industry. Almost all of the queen bees and "packaged bees" for shipment to northern apiaries are produced in the southern states, he said.

"What the beekeeper fears most is that stories generated in South America will cause an over-reaction on the part of the public and the legislature," Orley said.

"He is also concerned because his business could be involved in crippling litigation if his bees are involved in a stinging incident."

Restrictive legislation could also stymie the use of bees to pollinate some $2 billion to $8 billion worth of vegetables and fruits grown in southern states, he said, and could diminish produce supplies.

Orley said the bees have forced many South American beekeepers out of business because they lack technology to handle the new breed, which tends to migrate in large swarms with no warning.

Although 18 months into the four-year study, Orley said he and his team can accurately predict little about the actions of the bees. They know, however, that the bees, which are smaller than normal, prefer dry, warm climates.

They claim, for example, if the bees entered the United States they could exist no further north than Chesapeake

Psychiatrist Asks U.S. To Be 'Caring' Society

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Karl A. Menninger, the eminent psychiatrist, said Wednesday that Americans now must begin really to care about "the morally retarded, the morally deficient, the violent, the corrupt" people.

"Most of them you do not treat," he said. "You put some of them in jails — which is no treatment; you put others in prisons — which is no treatment; you put homeless and abused children in institutions which condemn them to wasted lives or death. These and many more."

Menninger's prepared remarks came at a luncheon during a two-day convocation entitled "Toward a Caring Society," sponsored by the Menninger Foundation of Topeka, Kan., now marking its 50th anniversary.

He said he denies a view that Americans want "a world that is organized around the values of the sick, which are sick values."

"Being treated like an invalid is pleasant for a while, but nobody wants to stay sick very long. Nobody is made sick by care, love and compassion. Not the giver nor the receiver. What sickness is is that we have not found adequate remedies."

"But we can't 'cop out.' We must keep grappling with these appalling evils which psychiatry has helped to reveal."

Menninger said inflicting of pain as a means of gaining pleasure "is repellant to most citizens, yet many of them do it daily without explanation."

of holding a baby in the flames to hear it scream; most Americans would eschew this, but they nevertheless hired young men and ordered them to go over and throw flames on mothers and on the frail houses in which these frightened innocents took shelter."

"War is an unbearable evil, rarely described as a disease. These monsters were also our boy friends, our friends, our soldiers."

"If, having gone so far in identifying destructiveness in our civilization are we to accept it and let it overcome us? People who care can't do that, even if they try. Our personal salvation depends on keeping up our efforts and our hope."

Bay in the east and San Francisco in the west, and would predominate in the central valleys of California and along the Gulf Coast.

The only other federally funded study of the bees is by a research team at the University of California at Berkeley. Orley said. That team is studying morphology, or form and structure of the bees, he said.
